CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

Pulmocine Cordial

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croup, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," no does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SQUILL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a wood and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

BRIGGS' ALLEVANTOR is composed of Ammonia, Chloroform, Spirits of Camphor, Tincture of Lupuline, Oil of Juniper, and Alcohol. This compound is unequalled in the annals of medicine for the cure of Nervous or Sick Headache, Neuralgia, Trembling or Twitching of the Nerves, and all Nervous Diseases. It will counteract all poisons, banish pimples, cure scaly eruptions, itching, humors, &c.; it equalizes the circulation, invigorates the system, increases the action of the heart, without exciting the brain, cures Heartburn, Palpitation and Fluttering of the Heart, Dyspepsia, &c. Briggs' Allevantor absolutely possesses more curative properties than any other preparation. Physicians, chemists, and others are requested to examine and test the remedy, and $1000 will be paid if found different from representation.
COUGHS, and Much has been said and written, and many remedies have been offered for the relief and cure of throat and lung diseases; but nothing has been so eminently successful, or obtained such a wide celebrity, as Briggs' Throat and Lung Healer.
CORNS! The excruciating pain produced by Corns, the unceasing twinging from Bunions, the piercing, distressing pain from Ingrowing Nails, cannot be described. Thousands suffer, not knowing there is a cure. Briggs' Corn and Bunion Remedies are no acid or potash compounds, but are reliable, soothing, and effectual, and just merit the success they have earned from an appreciative public. The Curative is a healing ointment; immediate relief is obtained by its application, and it will positively cure the worst cases of Festered Corns, Inflamed and Ulcerated Bunions, the sorest instep, the largest and severest Blisters, the most extensive Callosities on the soles or heels of the feet, unequalled in the cure of Chilblains or Frosted Feet. The Allevantor for ordinary corns and preventing their formation is absolutely unexcelled by anything ever known.
PILES have been a terror to mankind for centuries, and almost every attempt to cure them has been baffled. By unceasing study and experimenting, Dr. Briggs has discovered an absolutely cure for internal, bleeding, external, and itching piles. Briggs' Pile Remedies are mild, safe and sure.

Spring in New England.

BY JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

There seems to come a hitch—things lag behind,
Till some fine morning, Spring makes up her mind,
An' so, when snow-swelled rivers crash their dams,
Heaped up with ice that doesn'tle in an' jams,
A leak comes st'ritin' thru some pine-hole cleft,
Grows stronger, fiercer, tears out right and left;
Then all the waters how themselves and came,
Suddin, in one great slope o' sheddin'-beam:
Jes' so our Spring gits everythin' in tune
An' gives one leap from April into June:
Then all cumes crowdin' in; afore you think,
The oak-buds mist the side-hill wools with pink,
The cat bird in the laylock bush is loud,
The orchards turns to heaps o' rosy cloud,
In elium shrouds the flashin' baughird clings,
An' for the summer vy'ge his hammock slings.
All down the loose-walled lanes in archin' bowers
The bob'ry droops its string o' golden flowers,
Whose shrinkin' hearts the school-girls love to try
With pins—they'll worry yourn so, boys, bimeby!
But I don't like your cat'logue style—do you?—
Es of to sell all natur by vendoo;
One word with blood in t'e twice as good ex two.
'Nuff sed, June's bridesmaid, poet o' the year,
Gladness on wings, the bobolink, is here;
Half hid in tip-top apple blooms he swings,
Or climbs against the breeze with quiverin' wings,
Or, givin way to 'is in a mock despair,
Runs down, a brook o' laughter, thru the air.

"Our home is on the mountains,
Our life is on the plains,
We're a band of Centaurs,
Come to banish pains."

HALF HORSE and half man, the Centaurs of Mythology were an ugly set of customers, lawless and restrained by no power. They conquered the world—consorted with animals and finally took up their abode in the constellation Centaurus. Chiron, one of their number, was made God of the Healing Art, and to him was ascribed the miraculous cures for which the ancients were celebrated. Certainly mortal man hardly had such power.

THE WONDERFUL RECIPE recently found by Professor Nafui, amid the ruins of Italy is supposed to be the same accredited to Chiron the Centaur. At any rate the Centaur Liniment effects cures that have not been attempted for centuries. Its composition ought to be published for the good of mankind. This we are not at liberty to do, but we are putting the article within the reach of all at a small price.

NEVER BEFORE could the poor suffering cripple, the lame, stiff-jointed, knock-kneed and bed-ridden feel that they could again laugh, walk and be merry, and all for a few pennies.

But it is even so, the palsied can now speak, the lame throw away their crutches, the rheumatic sleep without pain, and the leprous shout for joy.

THE STRAINED, lamed and limping horse is equally brought to health and the harness by the Centaur Liniment, (yellow wrapper.) There is no use talking, we will warrant the Centaur Liniment to cure every time. Sold by all Druggists.

TUESDAY, APRIL 8, 1873.

Readables.

The Greeley (Col.) Tribune remarks in a recent issue: "To our mind the whole system of protection in this country is a cold-blooded swindle." The town and the Tribune were named after Horace Greeley, and the editor was for many years on the New York Tribune. Then does "going West" dispel the results of early training.

Mr. Beecher made a hazardous announcement in Plymouth Church prayer-meeting, Friday evening. He was discoursing upon the duties and opportunities of laymen, and asserted that there was hardly a congregation that would not be better off if some layman were in the pulpit, and the minister in the pew. The sentiment may echo unpleasantly in his ear some day.

A terrible storm of rain, hail and wind occurred at Burlington, Iowa, Saturday. Many buildings were unroofed and one was blown down, burying twenty-five persons, seven of whom were killed. Heavy storms of snow occurred throughout that section and in Colorado at the same time.

The sale of eggs by weight agitates the Massachusetts legislature.

Mr. S. R. Niles, of Boston, has been proposed as the President of Advertisement Brokers' Convention. He certainly has one qualification, being the best looking man in the—shall we say profession?—Am. Newspaper Reporter.

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.—"Grace Greenwood," in her last letter from Washington to the New York Times, says:

I am afraid I was too hard on Congressmen for extravagant living. I have since been told of several who display a frugal mind, by moderate expenditures and careful little savings, in the way of commutations. I saw, the other day, in an avenue car, a notable instance of economy in high life. A member of the United States, after producing his well-worn pass, pointed to a gentleman accompanying him and said, "a friend of mine." The conductor saw his little game, and "passed." So, by a stroke of masterly political sagacity, our senator managed to do the handsome thing by his friend, and save five cents at the same time.

One word for myself, "and then the Senate may adjourn." I am constantly receiving letters of inquiry, with regard to Colorado, which it is hardly possible for me to answer in full. I have not established a Pike's Peak agency, nor do I keep a Colonists' Intelligence office in Washington; but I would like to give all necessary information to people sensible enough to desire to emigrate to Colorado, where I hope to be again this Summer. So, I beg leave to commend to all anxious inquirers, a book, entitled New Life in New Lands, just published by J. R. Ford & Co., No. 27 Park-place, New York. This volume contains all I know about Colorado and more. I know it is a good book, for I wrote it myself. To invalids, whose solicited inquiries touch me most, I would reiterate here that I believe the climate of Colorado the "sovereignest thing on earth" for weak digestion and hard-breathing. It it would cure as effectually a weak moral sense and hard swearing, I would tap many a politician on the shoulder, and say:

"Come, rise up, William Riley,
And go along with me."

Cumulative Punishment.

The Buffalo Express opposes the proposed law for the punishment of professional criminals, and in a recent issue proposes a substitute, saying:

We have no sympathy with the hardened offenders which this law is designed to reach, though we fear it would not. Instead, however, of subjecting men to arbitrary punishment on vague rumor, we would propose a system which, for lack of a better name, we will call "cumulative punishment." For the second offence of which a person is convicted (after the age of twenty-one) let him be punished twice as heavily as for the first; for the third, twice as heavily as for the second; and for the fourth, which would show him to be perfectly irreclaimable, let imprisonment for life be his doom. This, in so far as it could be carried out, would dispose of the "professional" criminals, and we think it could be carried out quite as effectually as the law introduced in the legislature, without destroying the guards of republican liberty.

The Rise of Gold.

There is something ominous in the slow, steady rise of gold. It does not appear to be a temporary phenomenon, but a return to a safer basis of finance. Foreigners have been investing largely in government bonds and railroad securities of late years, and we have received the amount of these investments in railroad iron, silks, wines, &c., and a small part in money. This has had a tendency to keep the premium on gold below its normal figure. With a decrease in foreign investments and in our imports, gold rises. This may be a wholesome condition of things, but it is full of teaching. A rise, rather than a fall in the price of gold, is what business men should be ready to meet.—N. Y. Graphic.

Egotistic Talkers.

Almost every circle is blessed with the egotist, who exercises a kind of dictatorship over it. Are you in mistake as to a matter of fact? He cannot offer you to proceed till you are corrected. Have you a word on the end of your tongue? He at once comes to your relief. Do you talk bad grammar? He quotes rules and gives examples like a pedagogue. Does he discover that there is a link wanting in the chain of your argument? He tells you stay till he has supplied it. Do you drop a word to which he has devoted much research? He asks you whether you know its primitive signification, and straightway indices upon the circle a long philological disquisition. When you relate an incident which you suppose new and affecting, your friend listens without emotion. When you have done he observes that he heard the same long ago, and adds a very material circumstance which you omitted. He is never taken by surprise, and it is impossible to give him any information. And yet he never takes the lead in conversation, nor advances an original thought. It is his business to come after and pick up the words which others let slip in a running talk, or to check their impetuosity that he may point out to them their mis-steps. Had he lived in the days of Solomon he would have flattered the royal sage with an intimation that some of his proverbs were but plagiarisms; or, had he been a contemporary of Solomon's father, would have felt himself bound to give the slayer of Goliath some lessons on the use of the sling, and hinted to the sweet singer in Israel his private opinion that the shepherd bard did not perfectly understand the use of the harp.

The Wrongs of Witnesses.

Sometimes it is as unfortunate to be witness of a murder as to be the assassin. In the Stokes case, the poorer witnesses of the tragedy were kept a whole year in the House of Detention, receiving but scanty remuneration for their time, and none at all for the severing of all their home ties. Quite as pitiable as any that have occurred is the case of Mrs. Lucette Myers, who is held in close custody, though she is the sole support of a family of five, while the law takes no care for her family. Plainly this is all wrong. No doubt it is right to arrest the woman, but it is certainly wrong to leave her home to be visited by want. It is not enough that private charity steps in for the relief of her family. There should be public provision for these cases, and it should be ample.—N. Y. Graphic.

BRIGHAM YOUNG'S SON ARRESTED.—The Alta Californian, of the 20th, says: Last evening William G. Young, son of Brigham Young, was arrested on a charge of drunkenness and misdemeanor. While in duress he stated that he was the son of Mother Mary, and that he and the old man run the Territory. On depositing $40 he was released, and requested that the Court meet at 10 o'clock next morning instead of 9, as that would be an accommodation to him.

SAVED.—Steamship Tropic picked up at sea a boat containing two men and a woman, the sole survivors of the ship J. W. Elwell, from Liverpool for Valparaiso with coal, which took fire and blew up. The people had been two and a half months in the boat.

WHITEWING.—Tom Smith, the negro sentenced to be hung next Friday for the murder of Joseph Braden, has apparently given up all hope of a reprieve or commutation, and is earnestly preparing for the gallows. He refuses to see any one except his two ministers, one white and one colored. Until recently he has been cheerful; now he is greatly dejected, and eats but little. A singular change has taken place in his color. When first imprisoned he was jet black; now he would easily pass for mulatto. This remarkable change has nearly all taken place within the last few weeks.—Lou. Courier-Jour.

OUR MEMBER OF CONGRESS.—The official returns from every town in this Congressional District gives Mr. Pike a plurality of seven votes. The returns are precisely the same as those sent out to the public press immediately after election, excepting in Ward Five in Portsmouth, which has returned a certificate originally giving Bell 470 and Pike 105, but which was subsequently changed by the clerk, the number 105 being erased and made to stand 93. The declaration of the Moderator, at the polls, was 105. The Republican Committee of Seven in that ward were at the meeting till the final adjournment, and carefully watched the proceedings to the end. No intimation of error was made until the closeness of the contest in the district was disclosed, more than a week after the election. The ballots cast in that ward are in the custody of the Assessor, and are understood to show an error of three votes only, and not twelve to the benefit of Mr. Bell, thus giving Mr. Pike sixteen plurality, even if we go behind the declaration at the polls. It is also well understood that a recount behind the declaration in all the wards, would largely increase Mr. Pike's plurality. There is, at all events, no doubt that Hon. Austin F. Pike is the Member of Congress elect for this district.

We need scarcely to add the fact clearly specified in the statutes, that the clerk is bound to make record of the open declaration of the moderator at the polls, and that he has not the slightest authority to deviate, in any particular, from that declaration in his returns to the Secretary of State.—Franklin Journal.

State News.

The Nashua Telegraph gives the following dog incident which recently occurred in that city: A family residing on the railroad allowed the girl, aged five years, to play about the yard of the residence on pleasant days with a Newfoundland dog. One day the child ran away and in her wandering about was accompanied by the dog, who apparently felt in duty bound to see that no harm befel her. It seems that the two came to a railroad crossing; that a train was coming and it looked a little dangerous. The dog saw the danger, and quickly seized the little miss by the skirts of her dress, and being the stronger of the two pulled her back upon the sidewalk and stood over her until the train had passed. The little miss scolded and kicked his shins but he didn't let her up till the danger had passed, when he trudged on behind her as though nothing had happened.

Sheriff J. W. Odlin has had over three hundred applications already to witness the execution of Ennis, the Northwood murderer, next February, all of which he has thus far respectfully declined.

William Currier's barn in Sunapee was burnt Saturday night. Loss $900; insured for $500.

The election in Connecticut on Monday resulted in no choice for Governor. Gen. Hawley was re-elected to Congress by a largely increased majority, as were two other republicans, the democrats re-electing Hon W. H. Barnum in the 4th district.

THE THOUGHTFUL PHYSICIAN does not regard spring as a healthy season. Its sudden transitions of temperature, searching winds and chilling rains are productive of rheumatism and neuralgia, and where there is a predisposition to dyspepsia or bilious colic, or chills and fever, such variations of the weather are apt to superinduce a visitation of one or other of those complaints. By toning and regulating the system with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at this season, these evils may, however, be warded off. The direct effect of the Standard Vegetable Specific is to invigorate the body and renovate the constitution, while it indirectly operates as a preventive of disease by purifying the animal fluids from any acid particles they may contain, and regulating the functions upon which health mainly depends—notably those of digestion, secretion and evacuation.

The World's Dispensary, founded by Dr. R. V. Pierce, in Buffalo, N. Y., for the treatment of all chronic, lingering diseases, as well as for the manufacture of his Celebrated Family Medicines, is probably one of the largest medical establishments in the world. Besides the hundreds of cases that consult Dr. Pierce personally at the above establishment, many more are successfully treated at a distance by letter, the necessary medicines being forwarded by mail or express. One of the largest buildings in Buffalo is wholly occupied by the Doctor's immense business. His valuable professional services may be secured by addressing him and enclosing stamp for reply and a printed list of questions to assist in describing case. 675

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Black Crook

Opens to-morrow evening at the Temple. The Hartford Courant says of the company:—

The "Black Crook" season, which closed Saturday night, has been the most successful, pecuniarily, ever known in this city. Eight performances were given last week, including two matinees, and the receipts amounted to nearly $7,000. The reason for this great success is simply that the management fully redeemed its promises and furnished an entertainment more complete in its way than any that has recently visited us. We do not say the ballet is a very high grade of entertainment, but as a ballet performance this deserved high praise. The scenery was elaborate, testing the capacities of Opera House to the utmost. The costumes were elegant, and everything betokened good management. The experience to this troupe is another proof that the best, not the poorest shows pay. It does not take the people long to find out what a good show is, and managers will study their interests in treating the public liberally. Americans will endure anything but shabbiness. They have a weakness for first-class things and are willing to pay for them. Thus the most successful concert ever given here was by Nilsson, two years ago, when nothing was left to be desired, either in principals or support, and in the spectacular drama this is entitled to a similar distinction.

Old Times.

In looking over the old files of the GAZETTE, I find items that will interest some readers:

April 3rd, 1761, it is officially announced that "No person is allowed to shoot dogs and cats in Portsmouth, by the Selectmens order, but Samuel Dyer." A good name that, die-er, for this business; and he might do the public good service now by thinning out the curs.

Oct. 31st, 1765, the GAZETTE, although it bore the royal arms at the head, was arrayed in deep mourning, on account of the stamp Act, and threatened to suspend publication rather than submit to it. But the obnoxious law was repealed.

In this number, it is announced that "Hon. Thomas Wibird is to be buried in the new frugal mode"—that is, probably, without gloves, &c. being furnished the mourners, by the family.

April 24th, 1810, it is announced that "Gen. James Wilkinson is just married, in New Orleans, to Mademoiselle Trudeau — handsome, accomplished, rich, and about 26 yrs. old. The Gen. is about 56."

The same paper also says, in recording the decease of a citizen, that he "was decently interred in the North burying ground."

John Melcher, of Portsmouth, was the first "printer to the State" of New Hampshire, and held the office for many years, as did also his successors in the publication of the GAZETTE,—or S. D. W. Peirce, and Peirce, Hill & Peirce in 1802-1804, Peirce & Gardner to 1809, Wm. Weeks and Beck & Foster to 1813. Since which, Concord has had the State printing all the while, until half a dozen years ago it was given to Manchester and then to Nashua. Concord is calling loudly for it to come back again, but with no certainty of succeeding. F.

Jeff Rowe,

The brakeman who was so seriously injured at Revere, keeps a nice little eating-house at Portsmouth. It appears that his cookery is as popular with the rats as with human beings; so Jeff. borrowed his neighbor's black and tan terrier to catch 'em—the rats, we mean, in the cellar. Well, what no fellah has yet found out, is, what has become of that dog—whether the rats ate him, or he dissolved into thin air—and he is doggedly silent himself on the subject. Jeff. thinks he has gone up the spout, or rather down into the sewer; and when his fond master wants him he will have to call pretty loud—a state of things which ought not to be allowed, and which even Jeff. will find it difficult to rat-ify. At last accounts he was hunting for a cat, to prevent any further cat-astrophe. Some folks think Jeff. has a hard Rowe to hoe; but he invites all to help him "Ho, every one that" hungereth, —except rats.—P. S. Mr. Rowe's name is Jefferson C., but as he "can't see where that dog went to," we have left out his middle name, and given his familiar one; and if this notice don't result in finding the subterranean canine, it may direct some reader where to find a good lunch-room.—Boston Globe.

P. M. L. A.

At the annual meeting of the Mercantile Library Association held last Friday evening at the new Mercantile Hall, No 5 Congress street, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Pres. Frank W. Miller; Vice Pres. Clarence O. Walker; Sec. A. H. Sides; Librarian, Floron Barri; Treasurer, Howard N. Dunyon; Directors, C. A. Hazlett, Mercer Goodrich, James C. Brown, John Pender, W. Augustus Hodgdon, and James R. Cornell; Trustees, C. C. Akerman, Wm. Marvin, Wm. H. Siso; Com. on Purchase of Books, C. A. Hazlett, Jos. H. Gardiner and Mercer Goodrich.

The Association was reported to be in a very flourishing condition. During the Spring its membership has doubled, its funds largely increased, an appendix to the catalogue prepared and printed, a large number of books purchased, and the Library has been moved to its present commodious quarters. The opening of the Library to lady subscribers has proved a success. Over one hundred books on an average are delivered on Saturday evenings, and it is proposed to open the Library one afternoon of each week. A liberal appropriation was voted for the purchase of the latest publications.

Sons of Portsmouth.

It is about twenty years since that the sons of Portsmouth, N. H., were called home by municipal invitation to join in an agreeable reception and reunion in the place of their birth. The occasion chosen for this pleasant family party was the Fourth of July, and it met with a hearty and cordial response from one and all, far and near, until, at the culminating moment, an army had gathered, an army of peace, to be sure, but nevertheless, "an army with banners." It was a mutual ovation and a complete success. The event was productive of much social good, and has not been forgotten by those who participated therein; therefore it is that we find the Common Council and citizens of the ancient town again calling upon this wide-spread family to come home once more for a grand reunion, and again have they chosen as a fitting occasion the national birthday. Thus, next Fourth of July will be a double celebration in Portsmouth.

Already we are informed that the responses to the call, which has but recently been issued, are so hearty and so numerous as to show the event will overshadow in brilliancy and general success the liveliest anticipations of its best friend at the outset. The call for the present year embraces not only the sons and daughters, but the sons-in-law, the grandsons and granddaughters of Portsmouth, who will all receive the same glad and hearty welcome. Combined with the reception jubilee, will be a celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the first settlement of the place, and the probability is that with the numbers of neighboring visitors, as well as those forming the legitimate guests of the occasion, Portsmouth will see more people within her municipal limits than were ever there before at one time. We know that in this vicinity there is a most hearty spirit of response inspiring every son and daughter of Portsmouth in anticipation, and one fancies that he can single out these individuals by a certain enthusiasm with which they are just now characterized.—Boston Globe.

Here's At Us!

To the Chronicle and the Board of Aldermen:—

"As much as in you lies, live at peace with oil men." R.

Call again, R.

Rally for the Sons.

The ladies and gentlemen who are members of the committee of arrangements for the REUNION have an important meeting at the Common Council room this evening at half past seven o'clock, at which it is hoped that the city government will be present. Col. E. R. Goodrich, of the New York committee, is in the city and will be present. Let there be a general attendance. Reports from the various subcommittees are expected.

Laconics.

The Eastern Railroad has building at Bath fifty new box and thirty platform cars.

A Vermont town boasts of an Ichabod Rollins, aged 80 years, who "cuts his cord and a half of wood per day," etc. Portsmouth has an "Ichabod Rollins," aged 83, and he often cuts in a day more than three times the value of the Vermont Ichabod's wood, in coupons, and the people of Strawberry Bank do not regard it as anything wonderful either.—Concord Monitor.

It has been stated that one reason for the delay in widening Richards Avenue has been the refusal of John Elwyn, Esq., to sell any of his land for the purpose. We are authorized to say that Mr. Elwyn has not been requested to sell.

AN AUTOCRATIC MAYOR.—It appears from the Portsmouth CHRONICLE that that city is blessed with a mayor who not only dares to take responsibilities, but assumes to revoke the will of majorities, and if allowed to go on is in a fair way to ignore the city charter. Not long since Mayor Marvin while presiding over the Board of Aldermen, refused to put a motion to proceed to elect committees, claiming for himself full power in the matter. One bold alderman appealed from the decision of the Mayor, and the vote on the appeal stood two in the favor of sustaining the decision of the Mayor and four against it, but "His Worship" added his own vote in favor of his own decision declaring it sustained. If this ruling of Mayor Marvin of Portsmouth is to be hereafter acknowledged as a precedent, and so quoted, we are on the eve of a revolution the result of which no one would dare to predict. But we rather think that this novel achievement will end with its not over modest author's first year.

This action of Marvin reminds us of a scene that occurred once in the Senate of this State where the parties were equally divided. The President was a democrat, and upon a motion being made for adjournment the vote stood eight to eight, the President himself constituting one of the eight that voted for adjournment. The vote being equal the negatives had it, but the President said it was a tie vote and he should vote in the affirmative, which he did and declared the Senate adjourned. The democratic members—among whom was the late ex-Gov. Dunlap,—saw the illegality of the vote and, upon a protest from Senator Kingsbury, declined to leave their seats. After some fifteen or twenty minutes' sparring between the members another motion was offered by one of the opposition Senators to adjourn. This motion the President put, although he had previously declared the Senate adjourned, and it was adopted nem con. and the members left their seats. This occurred when the Legislature met in Portland in 1860.

As on a tie vote the negatives have it, the first appeal made from the decision of the President was sustained, the vote standing eight to eight. The next day another appeal was made from his decision, but the worthy President had got his lesson, and instead of putting the question of appeal in the parliamentary way, "Shall the decision of the chair stand as the judgment of the Senate," he put it in this original way, "Is the decision of the chair incorrect?" This way of putting the question would place all his friends in the negative, and of course give them the vote. Notwithstanding the objections made to this back-handed way of putting the question, the President insisted upon this style, and throughout the session an appeal from his decision was always put in that way.—Portland Press.

The Taxes.

In view of the fact that other cities like Concord and Dover have tax-collectors that make returns of only two or three hundred dollars of uncollected taxes, will our people continue to employ a man who has over thirty thousand dollars of uncollected taxes on his books?—The Lyre, April 7th.

There are less than twenty-four thousand dollars of uncollected taxes on the Portsmouth city books. The amount of uncollected taxes in Concord for 1872 is $21,922; in Manchester $31,347—total outstanding uncollected taxes from '67 to '72, $70,761. We get these figures from the official report of these cities. Since this year came in the amount of uncollected taxes has been reduced several thousands of dollars and is now less than $20,000.

DEATHS.

In this city, March 30th, of quick consumption, Mr. MICHAEL MURRAY, aged about 49 years, formerly of Biddeford whither his body was removed for burial.

In Brentwood, at the County Farm, April 5th Mr. JOHN WOOLLEY, aged about 70 years, formerly of Portsmouth. The first death at the Farm for four months.

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an alimental, as easily digestible, and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing agent, Iron, in the blood, and so in "a thousand ways" invigorates the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damage and wasting tissues, expelling morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Tumors, Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases arising from the vitiated state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. It is free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, imparting strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

Pulmocine Cordial

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England, is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children groaning with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in the advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

To the ultimate chemistry of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SQUILL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CALLING A BOY IN THE MORNING.—The Connecticut editor who wrote the following, evidently knew what he was talking about:

Calling a boy up in the morning can hardly be classed under the head of "pastimes," especially if the boy is fond of exercise the day before. And it is a little singular that the next hardest thing to getting a boy out of bed is getting him into it. There is rarely a mother who is a success at rousing a boy. All mothers know this; so do their boys. And yet the mother seems to go at it in the right way. She opens the stair door and instinctly observes: "Johnny." There is no response. "John-ny." Still no response. Then there is a sharp "John" followed a moment later by a long and emphatic "John Henry!" A grunt from the upper regions signifies that an impression has been made, and the mother is encouraged to add, "You'd better be getting down here to your breakfast, young man, before I come up there, and give you something you'll feel." This so startles the young man that he immediately goes to sleep again. And the operation has to be repeated several times. A father knows nothing about the trouble. He merely opens his mouth as a soda bottle ejects its cork, and the "John Henry" that cleaves the air of that stairway goes into that boy like electricity, and pierces the deepest recesses of his nature. And he pops out of that bed and into his clothes, and down the stairs, with a promptness that is commendable. It is rarely a boy allows himself to disregard the paternal summons. About once a year is believed to be as often as is consistent with the rules of health. He saves his father a great many steps by his thoughtfulness.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9, 1873.

THE SAILOR PASSENGER.—To look at William Hoys one would not think him a hero. But the truth is that but for his courage and endurance the death-list of the Atlantic would have been greater by scores. A gathering of three or four intelligent-looking fellows was approached with the remark: "I am trying to find the man they call 'the sailor passenger.'" Quick as thought two of the men started up, and their eyes glistened and their voices shook as they exclaimed together, "he saved my life!" "He saved my life!" The "sailor passenger" was soon found by the assistance of these men, who, in their gratitude, were eager that his brave deeds should be recounted. His name is William Hoys and he is a native of County Antrim, Ireland, although he has been in America several years, being employed as a sailor upon our lakes. He is about thirty-five years old, well built, but appearing to be remarkably strong. Its conversation he showed himself to be an uneducated but good-natured fellow, having strong sympathies for his fellow-men, but entirely unassuming, and not disposed to talk of what he had done. "Why," said he, "I saw them drowning, and thought I would save some if I could." Hoys crossed by a rope from the ship to the rock, and had great difficulty in clambering up its treacherous, slippery sides. He saw others attempt it only to fall back into the water and drown. The men were hurried on to the rope by the captain, who was on the ship, and many had not the strength to reach the rock and were drowned on the way; others reached it only to meet death with safety at their fingers' ends. Hoys saw all this, and realized how much a man might do in assisting those who got across; and although suffering greatly with cold—he had been for hours exposed on the ship and had no clothes but his shirt and pantaloons—he undertook the work himself. He lay down upon the top of the rock and reached over its precipitous side, and as the men came across he caught them by their upraised arms, their clothing, their hair—wherever he could get a hold—and pulled them up to a place where they could stand. It was hard work; and every time he pulled a man up he took the risk of being himself pulled down. Thus he worked until his hands became so cold and numb that they refused to do further service, and then, instead of abandoning his self-chosen post, he just reached his body farther over the dangerous side of the rock, and set his teeth into the coats of men and drew himself back until they could hold on for themselves. More than one hundred men did Bill Hoys, the "sailor passenger," lift from the death below over their perilous way to safety above, and it is enough to set one's heart a-throbbing to hear some of these men express in their odd ways the gratitude they feel to their preserver. It made no difference who the men were, whether from the cabin, the steerage or the crew, Hoys lent his strength to all who came, and never stopped in his work until utterly exhausted.

William Kelley, a boy of fourteen, who was making the voyage alone, owes his life, perhaps, to a mistake. He had a white handkerchief tied about his head, and when he was crossing on the rope some one saw him and shouted, "There's a woman; save her!" The cry was taken up, and Hoys who was at that time on the rock pulling the men up as they came, thinking it was a woman, made extraordinary efforts and got him on the rock. When he had been safely landed the young fellow pulled the handkerchief from his head, and, grinning at his preserver, said, "I ain't no woman." He tells of it now with his mouth stretched across his face, and he and Hoys laugh together over the mistake, which, perhaps insured his life.

A BEREAVED HUSBAND'S STORY.—The following story, being the personal experience of James Bateman, an Englishman, 26 years of age, is interesting from the fact that he alone of all the married immigrants on board the steamship Atlantic succeeded in bringing his wife on deck. He says:—

I was awakened with my wife by hearing the ship strike; I heard them say that it was only the noise of the anchor, and that we were in port in Halifax. I and my wife ran up stairs nearly naked to the door, but the sailors were guarding it and said they had orders to keep all below. I burst open the door against the men and my wife and I fell upon the deck. At this minute they were firing the last rocket, and Mr. Ryan, a passenger, was trying to launch a boat. I got into the boat with my wife, when the sailors came and said they would split our heads open if we did not get out. I naturally preferred to stand my chances on deck rather than be killed in the boat, so we obeyed them and got into the rigging. My wife and I held on to the rigging and just as we got hold fast the ship keeled over, and we were suspended in the air by our hands. My wife was 23 years of age, a strong woman, and I pushed her into the rigging again. Then the sea swept over us several times. I was dressed in nothing but a shirt and coat, and my wife had only a chemise and flannel petticoat, so we suffered greatly from cold. My wife was freezing nine hours in the rigging before she died. The last man saved was the first mate, and I think they could have saved my wife at that time. Her last words were to an officer: "Please give me something, if only a handkerchief, to save me from freezing," but the officer, though warmly clad himself, refused to aid her. A Halifax paper gives the statement of First-Officer Frith to the effect that he stayed by my wife until she perished. This is false. He did nothing for her. I think he is the biggest coward God ever made. [A number of other passengers corroborated this.] I tried as a last effort to save my wife to cross the deck from the mizzen rigging to the fore part of the ship, and while dozens who made the attempt were washed overboard, I was successful. I asked Captain Williams to try and save my wife. He replied: 'Fetch your wife if you want her saved'; but that was impossible, as I could not cross the deck again. A lot of sailors cried, 'Save the woman,' but none dared try. It was too late. When I last saw my wife she was frothing at the mouth and nearly dead. We were bound for Boston.

The Newburyport Herald says a fellow named George Day, of Georgetown, committed an outrage last Saturday night, on a young daughter of Edward Rogers, of Newbury. He followed her from the Mills, where she had been visiting, as she was on her way home, and when near "Pound Hill," at a distance from any house, seized her, threw her down and gagged her to stifle her cries. Her clothes were torn from her in the struggle, which lasted till she became insensible. When she recovered she was barely able to reach home, and has been suffering since from bruises on the head and other results of the brutal treatment. Mr. Rogers and some of the neighbors went in pursuit of Day with a team, and overtook him about a mile from the scene of outrage, when he took to the woods and eluded pursuit. State constables Hale and Tuck are on his track, and a clue has been obtained to his whereabouts.

Mr. Gallagher was elected Mayor of Peru, Ill., recently by one vote. That vote, or another one, was cast by a friend of Gallagher's, who, though 88 years old, walked three miles and a half to vote for him.

Two hundred and twenty-six bodies have been recovered from the steamship Atlantic.

—The free and easy manner in which some rural post offices are kept is illustrated by a case stated in the Belfast Age. The post office in the town of Liberty has been kept by proxy; Mr. Moulton, a trader, being postmaster, while the duties of the office were done by a woman, at her house. Frequent complaints having been made of the loose manner in which it was kept, Mr. Carr, the agent of the post office department, proceeded to make an investigation. Stopping incognito in the village, he visited the post office and found no difficulty in abstracting quite a number of letters. During the same evening, after arrival of the mail, he called again and took away the mail-bag, which was left exposed. The next morning he called upon the postmaster, who stated to him that the mail-bag had been stolen. He thereupon informed him that he was the supposed thief, and found no difficulty in advised him to resign, which he did. A new postmaster will be appointed.

—The first quality we seek in food of any kind is cleanliness. However, there are certain forms of impurities in some articles sold in our markets to which we submit without a murmur. We do not quarrel with the butchers, because they handle the meat in every imaginable way. We expect to wash the vegetables and pick over the berries. We are resigned to eating our "peck of dirt" in the roughly handled market produce. But when we buy butter and cheese, that must be clean; it must be without speck or flaw. We will not buy it from a dealer who is not cleanly in appearance. Nothing so disgusts one as any impurity in the product of the dairy. It must look clean, and be clean.

—Eight years ago, A. J. Blackwood of Lubec lost his wife, leaving him with six young children. He survived the loss by calling a worthy woman to his home for a second wife after a couple of years; now he is called to part with this wife, she having been the partner of his bosom for some six years; this time he is left with nine children; it may truly be said, "the last state of that man is worse than the first."

GIVE IT UP?—One of our exchanges gives the following conundrum: "Why is it that a young fellow and his girl can sit in the parlor until after midnight without making noise enough for the old folks to hear them through the partition, but can't sit in a public place five minutes without annoying the whole house with their giggling and talk?"

—An enamored Philadelphian has been convicted of petty larceny for abstracting his adored one's carte de visite from her photograph album; the judge decided that to steal a "carte" was as bad as to steal a horse.

FOR BREAKFAST, COCOA has become a general favorite wherever it has been introduced. Medical men recommend it as preferable to tea or coffee for nervous or delicate constitutions. Walter Baker & Co., Boston, have achieved the highest reputation for their preparations of Chocolate and Cocoa, which are sold everywhere.

For all throat diseases and especially Coughs, Colds, &c., there is no known remedy equal to Buchman's Pulmocine, and a few doses will satisfy the most skeptical of its efficacy. For sale at the Union Store.

MRS. HARRIET BEECHER STOWE, after a residence of some years in Paris, and a thorough trial of foreign makes, wrote as follows to commendation of W. Baker & Co's preparation:—

"No one need to look abroad for a superior article of Chocolate in any of the preparations to that which you manufacture."

THE THOUGHTFUL PHYSICIAN does not regard spring as a healthy season. Its sudden transitions of temperature, searching winds and chilling rains are provocative of rheumatism and neuralgia, and where there is a predisposition to dyspepsia or bilious colic, or chills and fever, such variations of the weather are apt to superinduce a visitation of one or other of those complaints. By tonic and regulating the system with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at this season, these evils may, however, be warded off. The direct effect of the Standard Vegetable Specific is to invigorate the body and renovate the constitution, while it indirectly operates as a preventive of disease by purifying the animal fluids from the acid particles they may contain, and regulating the functions upon which health mainly depends—notably those of digestion, secretion and evacuation.

The World's Dispensary, founded by Dr. R. V. Pierce, in Buffalo, N. Y., for the treatment of all chronic, lingering diseases, as well as for the manufacture of his Celebrated Family Medicines, is probably one of the largest medical establishments in the world. Besides the hundreds of cases that consult Dr. Pierce personally at the above establishment, many more are successfully treated at a distance by letter, the necessary medicines being forwarded by mail or express. One of the largest buildings in Buffalo is wholly occupied by the Doctor's immense business. His valuable professional services may be secured by addressing him and enclosing stamp for reply and a printed list of questions to assist in describing case. 673

NATURE GIVES US TEETH, but she does not preserve and purify them. That must be done with fragrant Sozodont. The dental bone and its enamel casing are made invulnerable to all destructive influences by the daily use of this beneficent preparation.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in 1 minute.

☞ Persons suffering with Liver Complaint in any of its various forms will do well to call at Gilbert's Root and Herb Store, and try some of his Liver Lozenges. Many have tried them and are rejoicing today.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is the concentration of sixteen composite parts and can be manufactured only in large quantities. So immediate and powerful is its action that one bottle (selling for 50 cts.) is more potent than any other curative of throat and lung diseases on sale.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Fatal Accident.

At Star Island, Isle of Shoals, Monday, Mr. Frederick A. Lewis, of Somerville, Mass., who had just finished tinning the roof of Poore & Mathes' new hotel, fell to the ground, a distance of fifty-five feet, and lived but ten minutes. He leaves a wife and child. Mr. Lewis was about to leave for home when he fell.

The Past Season.

We are informed that the heaviest fall of snow at any one time during the past winter was sixteen inches, as shown by measurement in the woods about this city. It has been said that the amount of snow in our streets was greater in March than for forty years, but reference to the record of Sunday, March 23d, 1862, kept by A. R. H. Fernald, Esq., at the Kearsarge Mills, disproves the statement. The record reads as follows:—

There are three feet of snow on a level in most of the streets in this city. The farmers say there are four feet of snow on a level in the woods.

Sunday Amusement.

A brisk and indignant young lady from Kittery desires us to make mention of the fact that Mr. Addison Lowery has a dog, which other dogs call on when Sunday comes around, and that a young woman living there amused her friends on the 29th of March by putting turpentine on one of the dogs that had called, another woman holding the dog, which belonged to Wallace Cheever. The lookers-on appeared to think it nice fun, but the young lady who brings us the information says if they could suffer as much as the poor dumb beast did, they might think differently. Evidently the town of Kittery needs a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals. The young lady who brings us the information says in any State but Maine the participants in the fun might be made to suffer, and asks, "Isn't this nice amusement for ladies for Sunday morning?"

The Black Crook

Will have its first representation here this evening: The Providence Herald has the following notice of its third presentation in that city:—

An audience large in numbers and appreciative in spirit greeted the third presentation of the "Black Crook" last evening. Frequent was the applause and not unmerited. The play, though not exciting in the dialogue, is relieved by apparitions unlike anything "in the heavens above, the earth beneath, or the depths under the earth." It is now running smoothly with the exception of the tedious delay before the last transformation scene. The ballet in the 'grotto of Stalacta' led by Mlle. Emma Carle, was one of the most charming features, which found a fitting conclusion in the song pleasingly rendered by Stalacta. The "March of the Amazons" displayed more uniformity in the arms than in many of the other extremes which we are used to attribute to this class of ancient warriors. The dancing of the wonderful Carles was received with peculiar favor and they were several times recalled. The Snow brothers in their acrobatic feats fully sustained their former reputation as among the most wonderful gymnasts and contortionists living. The spectacular and mechanical effects are the best we have ever seen presented in this city, and the final transformation makes a fitting climax to an evening's entertainment full of startling interest and pleasing features.

Secure tickets at Preston's. An excursion party from Great Falls will attend the performance.

Fire Department.

At the annual meetings, Monday evening, the following officers were chosen:—

DEARBORN, No. 1—Foreman, J. Frank Shannon; 1st Asst., J. S. Whidden; 2nd Asst., William P. Stover; Clerk, William E. Pinder; Steward, William B. Gardner; Pipesman, John S. Banks.

SAGAMORE, No. 2—Foreman, Willard Sears; 1st Asst., Thomas R. Moore; 2nd Asst., John A. Durgin; 3d Asst., Frank Junkins; Clerk, Richard T. Call; Steward, Michael H. Gregg; Finance Committee, William B. Randall, James W. Nutter, Wm. S. Norton.

Couldn't Take a Joke.

Practical jokes not untrequently end in a manner which leaves the perpetrators in doubt whether they have done anything so dreadfully funny after all, and they are risky playthings, at the best. Some of the most inveterate practical jokers are consumed with wrath when a joke is played off upon themselves, and there are others who never do anything funny to others nor wish others to do anything funny to them. One of the latter class, in company with a friend, was taking a wagon ride on a hot afternoon not a century ago, and drove out towards Greenland. After passing the Plains the pair overtook two fashionable dressed young fellows in a buggy, and not caring to breathe the suffocating cloud of dust raised by the team they had overtaken, essayed to drive past it, when the young bucks touched their horse with the whip, and soon showed the back of their buggy to the other parties, who, finding they could not pass, checked their steed and fell into line again behind the jokers, whose horse was at once allowed to resume his easy jog-trot, to the intense disgust of the dust-swallowing pair in the rear. Five or six times the maneuvre was repeated, each time with the same result, the young "gentlemen" in the leading team evidently deriving intense enjoyment from the discomfort and impotent wrath of their followers; and then one of the latter ventured a mild remonstrance, as follows:

"I say, gentlemen; will you have the kindness either to drive fast enough to keep out of our way or else let us drive past and get out of your way? We don't find all this dust very agreeable."

This insolent speech drew a shout of derision from the young bloods, one of whom replied: "You don't like it—hey?"

"Well, no," was the reply; "I can't say we do,—not much."

"Well, what if you don't?" returned one of the funny fellows in the leading team; "what are you going to do about it, any way?"

"Well; I don't know," answered the mild individual; "but you will allow me to say that I think your conduct most ungentlemanly."

This vigorous denunciation occasioned a roar of laughter from the jokers, who advised the indignant speaker to "Go to ——," "Soak your head in vinegar," etc., besides giving him other friendly counsel. When their boisterous mirth had somewhat subsided, the remonstrant once more addressed them:

"Then you'll neither get out of our way nor let us pass you?"

"No, we won't," was the sneering answer; "and how are you going to help yourself?"

"I'll show you how, quick," returned the gentle-spoken individual; and suiting the action to the word, he leaned forward and drew from among the straw in the bottom of the wagon a formidable-looking double-barrelled shotgun, and before the jokers had time to fairly realize what an unpleasant affair it was which had so suddenly dawned upon their astonished vision, its breech was resting on the mild man's knee and its muzzle pointing in the air, with both hammers drawn back and his fingers on the triggers, ready for instant use. Addressing his companion he remarked, "Drive past these gentlemen, please;" and turning to the latter he continued, "I hope, gentlemen, you will kindly allow us to pass; this dust is very trying to one's temper."

The funny fellows were seized with such a powerful fit of courtesy that they nearly brought their steed on his haunches, in their eagerness to comply with the mild gentleman's civil request; and no sooner had the other team passed them than they turned, and drove briskly away in the opposite direction. Our informant, who is well acquainted with all the parties, says that one of the young bucks, in giving his account of the affair, remarked: "I'd have prosecuted him if he'd given us anything to hang a law-suit on, but he didn't; he spoke as quiet and civil as could be,—didn't make any threats nor aim the gun at us; but his face was a good deal whiter than his shirt-bosom, and there was blood in his eye, too!"

Some people never can take a joke!

That Uniform.

Messrs Editors;—In a recent issue, I noticed a communication, over the signature of "Citizen and Subscriber," in regard to the uniforms of the Independent Military Company, and as one of the members of that organization, I would ask leave of you for a reply.

In organizing the company, it was done with a view of making it a permanent institution, and for that reason, the members are anxious to select a uniform that will not only serve for parade on the coming Fourth, but for all times in the future.

To get such a uniform as we want, will involve quite a sum of money, and as it seems that the public are awakened to our existence, and begin to feel a little for our welfare, we would ask of them a generous contribution toward our expenses. Papers are now being circulated, and it some of our prominent citizens will open their hearts—and pocketbooks—we shall be able to make a creditable appearance, and one which old Portsmouth will not be ashamed of.

In regard to the matter of uniforms: Swallow-tail coats will be considered, and if matters progress well, we may have them. The city has kindly loaned us the use of the State street ward room for meeting and drill purposes and have also promised to furnish us with arms and equipments. I. M. B.

Laconics.

Lafayette Leighton besides being a good grocer is a nice man. He sent into this office on Monday an advertisement for Tuesday's issue, and the young man who sets the "ads." inadvertently subscribed to it the firm name of Butler & Leighton, instead of Lafayette Leighton as per copy. Accordingly, Mr. Leighton heaped coals of fire upon the head of the sinning compositor by sending him a box of nice Guava Jelly on the following morning, which was so good that it was with the greatest difficulty that the youth could be restrained from repeating the error.

The funeral services of the late Samuel Cleaves will take place at the Middle street church, at two o'clock, this afternoon. Opportunity to look upon the deceased will be given at the church between the hours of one and and two.

Auctioneer Morse commences the assignee's sale of the bankrupt stock of Mason & Seavey at 97 and 99 Market street, this morning at ten o'clock. The sale will be continued on Friday, but not on Thursday, which is Fast Day.

The little "sap" who runs the Lyre says the "city record do not show that he (Mayor Marvin) has done any of the things that the CHRONICLE charges him with." We charged him with being discourteous and impertinent to members of the Board. Is it the duty of a clerk of the Board to record as part of the business of the Board, the presiding officer's want of good manners, Billy? If it is, it is more than you did, while drawing pay as Assistant Clerk of the New Hampshire Senate? We have misrepresented Mayor Marvin in no particular, but reported the recent meeting of the Board, correctly, and the motions as made.

There will be a social gathering at the Methodist vestry on Daniel street, this evening. Oysters, ice cream and other refreshments will be served. A small admission fee will be charged.

The Eastern Railroad will soon put on two more freight trains, making thirteen running every night.

Rev. Dr. Lamson is in town.

The Stone Crusher was set to work, Monday, to transform "bread and cheese rock," on the South Road, into road-mending material. It worked well until Tuesday morning, when it "busted."

Steamer Hercules arrived at this port on Tuesday, 78 hours from Philadelphia, with 1000 tons of coal for E. F. Sise & Co.

A freight train on the Boston & Maine railroad got short of coal at Saco on Saturday, and the engineer had to run the locomotive to Portland for a supply.

Dr. O. Fitzgerald, the wonderful Clairvoyant Physician and Surgeon, will visit Portsmouth again at the Franklin House, Thursday and Friday, Apr. 10th and 11th, remaining two days only. Don't fail to see him; his cures are truly wonderful.

Connecticut Election.

Ingersoll, democrat, is elected by 3616 majority. The vote is small and the republicans of New Haven generally voted for Ingersoll, as he favors New Haven as the capital of the State. The Senate has one republican majority and the House ten democratic. The republicans have elected three of the four Congressmen, Hawley by 1332 majority, (he had 633 last year;) Kellogg by 587 majority, (he had 25 majority in 1871;) Starkweather by 1200 majority, (he had 1474 majority in 1871). Barnum, democrat, has 1200 majority in the fourth district. In 1871, his majority was 1184.

Hartford gave Hawley, republican, within 24 votes of a majority, while Ingersoll, the democratic candidate for Governor has 433 majority. New Haven gave Ingersoll 3800 majority, while English, democratic candidate for Congressman, has but 590 majority in the city.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

Pulmocine Cordial

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment' warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents resting their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SQUILL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1873.

State News.

The dead body of a man was taken out of the Merrimack River, Tuesday morning, near the mouth of the Piscataquog River in Manchester. The same body was seen in the Piscataquog at West Goffstown, Monday afternoon, and ineffectual efforts were made to secure it. It was naked, and all the hair had fallen off the head. The throat was cut and the windpipe was severed. The skin was badly cut and there were three or four various other wounds upon the head and face, which appeared to be caused by an axe. It was apparent that the man had been murdered and that his clothes had been stripped off and the body thrown into the river. The body was found to be that of Frederick G. Merrill of Goffstown, who mysteriously disappeared about the first of October last. At the time Merrill disappeared, blood stains were found upon the floor and walls of a bedroom in his house, situated near Parker's station at Goffstown. He was about forty years of age and was married. Merrill was of intemperate habits, and there are reports of domestic infelicity.

Monday morning two freight trains on the Boston, Lowell and Nashua railroad came into collision on the bridge across the Nashua river. The locomotives were badly injured, but, fortunately, no person was hurt. The accident was the result of the failure of a brakeman to remember his orders.

The clothes-pin mill in Harrisville, owned by John Humphrey, of Keene, was consumed by fire Friday afternoon, March 28th. The machinery, together with about one hundred boxes of manufactured clothes-pins, were burned.

Mr. Chas. Putney of Canaan, on the 23d of March, ate dandelions grown this year, on his own farm; and on the 2d of April, Mr. A. M. Shackford of the same town showed fresh and green grass eighteen inches long, grown under his snow-bank.

The Concord Supreme Judicial Court has awarded Abby D. Jones $950 damages in a breach of promise suit against Walter Gage.

The First Baptist Church of Manchester have got a new $4,000 organ.

On Saturday night Elbridge W. Dudley broke into and entered the store of Francis A. Worden, on Canal street, Nashua, with intent to steal. He was arrested, and, Monday morning, arraigned before Judge Emerson, when he was bound over in the sum of Court. Dudley has served a sentence of three years at the State Prison for a similar offence.

Catastrophe at Rochester, N. Y.

The rains have caused freshets in the North and West. At Rochester, New York, a river-wall of a new city building had its foundations washed away. About twenty persons were on it at the time, watching the rising waters. A dozen or more were carried over High Falls. But five are known to be saved.

Lewiston Correspondence.

Flowed Out—A Railroad Fight—Corporations vs. the People—An Overtaxed City Obtains—Railroad Aid Bonds Issued—An Injunction—A City Treasurer's Freightmen—Business.

LEWISTON, ME., April 8.

Messrs. Editors:—You can attribute the long silence of your correspondence from this vicinity to the long and rigid winter. We have by the approach of April become thawed out sufficiently to pen you a few items.

The railroad excitement which commenced here some over one year since has not subsided, but rather increased as new developments have been discovered by those desiring to defeat the project. It will be remembered in a former letter to the CHRONICLE I commented quite largely upon the desire for a competing line from this city to Portland, the Maine Central having consolidated with the Androscoggin road, the then only competing line. For several years the people have submitted to the burdens and excessive tariffs imposed in consequence of this consolidation, and after a sharp contest, the legislature granted the cities of Lewiston and Auburn a charter for a railroad from this city to the Grand Trunk, a distance of about six miles. The two cities voted almost unanimously to loan their credit to build the branch. The Maine Central brought everything possible to bear to defeat the plan, put down the fare and freights, hoping to inveigle the people to give up the matter, and also made contracts with the manufacturing corporations for fifteen years at a very low figure. The corporations, thus securing satisfactory terms, joined with a few dissatisfied citizens and have left no stone unturned in trying to defeat the building of the road.

Auburn paid her proportion of the loan without molestation, and the road was commenced last January, but the finance committee of our city government, composed largely of corporation agents and overseers, refused to issue the bonds of the city to meet the assessment required by the directors of the road, and carry out the almost unanimous desire of the citizens. An injunction was applied for in February, and upon hearing the judge dismissed the case for want of jurisdiction. The parties taking the contracts for the road proceeded unmolested without any installment from this city, and the matter was made a special issue in the recent city election, and the Mayor, Councilmen and Aldermen elected were all in favor of building the road, and were elected almost unanimously. The first official business after organization of the new city government was an order for the issue of $100,000 in bonds to pay the indebtedness of the city. No sooner were the bonds authorized to be issued, than an injunction was served upon the City Treasurer, restraining him from paying any money for the Lewiston and Auburn railroad. The "stay of proceedings" was served last Thursday evening at ten o'clock, but on Friday some of these professional gentlemen observed a technicality in the warrant served, and the whole thing was informal, and off they started to get the instrument made legal, but our city treasurer, feeling free on account of the blunder, and being wide awake, walked over to the treasurer of the railroad company and paid him fifty per cent. of the subscription, amounting to about $112,000. The second injunction has been served and the hearing will take place next week before the Supreme Court in Auburn. I hardly think that any judge can be found to grant the injunction restraining the city from aiding in building a railroad, after the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court.

Our new city buildings are completed, and all the City officers are cosily located therein. The cost is a little rising $200,000, and I think compares favorably with your own "Jefferson Market."

The building season has just opened, and bids fair to be good; the demand for carpenters is great. One cotton mill is nearly completed and I think it is the largest in New England, the number of spindles under one roof being 70,000. It is said that 10,000 spindles increases the population 1000 souls.

Our population at present is estimated at about 18,000. The French population affords at present the largest increase, the majority of which are Catholics. A new French Catholic church is in process of completion at a cost of about $40,000. The Irish Catholics have completed a church at a cost of about $60,000.

The ice in the Androscoggin has not yet broken up, but is melting away gradually. The weather is favorable, and it is hoped now that we may be relieved from the freshet that was at one time anticipated. H.

—The intelligent reader will see that these two lines complete the column.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Reunion.

An interesting meeting of the committee of one hundred was held at the Council room, Tuesday evening, Ex-Governor Goodwin presiding. By invitation, Col. K. R. Goodrich of the New York committee of Sons was present and addressed the meeting. Col. Goodrich is chairman of the committee on transportation and announced that he had succeeded in obtaining for the New York delegation half fare rates to Boston and return,—$5 each for the round trip. His attempts to arrange similarly with the Eastern Railroad had thus far been unsuccessful, Manager Hatch having stated that the charge to each person from Boston to Portsmouth and return would probably be three dollars. Governor Goodwin thought the matter might be arranged at half fare rates, and Hon. Frank Jones, one of the directors of the Road, who came into the committee meeting while the subject was under discussion, stated that arrangements could probably be made for half fare if the New Yorkers should come to Portsmouth on the 3d of July, the road being taxed to its utmost capacity on the Fourth. Should this arrangement be perfected, it is the intention of the Narragansett Steamship Company to ticket the delegation through to Portsmouth for one fare, furnishing return tickets free.

Col. Goodrich, on being called on for a report of the feeling among the New Yorkers, replied that their business had been nearly finished, and every daughter and son of Portsmouth would be ready to come immediately if necessary. [Applause]. In their behalf he would say that a tender of an escort (understood to be a battalion of the 9th New York regiment with one company to be commanded by a son of Portsmouth, Capt. Prescott,) had been made, and if agreeable to the committee, the escort (of 300 to 500 men) would be accepted.

Governor Goodwin thought this matter should be well considered before deciding. Portsmouth would welcome her returning sons and daughters to the old homestead, and the only difficulty about the escort would be the matter of lodging them, subsistence being abundant.

Other members of the committee thought if the battalion should camp out in true soldier style, they might enjoy themselves better. After a free interchange of opinion, the matter was referred to the Committee on Invitations to report to an adjourned meeting of the general committee next Saturday evening. Col. Sise, chairman of the invitation committee, notified the members present that the committee would meet at the CHRONICLE office on Friday evening at half past seven o'clock. The general sentiment seems to be favorable to accepting the proffered escort. One member stated that New York and Boston were vieing with each other as to which should make the best appearance, and as Bostonians will largely outnumber New Yorkers, and the best military band in the country had been already engaged, it would be a pleasant feature to all concerned if the battalion came too. [Applause.]

Major Vaughan, chairman of the programme committee, reported that it had been decided to have a reception of the returning host as they enter the city, with a procession, military, floral and industrial, and a collation, followed by a promenade concert and fireworks in the evening. The subject of a regatta and other matters await the action of the city government on the appropriation bill. It is desired that all the features of the celebration of 1853 be repeated.

Dr. Preston (and others) discussed the amount necessary to carry out the celebration as proposed, saying that $10,000 must be had—not one cent less. On his motion, a recommendation to the City Councils, asking that at the next meeting they appropriate $10,000 for the celebration, which was generally concurred in by the committee, was passed unanimously, the chairman stating that the whole sum would not be expended if not needed.

Mr. Thos. S. Nowell, from the Committee on Music, reported that the Bostonians would bring three bands, and he thought an open-air concert might be arranged. Col. Goodrich stated that the matter had been talked over in New York, and if the Boston people would have Gilmore's band in Portsmouth on the 3d of July, he would suggest a grand promenade concert with admission fee, under the control of the home committee, the proceeds to go to some charitable object or public enterprise. [Applause]. He said Downing's and Gilmore's bands had played together before, their instruments being similarly pitched.

The committee had by this time become quite enthusiastic, many being present for the first time. A general discussion ensued, in which Messrs. James P. Bartlett, J. Albert Sanborn, T. S. Nowell, Dr. John W. Parsons, William H. Hackett, William H. Sise, Augustus W. Odiorne, John E. Colcord, E. A. Tilton and others participated. Finally, a resolution for the appointment of an executive committee of thirty, which had been passed, was reconsidered and laid on the table. Adjourned to Saturday evening.

Coming Events.

A Portsmouth correspondent of the Concord Monitor says:—

In a short time all trains from Concord will run into the Eastern depot in this city, making sure and close connections for the east and all places on the Great Falls & Conway Railroad, and early in the fall our Portsmouth & Dover Railroad will be done, and then passengers from the Concord Road for Dover can come direct to Portsmouth, make close connection with that road, and proceed to Dover in twenty minutes, thus avoiding the delay at the Junction, and getting home some time sooner.

It is reported that a movement is on foot to put Col. George Marston, of Sandown, in Maj. Daniel J. Vaughan's place, as pension agent. However much any one may want to see the Col. have such a position as he deserves, the removal of Maj. Vaughan, who carries the scar of the rebel bullet in his cheek, will cause a breach in the Republican ranks in this vicinity, if not throughout the State, not easily mended.

Gubernatorial.

We learn that the republicans of New Hampshire will put in nomination for the gubernatorial chair, this fall, the Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, of Portsmouth. The name of no person would more conduce to harmonize all conflicting elements of party, and his past unimpeachable record eminently befits him as a most judicious selection.—Little Rock (Arkansas) Republican.

The compliment to our honored fellow citizen is well merited. The nomination a year or more ago would have come to a Portsmouth candidate had there been no wire-pulling. Like our friends in Connecticut we are in no condition to weaken the ticket by forced nominations for office. The republicans of Portsmouth have always rallied valiantly for the gubernatorial nominees of the party, and present in the person of Hon. William H. Y. Hackett a candidate above reproach, a man who has honored every position he has held, a tried and true republican, able, discreet and popular. We earnestly hope that he may head the ticket at the next election. His nomination would be heartily ratified at the polls.

Laconics.

After a prolonged discussion, Tuesday evening, the Mechanics' Association instructed the board of officers to obtain plans and estimates for building a three-story wooden block on Congress street.

It is understood that Mr. Albert Laighton has accepted the invitation of the Literary Committee to deliver a welcome poem on the Fourth.

Morning service will be held at the Unitarian church to-day at the usual hour.

Mr. Stephen F. Shaw, one of Saco's live young men, who has been of late doing clerical duty in the department of Steam Engineering at the Navy Yard, has purchased the stock and good-will of a leading drug gist establishment at Rochester, and will soon remove there. Meanwhile, our Maine neighbors are struggling for the position Mr. Shaw leaves.

At the annual meeting of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co. No. 3 held at their house Tuesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Foreman, Ira C. Seymour; 1*st Asst.*, Willard J. Sampson; 2*d. Asst.* Wm. Seymour; Clerk, Wm. S. Hazel; Steward, Chas. N. Merrill; Pipeman, Chas. W. Coleman. Ira C. Seymour was elected Trustee of the Firemen's Relief Association.

The third annual Ball of the Wolf Tone Club will be given in Congress Hall on the evening of Easter Monday, April 14th, Turner's Quadrille Band furnishing the music.

An attempt was recently made to raise the wreck of Schooner Addison Gilbert, sunk in the lower harbor some months since by collision with a stone-laden sloop. The first trial was unsuccessful and the attempt has been abandoned.

This being Fast Day we shall issue no paper to-morrow.

The more hardy varieties of loafers are beginning to appear.

Auctioneer Morse continues the sale of Mason & Seavey's bankrupt stock to-morrow at Nos. 97 and 99 Market street.

Mr. A. J. Penballow will deliver a temperance address at the Court House this afternoon, and a lively discussion on temperance is anticipated.

The Black Crook

Drew a large audience, last evening, and closes with to-night's performance. There is no merit in the play itself, but the rich dresses, the ballet dancing and the gymnastic performances are worth seeing by those who prefer such amusements. It is the best spectacular entertainment ever given in Portsmouth. The Snow Brothers and Miss Emma Carlo are the principal attractions, outside of the regular ballet troupe, the latter absorbing the interest of Young America to a great extent. The closing transformation scene is brilliantly beautiful.

Mr. Lamprey's School.

An advertisement in another column announces the prospective opening of Mr. Samuel Lamprey's juvenile Dancing School, at Congress Hall, on the afternoon of Wednesday next. It would be superfluous to say anything in commendation of Mr. Lamprey's ability and thoroughness as an instructor, to those parents whose children are of suitable age to attend his school, as most of the parents have themselves profited by the instructions of the same teacher in days gone by. The simple announcement that the school is to be taught by Mr. Lamprey carries with it an assurance that the pupils will receive all the attention and information necessary to enable them to acquire thoroughly the graceful, healthful and pleasure-yielding accomplishment of dancing. For terms, etc., see advertisement.

Dr. O. Fitzgerald, the wonderful Clairvoyant Physician and Surgeon, will visit Portsmouth again at the Franklin House, Thursday and Friday, Apr. 10th and 11th, remaining two days only. Don't fail to see him; his cures are truly wonderful.

The Chronicle.

The New England Historical and Genealogical Register and Agricultural Journal, for April, is just issued, and is well filled, as usual with matter of special interest to those who enjoy N. E. history. The Register is published quarterly, at $3 per annum. Col. Albert H. Hoyt, favorably known in this vicinity, is the editor—in which capacity he has performed a vast amount of intelligent and useful service, can assure, as most such work is wholly done. Portsmouth, and the State, should have a good list of subscribers for this Magazine.

THE MAYOR AND THE MULE.—The energy of the good Mayor of Cincinnati is cropping out daily in new ways, and the gradual stoppage of the German dances over the Rhine has enabled him to get to bed much earlier. He was the object of marked admiration, two mornings ago, among the passengers in a street railway car on the North Side. The driver was cursing loudly because the car-track was choked up by one of Proctor & Gamble's soap-fat wagons, the mules attached to which refused to budge. The soap-fat man and the car-driver took turns at cursing, but the mules stood stock-still. Just then the good Mayor, who was sitting in the car, folded up, with a June-like smile, a copy of the Enquirer which he had been reading, and, with that inimitable air of humility which he so beautifully assumes, got up, and, giving his coat-tails a twitch, as a small boy pauperizer, went out and grabbed the near off the nearest mule with a grasp so firm and strong that the beast gave way at once, and the soap-fat cart lumbered off the track, leaving the progress of the car unimpeded. With a smile more winning than before, and a dash of color in his yellow cheeks, the great man re-entered the car, and would have resumed his seat and the reading of the Enquirer, only that the stubborn cub he had left his seat in care of refused to surrender.—CIN. Enquirer.

—A heedless boy having flung a pebble in the direction of a basking lizard, that reptile's tail disengaged itself, and for some distance away. One of the properties of a lizard's tail lower is to leave the main body at the slightest intimation of danger. "There goes that vexatious narrative again," exclaimed the lizard, pettishly; "I never had such a tail in my life! Its restless tendency to divorce upon insufficient grounds is enough to harrow the reptilian soul!—Now," he continued backing up to the fugitive part, perhaps you will be good enough to resume your connection with the parent establishment." No sooner was the splice effected than an astronomer passing that way casually remarked to a friend that he had just sighted a comet. Supposing itself mentioned, the lizard made again sprang away, coming down plump before the horny nose of a sparrow. Here its career terminated. We sometimes escape from an imaginable danger, only to find some real persecutor has a bill against us.—Fables of Zambri the Parsee.

—The Vicksburg Times reports the strange conduct of a brewer—one Thomas cat of that city. It appears that this remarkable feline is discontented with the position assigned him in the animal kingdom, and desires the more respected occupation of the farmyard hen. He persists in sitting upon a nest of eggs evidently for the purpose of hatching them, as he is never absent from his charge except when supplying himself with food, and he has an advantage over the domestic fowl, inasmuch as he carries his food to the nest, where he can dispose of it at leisure without neglecting the duties of his calling. At last accounts three of the chickens had broken their shells and were tenderly cared for by their strange protector, who immediately cast the tenantless eggs out of the nest and was anxiously awaiting the appearance of the remainder of the brood. All the chickens are spoken for, and we understand that Mr. Y. P. Dedrick of Vicksburg, Miss., is the owner of this new domestic animal egg-hatching machine.

—It will be seen by the mortality report of the past week that more than three times the number of persons died in this city from cerebro-spinal meningitis than from small-pox, and the number of cases seems to be rapidly increasing. The causes and cure of this malady are said to be alike mysterious. The patient becomes paralyzed in a measure, and his head is thrown back by curvature of the spine, creating intense pain. Before death, however, the body assumes a natural position, and dissolution is comparatively painless. There is no wasting away of the system; on the contrary, some are said to have actually gained in weight during their illness, and all appear to eat and drink naturally. Outside of Boston the disease is termed "spotted fever," but eminent physicians claim that this is a misnomer.—Boston Post.

—A scene not on the bills was exhibited in the dress circle of a Boston theatre, Thursday evening. The Traveller says that the characters in the play were a lady teacher of music and a railroad man who had visited the theatre in each other's company. There occurred some difficulty between them. Word followed word until, finally, the lady drew and cocked a revolver, placing the muzzle at the side of her companion, with an avowal of her intention to shoot. She was quickly disarmed and taken out of the building. No cause is known for the act.

Says Rev. Talmage to his flock: "Ye are the anti-potrefactic of the earth." Impossible, or they would have abated Talmage long ago.—New Haven Palladium.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

Pulmocine Cordial

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Disease. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As a stitch in time saves nine, so does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is little hope) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SQUILL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE UNSATISFACTORY PRESSMAN.—We were not satisfied with the way the press-work looked, last week, so we cautiously descended the stairs, and arrived in safety at the Blue press, guided by a stolid, portly party from the Vaterland. He didn't look 'round as we came near him, and in reply to our elaborately polite salutation he remarked "Morn'in" and relapsed into silence. Then we said, "We regret exceedingly to notice that the presswork is very defective in the last number of the Weekly—you don't ink up enough." "So," (An inflection of calm surprise that ink or anything else of a material kind should disturb the editorial mind, which should be fixed in contemplation of the conscious Ego.) "Yes," said we, with vigor, "it's very bad indeed." "When it not looks just right, so can I not other make" said the printer, with a ponderous placidity that would, in comparison, make a ruminating cow appear frivolous and excitable. We are of a naturally amiable disposition—that is, we were, before the upas-tree of independent journalism blighted our young life—but we couldn't stand this sort of thing. So we said "You ancient fraud, do you mean to say that you can't print better than this?" and we displayed a copy of the Weekly. "Arch, I can very good brint—and it don't was wort while no more to say on" returned the printer, with a bland expression of countenance. "Do you call that good printing?" asked we. "It don't was very black—but it was been goot edited—don't it?" was the reply. We were not to be mollified however, by this complimentary evasion; and said with enough stern dignity for the whole Forty-second Congress, "If the next week's paper doesn't look better than this, we must find another man to take your place." Thus it was that we conquered; the printer looked at us sadly and said "You was better not off send me—when once I go so shall you not in der Ewigheit another so goot brinter. find—when you in the sanctum shall sit, you will another man har drive too fast the press, and away wears the types—so have I never made. I don't was here more any business so must I away go, when you not say 'Stay by us my friend, thou!' Ach! so is all ended!" And the printer slowly eliminated from the depths of a capacious pocket in the back of his coat, a large blue cotton bandkerchief and wept with one eye, keeping the other on the press which was clanging away in great style. We couldn't stand this touching scene—we thought of those sublime words, "I am a Me," and supposed the printer must be a Me (We're not—we are a WE!) So we said gently, "Well, never mind, you generally do pretty well, you can stay on—in the words of our mutual friend, Rip Van Wickle, 'We won't count this time—here's to you and your family, and may you live long and prosper.'" So we shouted for the local reporter to lend us a cigar, which we presented to the printer, by way of consequential damages; then we ascended those perpendicular stairs, and resumed our editorial duties.—Atlanta Weekly.

A PANIC PREVENTED.—Steamer Elm City ran ashore near Hell Gate on the 8th, on her way out from New York with 100 passengers, a fog prevailing. The captain was with the pilot in the pilot-house, and the hour was after one in the morning. He knew that there was an abrupt turn at Throgg's Point, just above, but as the fog was too dense to permit the light to be seen, he expected to hear the bell which the lighthouse keeper is required to set ringing in thick weather. He did not hear it, so he whistled for the signal again and again, and lay to for a few minutes. Receiving no answer, he steered ahead through the darkness for seven minutes, steering by compass. Thinking that he had then reached the point, he changed the steamer's course by hauling up a half point to the northward, to make sure of clearing the Stepping-stones Reef, which is northeast from Throgg's Point. Suddenly the ship struck with a shock heavy enough to immediately arouse all the passengers, among whom the greatest excitement was caused. There was a scramble for life-preservers and all began hastily dressing. The captain was on the saloon deck at the moment, and, realizing his position, had presence of mind enough to seize a newspaper, coolly put a cigar in his mouth, and walk leisurely forward, assuring the frightened passengers that there was no danger. He walked very slowly, he said, pretending to be smoking his cigar, but he was "in considerable of a hurry," to use his own words. The ship's boats were immediately lowered, the life-rafts floated, and the passengers informed that they would be put ashore at once, if they desired it, but they were advised to stay aboard for the present, as there was no immediate danger of the ship sinking. The captain soon quieted the fears of his passengers, whose conduct he praised highly, and all consented to remain. They all stayed on board until daylight, when the propeller New Haven, of the same line, which passed on its way to the City, was signalled. All the passengers were safely transferred to her, and taken back to New York. The steamer was stove in amidships and the main deck was badly sprung. She filled in about a half hour, and settled down on the rocks with the water above her deck. At low tide there is only five feet of water on this reef, and the tide rises about five feet.

Terrible Calamity.

The city of San Salvador, capital of the Central American Republic of that name, has been destroyed by an earthquake, causing terrible loss of life. Eight hundred persons perished, and property valued at $12,000,000 was destroyed. The earthquake was followed by a fire, and many buildings were burned.

In the last letter Mr. Albert Sumner, one of the Atlantic's lost passengers, sent home from Europe he enclosed his photograph, with the words, "Coming events cast their shadows before." How little he thought then he was so soon to pass through the valley of the shadow of death!

Among the incidents of the Atlantic disaster is the discovery that one of the sailors, who had served for three voyages, and was very popular as a shipmate, drinking, chewing and smoking with the rest, like any jolly tar, was a young American woman about twenty-five years of age. Her sex remained undiscovered until her body was washed ashore. Where she came from or what her real name was is still unknown.

A medical writer, alluding to the degeneracy of the teeth of the present race of human beings, speculates that one of the modes by which our race will become extinct will be by the ultimate development of an edentulous race incapable of mastication, and therefore of inadequate nutrition.

The Denver Times records the killing of a white buffalo, by Mr. J. T. Morgan, in that vicinity. It says this is the first instance of a white buffalo having been shot by a white man, though the Indians have occasionally found one. Mr. Morgan has been constantly engaged in hunting for several years, and this is the first white buffalo he ever saw or heard of during that time. The buffalo is a yearling, and no colored spots appear upon him. Mr. Morgan has been offered $200 for it.

Business Notices.

WELLS' GRAND DISTRIBUTION.—The committee, after drawing nearly one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, have decided to postpone the drawing until July 1st, 1873. This will positively be the last postponement W. B. Lowd, Agent.

In his book on Chronic Diseases Dr. Pierce says of his Golden Medical Discovery:

"God, I believe, has instilled into the roots and plants from which this wonderful medicine is extracted, the healing properties, by the use of which Consumption, the scourge of the human family, may be promptly arrested and permanently cured. I do not wish to delude, flatter and then disappoint the afflicted by asserting that this can be accomplished when the lungs are half consumed, as many do who, being devoid of all conscience, aim to humbug the afflicted, that they may sell their often worse than worthless compounds. But if my Golden Medical Discovery is employed in the first or early stages of the disease, I know from ample observation and actual test in hundreds of cases, that it will arrest the disease and restore health and strength." 616.

The only scientific, rational and successful mode of treating Catarrh in the head, that has been devised, consists in applying Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche (the only method of reaching the upper chambers of the nose) and taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as Constitutional treatment. To this thorough course of treatment the disease yields as surely as fire is extinguished by water. The Douche and two medicines for $2 by all druggists. 591.

A FRAGRANT BREATH AND PEARLY TEETH.—Are easily attained, and those who fail to avail themselves of the means, should not complain, when accused of gross neglect. The Sozodont will speedily eradicate he cause of a foul breath, beautifying and preserving the teeth to the oldest age.

AT THIS VERY HOUR Thousands are suffering from fever and ague, of languishing in that condition of debility which the variable weather of the season is apt to produce, especially if the nervous system be particularly sensitive and the physique delicate rather than robust. All these sufferers, however much they may deserve sympathy, are nevertheless the victims of their own want of forecast. A course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, commenced a month ago, would have exempted them from their present troubles. Having neglected prevention, let them at once adopt the means of cure. A wineglassful of that genial vegetable tonic and alterative taken twice or thrice a day, for a week or two, will afford effectual relief in any case of intermittent or remittent fever, chronic indigestion, constipation, biliousness or nervous weakness, and a perseverence in the use of the restorative will prevent the possibility of a relapse.

For all throat diseases and especially Coughs, Colds, &c., there is no known remedy equal to Buchman's Pulmocine, and a few doses will satisfy the most skeptical of its efficacy. For sale at the Union Store.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

City Councils.

Fast Day evidently had a subdued effect on the minds of the members of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, and the spice which excited so much interest at the preceding meeting was wanting, the member from the rural districts taking a few quiet snubs from the Mayor with becoming equanimity and good-nature. A lively time was expected, but for some reason not made public, the majority of the Board laid low, and nothing quickened their pulses.

An application made by Albert Clark for leave to erect a refreshment stand for the 4th of July between the Market and Bank was laid on the table.

A petition from the Independent Military Company, for aid in purchasing uniforms, the citizens not having subscribed liberally, was referred to the Finance Committee.

On the petition of four sextons of the city churches, Mr. Geo. W. Ayers was appointed keeper of the city hearse.

The resignation of Mr. William E. Rand as member of the 3d Ward school committee was accepted and a communication signed by Thos. H. Odion and other democrats, asking the appointment of Chas. W. Gardner to the vacancy, was read. The Board balloted and Mr. Gardner received a unanimous election.

Benj. Atwell was appointed to take the vital statistics of the first Ward.

A communication from Mr. Chas. A. Tufts of Dover, relative to the joint celebration of the 250th anniversary of the settlement of Dover and Portsmouth, was read, and Aldermen Spinney and Sise, with the mayor added, were appointed a committee to confer with the Dover city councils.

At eight o'clock, the Board met the Common Council in joint convention for the choice of city officers, the following persons being chosen for the ensuing year:—

City Physician, Samuel C. Whittier.

Superintendent of Almshouse and Keeper of House of Correction, Haven L. Scott.

Lot Layer, A. C. Hoyt.

Lamp Lighter, Foxwell C. Staples.

Sealer of Weights & Measures, John P. Sweetser.

Pound Keeper, Samuel Ham.

Keeper of Powder Magazine, Charles Robinson.

Harbor Master, Floron Barri.

Port Wardens, John R. Holbrook, Floron Barri, George T. Vaughan.

Measurers of Wood, Daniel H. Spinney, William Bodge, Jeremiah D. Goodrich, Joseph Spinney, Robert Roberts, James H. Thompson, Frank W. Rand, Thomas H. Odion, George Wingate, George T. Ingraham, Jr., Frederick W. Rogers.

Surveyors of Lumber, Benjamin M. Parker, Jeremiah D. Goodrich, James Moses, William Bodge, Daniel Littlefield, Daniel McIntire, James A. Rugg, Charles Stimpson, Richard T. Call, George Wingate, George T. Ingraham, Jr., Frank W. Rand.

Inspector of Flour, Charles Robinson.

Fence Viewers, George E. Hodgdon, Calvin Page.

City Weighers, Robert Roberts, Elias Ayers.

Surveyors of Highways: Ward 1, Allen Greenough. Ward 2, Stephen Marden. Ward 3, James S. Seavey.

City Messenger, Willis L. Hidden.

City Solicitor, William H. Hackett.

City Treasurer, Charles A. Shannon.

Street Commissioner, Wm. F. Ham.

There was but little opposition to the nominations of the republican caucus, the nominees being successful in every case.

For City Physician, Dr. Whittier had 10 votes, Dr. Parsons 4, Dr. Norton 4.

For Superintendent of the City Farm, Haven L. Scott had 16 of the 17 votes cast.

Previous to balloting for City Messenger, a petition favoring the election of Mr. Samuel Dodge to that position was read. As there seemed to be no reason why the present efficient Messenger should be turned out of office, and as the election of Mr. Dodge would be offering a reward to bolters from regular nominations of the party, Mr. Dodge having aided the citizens' movement and by his one vote defeating the republican nominee for Mayor, the petition was instantly laid on the table. The ballot for City Messenger was quite complimentary to Mr. Hidden, who received 15 votes to 3 for Mr. Dodge, one of the democrats voting for Mr. Hidden.

For Treasurer, Charles A. Shannon had 14, Samuel W. Moses 4.

For Street Commissioner, William F. Ham had 14, Joseph R. Holmes 4.

The convention then rose and the Mayor and Alderman returned to their room and resumed regular business. A communication from the citizens' committee asking the appointment of committees by the City Councils to cooperate with the citizens' committee in the reception of the Sons, was read.

Alderman Wilson declared his opposition to such a measure, as tending to implicate the city in debts incurred. He knew the city would in the end pay some of the expenses of the reception, but thought the appointment of committees unnecessary. Either a sum should be agreed on and the appropriation be paid over to the citizens' committee, or a joint committee of the City Councils should be appointed to expend the money and have no co-operative dealings except to receive suggestions from the citizens' committee. On motion of Alderman Spinney, the communication was laid on the table. On motion of Alderman Sise it was voted that a special meeting of the Board be held on Tuesday evening to consider fully the Fourth of July business. [As the Barnabee concert will come off that evening, there will probably be no quorum of the Board.]

The Board proceeded to the election of officers. Frank B. Johnson was re-elected City Marshal, receiving eight votes, all there were cast.

For Assistant Marshals, Thomas Entwistle had seven, William H. Jellison 4, Chas. W. Shannon 3. The Mayor declared Mr. Entwistle elected—

Then the master with a gesture of command, and interposed his wondrous veto power against the choice of Mr. Jellison. Then there was a great calm, and a second ballot for one Assistant Marshal. Mr. Jellison had four and Mr. Shannon three. The Mayor crushed out all hope of an election by again showing what a negative individual was he. The Board proceeded to elect six Police officers, Constables and Watchmen, and Richard Davidson, Thomas E. Rand, C. Wesley Rand, J. Sullivan Rand, and George J. Fernald were declared elected, receiving eight votes. And here is where the laugh comes in! Eight votes were cast on one piece of paper for six officers. Mr. Jellison's name was scratched on one ballot, so that he had three votes and Henry Wallace four. The Mayor declared that five votes were necessary to elect the first five, and only four the last one. Ergo, Mr. Wallace, having four votes, was declared chosen. The Board swallowed the dose as if it were a blessing in disguise, and then chose William F. Batten for supernumerary.

Charles A. Shannon received six votes for Collector, Samuel W. Moses one.

Stephen L. Marston had six votes for Chief Engineer, Wm. B. Grogan two.

The following officers were chosen unanimously:—

Health Officers, Samuel C. Whittier, Robert Shillaber, Anthony F. Nowell.

Assistant Engineers, Francis W. Ham, Matthew T. Betton, James A. Waterhouse, Hiram C. Locke.

Secretary of Fire Department, Willis L. Hidden.

Steam Engineers, William H. Lovell, A. J. McIntire, Charles Manent.

Firemen of Steamers, William Hudson, Charles Cummings, George N. Jones.

The COMMON COUNCIL passed the joint resolution asking the representatives in the legislature to secure the passage of a law closing the polls at all elections as early as six o'clock, P. M.

The ordinance reconstructing the fire department was amended and passed. It reduces the number of each fire company to twenty, and rates the pay as follows:—

Chief Engineer, $200; Asst. Eng'rs, $50 each; Secretary Fire Department $25; Steam Engineers, $85 each; Firemen, $150 each; Foremen, $45 each; Drivers, $25 each; Company Clerks, $20 each; Members, $40 each.

Both Boards adjourned to Tuesday evening.

Fire at Newcastle.

At about 7 o'clock, Friday morning, fire was discovered in the grocery store of Mr. Howard M. Curtis, at Newcastle. The stock was nearly ruined by fire and water, but the building was saved in a badly damaged condition. Mr. Curtis had $1000 insurance on his stock, and $400 on the building. The fire was discovered by some persons who attended the Black Crook entertainment in this city, as they were returning home. Observing smoke coming through the shutter of the store, they aroused their townsmen, broke in the door, tore off the shutter, and three wells being near at hand, formed lines and passed water for an hour, working like beavers. The prompt discovery of the fire saved a more disastrous conflagration. It caught, evidently, inside the store, as the shutter was found locked and the fire burned nearly through the side of the building and door.

Can't Be Beat.

Under the superintendence of Mr. Samuel A. Barrett, of the Concord & Portsmouth Railroad, the cargo of 1040 tons coal of steamer Hercules, consigned to E. F. Sise & Co., was discharged in just twenty hours.

The Sons of Portsmouth

In response to repeated calls, Mr. Frank Goodwin, the president of the association, made a brief speech, in which he thanked his fellow-townsmen for the honor they had conferred upon him, and promised to use his utmost efforts to make their coming visit to Portsmouth a success in every respect. It was not common, he said, to see so many men, many of them unacquainted with each other, assembled together with such friendly and cordial unanimity, but the sight was a beautiful one when it was taken into account that they were all bound together by the strong tie of a common home. The coming visit to the home of their youth had in it a triple significance—they were going home to celebrate the Fourth of July, they were also to celebrate the 250th anniversary of their native city, and, finally, it was to be a grand welcome to their beloved home. Mr. Goodwin then spoke of the glory of the sons of Portsmouth in former days, and notably of their achievements in the revolution of the colonies. It was not generally known, he said, but nevertheless it was true, that the first real opposition to the British troops was offered by Portsmouth men, who, under the leadership of Langdon, Pickering and Sullivan, in 1774, attacked Fort William and Mary, and, after a vigorous resistance on the part of the garrison, captured it, and the ammunition taken from that fort was afterward used at the battle of Bunker Hill. Speeches were also made by Messrs. Fields, Woodbury, Gookin, Kennard, Nowell and others, and the meeting adjourned subject to the call of the president.

Dr. Fitzgerald,

Whose wonderful cures have excited so much interest, has been in this city for two days, and his rooms at the Franklin House have been thronged with patients. Wherever the Doctor goes, the same result is arrived at. His clairvoyant abilities attract people from far and near, and as he flits from Maine to Massachusetts and New Hampshire, crowds of invalids and curiously inclined people await his coming at the hotels. Whether the Doctor's good looks have anything to do with it, we cannot say. He is a fine specimen of physical manhood, standing nearly six feet and seven inches. We do know, however, that his fame as a physician and surgeon is well merited and that he meets with great success in curing "the ills that flesh is heir to," hereabouts.

Soon Caught.

On Wednesday afternoon City Marshall Johnson received a telegram from the railroad station agent at Salmon Falls, informing him that a man had been robbed on the track between that place and Great Falls, and that three men who were suspected of being the guilty parties were on the train which was due here at half past five o'clock. The Marshal was at the depot on the arrival of that train, but the looked for men were not in it; the conductor, however, said that three men had left the train at Kittery, and the Marshal and Officer Entwistle at once set out to secure an interview with them. On reaching Congress street the officers sighted three persons whom they thought would be likely to commit a robbery if they had a chance, and took them to the lockup. The Great Falls police were notified of the arrest, and Officer Huntley of that place arrived in this city on Thursday night, bringing with him the victim of the robbery, a Frenchman named Anthoine Bouley, who identify the three men as being the ones who robbed him. They stole from him a pocket-book containing $9.75, but missed finding over $200, which he carried concealed in his coat and hat. They give the names of William Cooper, Patrick Heeney and John Carter, and will probably find their little game of highway robbery the poorest-paying job they ever performed. They were taken to Great Falls for trial. Portsmouth is one of the meanest cities of refuge for criminals in this country.

On Friday the rascals were arraigned before a magistrate in Great Falls, and held in $600 bonds each for trial before a higher court.

Fast Day

Was bright, warm and pleasant, more agreeable and Spring-like than any which had preceded it; and many persons took advantage of it to come out of the houses in which they had so long been buried, and see if the sun looked the same as it did last Autumn. The congregations in the churches where services were held were not large, but the "Black Crook" performance at the Temple was well attended in the evening. "Punch and Judy" had large audiences of quiet, well-behaved people on Market Square, particularly during the afternoon, and in the suburbs of the city the numerous small boys who were banging away at small birds with guns, all day, created a sound and smell like that of a half-grown 4th of July. The havoc among the blackbirds, sparrows and other little birds was painful to contemplate, and we have not the pleasure of announcing the accidental shooting of over one of their assassins. Some time ago it was rumored that the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was intending to send a car-load of undesirable babies to the West, to feed the poor starving wolves. This benevolent scheme, we believe, was never carried out, and we would suggest to the society with the long name that it should be, and that it would be well to substitute boys who have arrived at the age when they want to shoot sparrows and chickadees, for the babies.

Kearsarge S. F. Engine Co. No. 3, had a social assembly at Congress Hall in the evening.

Laconics.

The New York Graphic advises all the Sons of Portsmouth to return next Fourth of July as the place will "be annexed to Boston next year."

A Union Temperance meeting will be held on Sunday evening at 7 1-2 o'clock at the Temple. Rev. Carlos Martyn, will deliver a lecture and a triple quartette will furnish music. An admission fee of ten cents will be charged. The old Temple ought to be filled, as it doubtless will be.

Mr. Seavey will open a fresh lot of garden seeds to-day at Nos. 77 and 79 Market street.

Garibaldi Hook & Ladder Co. No. 1; at a regular meeting held on the evening of the 7th, elected the following officers for the current year: Samuel H. Kingsbury, foreman; James R. Morrison, 2d foreman; E. J. Moulton, clerk; Daniel B. Wendell, steward; Samuel S. Fletcher, trustee on behalf of the company for Firemen's Relief Association.

And now we are promised a feast of comedy by the appearance of Mr. John E. Owens at the Temple on the 23d.

Prof. Jaques on Fast night was presented with a $25 copy of Cassell's Bible by his singing school, Rev. Lot L. Harmon making the presentation speech, to which Mr. Jaques responded, thanking the donors for their gift, saying he only did his duty, which any one would do when paid for it.

Mr. James B. Pray of this city has been drawn on the jury for the present term of Court at Exeter.

Mrs. Emma E. Weston of East Boston will hold public test circles at Mendum's Hall, Congress street, to-morrow afternoon and evening. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged at the door. Doors close at 3:15 in the afternoon and 7:30 in the evening.

Why do not the school boys form a company of Continentals for the Fourth of July reception? It was a noticeable feature of that of 1853.

Workmen have been driving piles and laying stringers for the bridge between Noble's Island and Freeman's Point, and before many weeks the bridge will open for passage.

The claim of Mr. William S. Hadley for $5000, against the New Hampshire Fire Ins. Co., will be tried at the present term of the supreme judicial court at Exeter. The insurance was effected on the building at Rye, formerly owned by Thomas Philbrick, and sold or mortgaged to Mr. Hadley, prior to its burndown, and the policy transferred to him. The company contends that it was insured as a "dwelling-house," but used as a hotel, and that it was not represented to them that there was so much insurance on it in other companies as has since proved to have been; while on the other hand it is contended that everything was as represented.

There will be service in the basement of the New Catholic church tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

An adjourned meeting of the ladies and gentlemen of the citizens' committee of arrangements for the reception will be held at the Common Council room, this evening, at half past seven.

Morning Chronicle.

—Gen. Butler has received letters from various parts of the country requesting him to pay the writers the three cents which he estimates is the proportion of extra tax that will be imposed upon each tax-payer in consequence of the Congressional salary steal. The General replies promptly, and instead of franking he puts a three cent postage stamp on the letter, which is worded thus:

DEAR SIR — You will find your three cents on the outside of this letter.
Yours truly, BENJ. F. BUTLER.

The best joke on Congressman Averill haveheard, is the determination of his paper-mill boys to go for the "old man" when he returns for an increase of pay for the future, and also extra pay for two years past. Guess they will get it.—St. Paul Pioneer.

The Chronicle.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

HON. SAMUEL CLEAVES, whose death is recorded in another column, was born at Hamilton, Mass. Feb. 20, 1792. He learned the joiner's trade in Salem, Mass. where he married his first wife, Miss Hannah Peele. He removed to Portsmouth in 1817 and then commenced the business of tallow chandlery. After being awhile with Mr. Frothingham he began business on his own account, and in 1819 entered into partnership with John Rugg, under the firm of Rugg & Cleaves, at Ham's wharf near the Ferryway, removing afterwards to the present location. Some time after the death of Mr. Rugg he associated with him his son Samuel R. and then began the firm name of Samuel Cleaves & Son, under which Henry C. Walker, his grandson, now carries on the business. Horton D. Walker, son-in-law of Mr. Cleaves, succeeded Samuel R. on his retirement, and Mr. Cleaves relinquished the business entirely to Mr. Walker in 1865, since which time his health has not permitted his attending to it.

Mr. Cleaves has not been a seeker for political honors, but in 1837, in a contention which somewhat obliterated party lines, and while Portsmouth was a Democratic town, he as a Whig received many more votes than any of the other candidates, and was the only Representative to General Court chosen in Portsmouth. The next year and the year following he was elected State Senator from the first District.

But his character and disposition were most developed in his connection with the Middle Street Baptist Church and Society, to which, since its organization in 1820, he has devoted his heart and hand, and in which he has long held the office of Deacon. He was the last survivor of eight persons who in that year met in the old Assembly House in Vaughan street and constituted themselves into the "First Baptist Church of Christ in Portsmouth." He, more than any one else, enjoyed the prosperity to which he has witnessed the progress of that church from its feeble commencement. When the wants of that society required a new meeting house, in 1828, Mr. Cleaves was foremost in zeal and liberality in pushing forward the work, which was no small burden to the limited purses of those who undertook it. With a characteristic faith in the success of the church, and such zeal in the cause to which he was espoused as but few men in any age possess, he not only devoted all his ready means to the work, but pledged his property to what was then to him a large amount in order to complete it; and it was a long time before he was able to liquidate the consequent personal debt. Dr. Lamson remarked at his funeral: "There is no record of the amount he has given.—Years ago, he told me, the papers were destroyed that would record how much he had contributed to this building. And it was one of the providences that he always spoke of with the most fervent gratitude, that he was enabled to meet the responsibilities he assumed, without one failure." His zeal has never diminished, and only his growing infirmities have prevented his regular attendance at evening meetings. Though scarcely able to walk that distance, he was in his seat at church the Sunday before his death. A few years since he disposed of his property, reserving only enough to give him a comfortable support; yet when the late remodelling of the Middle street church was done, he was ready to share even this with the Church, and after making every exertion to accomplish the work, contributed very liberally from his remaining means.

Good Deacon Cleaves leaves a host of sincere mourners. A life of unselfish devotion to the welfare of others, the interests of the church and the cause of his Master; the unsullied purity of a heart overflowing with love to God and his fellow man; the kindness and consideration for the feelings of others with which he always guarded every expression of word or look; his liberality, which was only limited by his means; his happy, cheerful disposition and patience under burdensome years of suffering;—these and other virtues exemplified in him most truly all the "fruits of the spirit," "love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance." We cannot pass by the death of such a man without publicly commending his example, that in his death as well as his life his potent good influence may extend to this and other communities. Blessed man! The world was better for his having lived in it, and our loss is greater than we can realize.

Quoting again from Rev. Dr. Lamson: "Many are the beautiful and expressive symbols which sculpture has chiselled to ornament our cemeteries.—The fallen rosebud for the infant; the shaft broken midway for the young man; the tall and finished shaft for the completed life; the sheaf of wheat fully ripe, with the sickle beside it, for the aged man. But nature furnishes us with what no sculptor can put into stone. It is the sun just sinking beneath the western horizon and sending its beams far up beyond the zenith, at the close of a long summer's day, heralding the night and promising the morning. Thy sun has gone down, my brother, but it will rise again. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live again."

His funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. W. H. Alden, assisted by Rev. Dr. William Lamson of Brookline, Mass., at the Middle Street church on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Alden will preach a sermon appropriate to his death next Sunday forenoon.

The Daily Chronicle,

Portsmouth, N. H.

MONDAY, APRIL 14, 1873.

SAN SALVADOR, the scene of the recent earthquake, is the capital of the republic of San Salvador in Central America, and five years ago it contained a population of about 15,000. It is situated on a small stream which flows into the Pacific Ocean about 105 miles southeast of Guatemala, and stands between wooded heights, in a well-watered vale, several thousand feet above the sea level. It was a depot for sugar and indigo and had some manufactories of iron ware and cotton goods. The city has at different times suffered greatly from earthquakes, especially in 1656 and 1854. In the latter year on the night of the 6th of April it was complely destroyed and about one hundred lives were lost. A new city was laid out by the government ten miles nearer the sea and called Nuevo San Salvador; but so large a proportion of the inhabitants preferred to rebuild their ruined houses, that in January, 1855, the legislature reinstated the old city as the seat of government. About three miles northwest of the city is the volcano of San Salvador. Seen from the town it forms a beautiful cone with gently sloping sides, and crowned to the top with thick forests. The crater is more than a mile and one-half in circumference, is perfectly well preserved and partly filled with water. It rises about one thousand feet above the level of the table-land on which it stands.

State News.

A serious accident was averted, Thursday night, by the close attention to their business and presence of mind of the engineer and fireman of the five o'clock train from Boston at Nashua, on the Concord road. The train left the Nashua depot for the north and had attained its regular speed, when, in coming near the bridge across the Nashua river, it was discovered that the switch was misplaced. The engineer instantly whistled "down brakes," reversing his engine, which movement undoubtedly saved much loss of life, but did not prevent the engine from running off the track and part way on to the bridge, dropping the driving wheels on one side down through the bridge timbers and smashing the smoke stack. The engineer and fireman both jumped from the engine before she struck the bridge, escaping without injury, and no damage was done to the train other than a slight damage to the baggage car. An investigation proved that the switch was purposely and wilfully changed by some person, whose intentions are unknown. There is no doubt about this fact, as a train passed safely over the track about ten minutes before the five o'clock train came along.

Smith Hilton, an Englishman employed by the Exeter Manufacturing Company, in Exeter, assaulted his wife Thursday night so brutally that it was thought at first she would die. He was arrested and committed for trial.

Twenty persons in Hill have been poisoned by eating cheese made at a Vermont factory. It is supposed that something used to destroy insects and keep flies from the cheese by some mishap got into it while making.

Capt. Loring Bates of Cohasset, who is engaged in recovering material from the wrecked English steamer Sir Francis, off Hampton Beach, has been offered $5000 for his share of the profits for two days' work.

—This characteristic story comes from Washington:

"MacBride, of the Washington Chronicle, was rushing along D street, one day last summer, pencil in hand, and caromed against Rev. G. A. Hall, who is always equally in a hurry, through his zeal on religious chores. 'Hello, Mac!' exclaimed the Rev. G. A. impulsively, taking him by both hands. 'What are you doing for Jesus?' 'Well,' says Mac, 'to tell the truth, I ain't doing much. I'm on the Chronicle now.'"

Readables.

Hon. Nelson T. Dingley, jr., of Lewiston, is a candidate for the republican nomination for Governor of Maine, and a most worthy chief magistrate he would make. York county has a candidate also, in the person of Hon. James M. Stone, of Kennebunk. Should Mr. Stone fail of the nomination, it wouldn't be surprising if Mr. Dingley succeeded, and Senator Butler be chosen President of the Senate.

The democratic party is just now endeavoring to persuade itself that it "still lives—is not dead."

It may be unnecessary to make mention of the fact, but the fact is nevertheless mentionable, that notwithstanding the law, which goes into effect on the 1st of July, deprives newspapers of free exchange, we are willing to continue our present exchanges with the Philadelphia Press, the Danbury News, the New York Times, the New York Tribune, the Cincinnati Times and Chronicle, the Caribou North Star, the Chicago Tribune, and all first class sheets except the New York Graphic, provided the payment of postage at both ends be assumed by the proprietors of the aforesaid papers.

Vice-President Wilson opposes capital punishment.

Dickens cleared $225,000 during his last visit to America. At least so says the Brattleboro medium who is finishing "Edwin Drood."

CLAMMING IMPROVED BY PRAYER.—The New Bedford Mercury says there is in that town an eccentric character, 55 years of age, who for 15 years has lived the life of a hermit in the heart of the city, and during these years, but three persons ever entered his consecrated room. His chamber is leaky, but he rather enjoys this as it cheapens his rents; the bed is roofed and boarded up, leaving only a space in front wide enough to crawl in, the aperture then being closed with canvass. On cold nights he takes a pail of coals into his roost and is happy. Perhaps the oddest thing about the man is his religious belief. He believes in the efficacy of prayer, and his experience puts to blush the theory of Prof. Tyndall. His principal business is clamming, and he says he has increased the yield of the clam flats where he operates fourfold since he commenced the business, by prayer alone. To demonstrate this he says that where he could then dig but half a bushel at a tide, a good smart man can now dig two bushels in the same time. When he has travelled long with his barrow loaded with clams, in fruitless attempts to sell, a short prayer on his knees between the handles, has always resulted in creating a demand for the whole load. His greatest annoyance is that people talk to him of his want of cleanliness and neatness of attire. To these worldlings he replies that he cannot risk his soul's salvation by compromising with a spirit of worldly pride. He is scrupulously neat in church, however, and, should he spit on the floor, he will wipe it up with his pocket handkerchief before leaving. It is important to add that he believes in immersion rather than sprinkling, because he says nowhere in the Bible are we ordered to be sprinkled, while that book states plainly we must "be baptized."

THE SONOMA WINE BITTERS advertised in this paper to day are highly recommended for Spring and Summer use, having been tested extensively for many years. To ladies and children they are especially beneficial. Jas. Dingley & Co., Boston, are Proprietors, but any Druggist or Grocer will supply consumers.

MIRACULOUS AGILITY.—At the afternoon exhibition of the International Circus, in the Exposition building yesterday, and while the Leslie brothers were in the progress of their daring trapeze performance, a mischance occurred, which, but for an extraordinary display of presence of mind, might have resulted fatally. The three brothers were forty feet above the floor on a trapeze, one of them hanging by his feet to the bar and holding the hands of another brother, who hung suspended by them. The latter was to turn a somersault in the air while in this position, throwing his feet upward, which his brother was in turn to seize, and a most extraordinary feat would have been accomplished. But Lew Leslie, the one in question, miscalculated the distance or the other brother missed his hold, and only one foot was caught. Unable to hold by one hand alone, the brother next the trapeze was obliged to to relinquish his grasp, and young Leslie fell headlong almost to the floor but not quite—for when within less than a dozen feet of the hard flooring, by an almost superhuman effort, he turned a somersault in the air and reached the floor on both feet unharmed. The audience had held its breath in dreadful suspense and rose almost as one man to greet the successful issue of the dangerous fall with rapturous cheering.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"ZE POOR FLY."—The following is from the St. Louis Republican:

"There is a comical old Frenchman named Corvallo, who is the terror and plague of the landlady's life, on account of the sly digs he is always making in regard to any little irregularity about the table. He delights to torment the old lady, and never lets an occasion slip of giving her a roasting. The other day—strange as it may seem—we had hash for supper, and in the portion to which Mr. Corvallo was helped he discovered a fly. This was too good an opportunity to lose; so taking the fly out very tenderly, and laying it on the table with the most comically sympathizing countenance, he exclaimed: 'Poor lissel fellow! He's been ros', he's been stew, and now he's been made into hass, an' he's been very mooch abuse, too, by ze operation; he's loss a leg, he's loss his head. I very mooch pity him: but nevsre mind, poor fellow, you have escaped the misfortune to be eat, and you shall never be harm again no more.'"

—The enfant terrible of a Washington family, whose sister Eliza is a shining belle in society, was allowed a seat near one of the distinguished guests at a dinner party given by his father, recently, and, in the midst of the merriment, he startled the company by propounding the conundrum, 'Why is the father like the devil?' A painful pause ensued, and as no one ventured to answer, he shouted out 'Because he's the father of Lize?' Probably no boy in the country was ever put to bed quicker than he on that occasion.

A FRAGRANT BREATH AND PEARLY TEETH.—Are easily attained, and those who fail to avail themselves of the means, should not complain, when accused of gross neglect The Sozodont will speedily eradicate he cause of a foul breath, beautifying and preserving the teeth to the oldest age.

AT THIS VERY HOUR Thousands are suffering from fever and ague, of languishing in that condition of debility which the variable weather of the season is apt to produce, especially if the nervous system be particularly sensitive and the physique delicate rather than robust. All these sufferers, however much they may deserve sympathy, are nevertheless the victims of their own want of forecast. A course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, commenced a month ago, would have exempted them from their present troubles. Having neglected prevention, let them at once adopt the means of cure. A wineglassful of that genial vegetable tonic and alterative taken twice or thrice a day, for a week or two, will afford effectual relief in any case of intermittent fever, remittent fever, chronic indigestion, constipation, biliousness, or nervous weakness, and a perseverence in the use of the restorative will prevent the possibility of a relapse.

For all throat diseases and especially Coughs, Colds, &c., there is no known remedy equal to Buchman's Pulmocine, and a few doses will satisfy the most skeptical of its efficacy. For sale at the Union Store.

☞ Persons suffering with Liver Complaint in any of its various forms will do well to call at Gilbert's Root and Herb Store, and try some of his Liver Lozenges. Many have tried them and are rejoicing to-day.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is the concentration of sixteen composite parts and can be manufactured only in large quantities. So immediate and powerful is its action that one bottle (selling for 50 cts.) is more potent than any other curative of throat and lung diseases on sale.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure a Cough in one-half the time necessary to cure with any other medicine, and it does it, not by drying it up, but by removing the cause—subduing the irritation and healing the affected parts. For all cases of Laryngitis, Hoarseness, Suppression or Loss of Voice, Bronchitis, Severe Chronic or Lingering Coughs, it will be found to surpass any medicine that has ever before been offered to the public. Sold by all Druggists.

COCOA is the cheapest drink for the working class. Dr. Lankester says: "Cocoa contains as much flesh-forming matter as beef." There is no Cocoa or chocolate in the market superior to that made by Walter Baker & Co., Boston. All Grocers sell it.

A CURE FOR EVERY DRUNKARD.—1. Eat comfortable meals at regular hours, partaking especially of farinaceous food, vegtables and fruits three times a day. 2. Exercise regularly, but so as not to induce fatigue. 3. Have regular and long sleep, going to bed and rising at regular hours, and take a sleep about noon. 4. Keep the mind as much interested and amused as possible by harmless games, sports, etc. 5. Take a warm bath daily about 11 A. M., if convenient. 6. Break up all old associations. 7. Keep away from old resorts. 8. Quit chewing and smoking tobacco, for this blunts the moral sense and makes the imagination dull, while tobacco makes it ontuse. 9. Never forget that if you are to be a new man you must have new ideas, and these must be such as to make you discard the use of alcohol in all its forms. Do not take it as medicine any more than as a beverage, for it will re-awaken the old desire in the one case as readily as in the other.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Appledore Extension.

A part of the "extension of Appledore Island," in the shape of a floating landing stage built by Mr. Waterman K. Pryor, was successfully launched at noon on Thursday, and now lies alongside the ancient and dilapidated wharf at Noble's Island. The entire work, when completed, will consist of a solid pier extending from the roadway on Appledore to low water mark, one hundred and fifty feet, a trestle-work "brow," or bridge, sixty feet in length, connecting the pier and the floating stage, and the stage itself, which is a huge scow ninety feet long, twenty feet wide and five feet six inches in depth.

The scow is very strongly built, and is protected by heavy upright fender timbers all around; these fenders are seven feet apart and reach two feet above the deck, and will be fitted with suitable guard-rails to prevent children from tumbling overboard. There is a pump at each end of the scow, and heavy mooring bitts at each corner, and when in position she will be secured by five stout chain cables leading to ring bolts set in the solid rock. She will be painted a light lead-color, and will have a gas-light at each end, so that there will be little difficulty in "picking her up" in the darkest night, and there will also be a gas light on the shore-end of the brow. The shore-end of the scow will be fitted with steps for the convenience of small boats, an awning will extend over the deck, and a lofty flagstaff will be stepped amidships. This landing-stage will doubtless be a favorite promenade for visitors to the Appledore, and will also be the ruin of innumerable cunners; and we should not be surprised if the "light fantastic" was practised there occasionally, on warm and pleasant evenings.

A heavy breakwater of timber, one hundred and fifty feet long, will be moored about fifty yards from the floating stage to protect it from the sea; and if everything works well, and we see no reason to expect anything otherwise, the new landing will be a great convenience to the steamer, the small boats and the patrons of the Appledore House, and a most gorgeous place for exercise, fishing and flirtations. The brow will be put on board the scow and the whole towed to the Shoals, probably about the 1st of June.

The Coming Reunion

Of the Sons and Daughters of Portsmouth is looked forward to with increasing interest by citizens of all classes. Nearly three months remain to perfect arrangements for the proper reception of the coming host, and yet there is hardly a family within the city boundaries whose members are not preparing for the accommodation of friends. Some three thousand people have already been registered upon the record of the general committee, and daily there go out from private individuals urgent letters to the absent children of Strawberry Bank, which close in about this way—"You must not fail to be here on the Fourth." The ladies, the men, the children of our goodly old city are as enthusiastic in the matter as if the coming jubilee were but a few days distant. We have never known such a general interest on any previous occasion. Portsmouth will be visited by 20,000 strangers on that day—and now comes the question of lodgings. The railroads will be taxed to their utmost carrying capacity and it will be impossible for all who come to get away on the night of the Fourth. The hotels will be crowded, every family will have the surplus rooms at home filled with relatives and friends. There are many halls and offices about town that can be used for lodging strangers, and we doubt not all will be provided for in some way. We hear of one enthusiastic individual who has two large tents and intends to camp out applicants for lodging in his yard on the nights of the 3d and 4th. We mention the fact only to show the example, which others may follow in various ways. Persons willing to assist in providing lodgings are requested to leave their names with the citizens' committee of arrangements.

The Barnabee Concert.

The undersigned, in behalf of the Mercantile Library Association, gratefully acknowledge the kind offer of Mr. HENRY C. BARNABEE by which the Association will be pecuniarily benefitted by the Concert on Tuesday evening, April 14th, and request the friends of the Association to show a just appreciation of it by a liberal purchase of tickets. Let the Temple be filled.

Clippings.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

—Arbuckle with his magic cornet will "Set the wild echoes flying" at the concert Tuesday evening.

—The old time favorite, "When ye gang awa, Jamie," will be sung as a duett at the concert Tuesday evening.

—The pastor of one of our churches advertises that he sells more musical instruments than any other person in the United States.

—Col. Luther Junkins of York has sold his farm for $6500, and purchased a smaller farm at Eliot, where he intends opening a law-office.

—The roads in the suburbs are in a wretched state, which will require many days of sunshine to put in a comfortably navigable condition.

—The low tides which have prevailed of late, have caused an immense number of clams to come to grief, and our fishermen shell out handsomely.

—At the close of the concert on Tuesday evening, Mr. Barnabee will repeat by special request, the Character Sketch of the "Unprotected Female."

—The Boston Globe says, "James T. Fields, one of the talented Sons of Portsmouth is filling a position in the first rank of our public lecturers."

—The long anticipated concert under the direction of Mr. Henry C. Barnabee, will be given next Tuesday evening at the Temple. See advertisement.

—At the first reunion of the Sons in 1853, Boston was represented by seven hundred and nine Portsmouth natives, who came home in a special train on the morning of the 4th, returning the same night.

—The Hampton colored students, consisting of eighteen voices, are to sing here in a few weeks. They render the same style of quaint and popular music as the chorus from Fisk's University who lately appeared at the Temple.

—Mrs. Smith will sing at the concert on Tuesday evening, the song entitled "The Chalet Horn," with cornet obligato by Mr. Arbuckle, which has been received with the greatest enthusiasm at their concerts throughout the Union.

—The course of lectures delivered at the Congregational church, North Hampton, under the direction of the pastor, Rev. T. V. Haines, have netted the sum of $200, which will be expended, with other funds, in painting the interior of the church.

—Preparations are being made by Mr. Horace Sawyer of Rye, for the erection of a large boarding house between the Sea View House and the sea, Rye Beach, which will have accommodations for 75 persons. It will be ready for occupancy early in June.

—In many places where the snow has recently disappeared the grass has come up fresh and green as in summer. The ground is not frozen, and the protection which the snow has afforded leaves the grass roots in a vital condition. The season is likely to be early.

—Although no formal action has been taken, except by the Committee on Programme, in regard to a regatta on the coming Fourth of July, the subject is receiving the attention of the amateur boatmen on the river, and it will probably be one of the prominent features of the celebration.

—Mr. Robt. H. Green at his boat house on Market St., has nearly completed a large sail boat which will probably prove the fastest sailer on the river. She is 23ft. in length, 8ft. wide, and 2½ft. deep, and is built on the model of the winner of numerous races of the New York Yacht Club regattas.

—A little daughter of Mr. William Shields, residing on Jefferson Street, accidentally fell down a long flight of stairs recently, with a pet kitten in her arms. The force of the tumble was broken by the little miss falling on the animal, thus escaping personal injury, while the poor feline was instantly killed.

—Rows of beautiful crocuses and snowdrops in front of the residence of A. W. Haven, Esq., on Congress St., attract the attention of all. There are many front yards which with a little care could be made as attractive. Crocuses, daffies, crown imperials, and tulips in some gardens are already a number of inches high.

—The drills of be Independent Military Company at their armory on State Street, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, remind one of the early and lively days of "ye home guards." The members comprises young men who are showing much ability in the manual of arms. A few more are required to fill up the second company to its maximum.

—A praise meeting under the direction of Dr. E. B. Goodall of this city, was held at the new school house at the Creek Thursday evening of last week. The building was crowded with old and young, the music produced being inspiriting, into which all entered with zest. This was a fitting accompaniment to the series of evening meetings which have for some time been held in the school house under the direction of members of the North church.

—A young son of Mr. Reuben Rand, while quietly walking along Congress Street Saturday forenoon was set upon by a large dog, and bitten in the upper lip from which the blood flowed freely. City Marshal Johnson took the canine to the rear of the station house, and speedily despatched him with an axe. This is the third time this dog has made similar unprovoked attacks. There are too many worthless curs about our city, and it is time they were thinned out.

—Boston has recently passed an order forbidding the teachers of the public schools to accept presents from their pupils. It is hoped our school committee will discountenance the practice here. To many parents it is hard enough burden to provide the books for their children during the whole course of instruction without being called upon to furnish the money for the frequently occurring presentations. Some of our own teachers, knowing the abuse to which it is subject, have always discountenanced the practice, and the school committee may well give it their attention, and if advisible, issue an order similar to that adopted in Boston.

Laconics.

A company of Continentals is being formed by the scholars of Mr. Durgin's school.

There is to be a grand musical entertainment at Congress Hall next Wednesday evening, to be followed by a dance. The entire proceeds of the entertainment are to be applied to the benefit of St. Mary's Church. Harlow's band will furnish music for the occasion.

The ball of the Wolf Tone club bids fair to be a great success to-night at Congress Hall.

The driving snow storm of Saturday bursted the Fourth of July meeting as effectually as did the fossiliferous remains distributed among the members of the "society upon the Stanislaus." The storm continued through the night, the wind being very heavy, and the snow fell fast all day on Sunday, but melted almost as soon as it reached the ground. The ladies and gentlemen of the citizens' general committee will meet in the Common Council room at half past 7 o'clock this evening, when a full attendance is requested.

The display of flowers at the Unitarian and Episcopal churches on Sunday, (Easter) was very fine.

The ringing of the St. John's bell, at about sunrise on Sunday morning, brought out the entire fire department, soda fountains and all, to put out the fire which it was supposed was raging. Had there really been a fire it would have made lively work for the department, as there was a gale blowing at the time.

Young man, spare that rising bustle; touch not a single "pape;" that woman's had an awful tussle to get herself in shape.

Mr. Lyttleton M. Laighton of this city has an old book, "The Geographical Grammar," printed in London in 1719, which is in a remarkably good state of preservation. On the third page is the well known signature, "John Hancock," in plain well-cut letters. On the first page is "George Perkins' Book." Who George Perkins was, Mr. Laighton does not know, but thinks he would be over 80 years old now, if alive. On the same page is written in lead pencil, "This book was owned, & studied in at School by John Hancock—the 1st Pres't of the 1st Cont. Congress. G. P." John Hancock must have learned readily or was not much of a student, as the book is soiled but little. The printing is very clear.

Mr. James N. Tarlton, jr., has a fresh stock of canned goods, jellies, fruit and confectionery at his store under the CHRONICLE office, and keeps everything so neat that passers-by invariably drop in and invest.

The "York Farm," at Greenland, and the Rye Beach Stage Route of C. R. Edmunds, at the Greenland depot of the Concord Railroad, with horses, cow, pigs, hens, etc., are to be sold at auction April 23d,—as Mr. Edmunds' railroad duties now demand his whole attention. See advertisement.

The unusual style in which the bell of the Episcopal church was rung by the pastor, early Sunday morning, the sexton having refused to ring it in such a manner, occasioned more profanity than the day's prayers could counterbalance, and caused more Sunday work by the firemen in cleaning their machines than the sensation was worth.

Morning Chronicle.

CEREBRO-SPINAL MENINGITIS.—This disease now assuming the form of an epidemic in city and town is by no means a new one, but has appeared at various times under different names. By many physicians it is identified with diseases long known as typhus, ship fever, spotted fever, and various others, and generally when it appears at all, prevails as an epidemic. It is classed as a contagious disease, though not highly so, probably no more than typhoid fever or many inflammatory complaints. The first symptoms are chills, followed by heat, headache, with pain in back of the head, delirium, rapid pulse and general symptoms of fever. It usually runs its course in three weeks; but proves fatal to nearly one half its victims within from 12 to 48 hours after the attack. This disease is not confined to man. Cases are frequent among animals. Valuable horses were swept away during the recent epizootic by this or a very similar disease, which has been pronounced the same by veterinary surgeons. After the victim of the common trouble had been sick for weeks and was apparently gaining, a new form of attack, an inflammation of the back or spine and high fever, with an increased drowsiness soon set in, until the animal expired, which often happened within 12 hours of the attack. The best means of prevention is to avoid all excesses, and above all not to think enough of it to dwell on the liability of contracting the disease.

—"I had more money than he had to carry on the suit," said a very mean individual who had just won a lawsuit over a poor neighbor, "and that's where I had the advantage of him. Then I had much better counsel than he, and there I had the advantage of him. And his family were sick while the suit was pending, so he couldn't attend to it, and there I had the advantage of him again. But, then, Brown is a very decent sort of a man after all." "Yes," said his listener, "and there's where he has the advantage of you."

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

Pulmocine Cordial

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Cough, Croup, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the opinion of PREVENTION, Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the painful, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SQUILL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it egotically in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

A Love Story.

The Boston correspondent of the Chicago Tribune furnishes a pretty little love story to that paper, which would furnish an available plot to a novel writer. The writer says that truth is stranger than fiction, everybody knows. But real life is not merely more strange, it is often more romantic than anything invented by the romance writers. An instance of this has recently occurred within his knowledge; and the denouement of the story is so pleasant that he cannot refrain from giving it. He can vouch for its correctness, as one at least of the parties concerned is well known to him:

About ten years ago, a wealthy merchant of this city, having an only child, a beautiful girl of 17, became alarmed at certain indications of a consumptive tendency in her, and to recruit her health sent her to pass some months at a country home among the hills of Vermont. The young lady recovered her health, but she lost her heart. She made the acquaintance of a young man named G——, a farmer's son, intelligent and well educated, but a working machinist. The young people became warmly attached to each other, and formed an engagement conditioned on the consent of the lady's father. But the latter had more ambitious views for his daughter; and, when the young machinist presented himself as her suitor, he was treated with very little ceremony, was, in fact, dismissed by the father in a manner so offensive that forbade him to make any further advances. He went West, and entered into business in St. Louis. Having plenty of talent, energy, and character, he was successful, soon had a large establishment of his own, and had accumulated a handsome fortune. Absorbed in business, and in the various occupations of a man of prominence and influence, he had doubtless outgrown his early disappointment in love; but he had formed no other attachment, and remained unmarried.

The young girl meanwhile, her lover being quite lost to her, accepted the husband selected by her father, was married, and went to live in France. At the end of two years, she became a widow, but continued to reside abroad. She was in the possession of a modest fortune, and, her parents having died in this interval, there was nothing to call her back to Boston. Up to September of last year, this was the position of affairs between these two. With each the brief romance of their early youth had faded into the memory of a tender dream; and nothing could have seemed less likely than the occurrence of any event which should reunite their sundered lives.

However, it fell out that the requirements of Mr. G——'s business took him last year to Europe, and he remained abroad several months. One evening, late in September, he was on board a little steamer going from Marseilles to Leghorn, when there came up one of the sudden storms for which those waters are unpleasantly noted. It was very rough, but no danger was anticipated. Mr. G—— sat on deck, watching the storm; and many other passengers, among them several ladies, were doing the same. One of the latter had risen from her seat to go below, and was standing in an unguarded attitude, when, the steamer giving a violent lurch, she lost her balance and was thrown overboard. Mr. G—— saw the mishap, and instantly leaped after her into the sea. He was fortunate enough to find and support her; but it was dark, the sea was running high, and, though a boat was quickly sent out by the people on the steamer, those in it were unable to find the missing passengers, and it was supposed that they were drowned. But, fortunately for them, the steamer people, as soon as the accident was known, had thrown out various things for them to cling to. A plank floated near them, and by this they were able to keep themselves from sinking. They were picked up on the following day, by a vessel bound for Malta, and carried to that port.

And thus it was that these long-separated lovers met at last! In the darkness of night, on a plank in the stormy waters of the Mediterranean, they recognized each other! They were reunited, but with no prospect before them but of a speedy death in each other's arms. Was it strange that the old love, which had slumbered, not died, in their hearts, was reawakened, and that, on finding themselves once more possessed of life, they felt it impossible to spend that life apart? At any rate they were married soon after, in the English chapel at Malta, and, having passed the winter there, for the benefit of the lady's health, which had suffered greatly from the exposure she had undergone, they are at present on their way home to America. And may all true loves have an equally fortunate issue!

—Somebody suggests that Early would make a capital candidate for Governor for the Virginia Democrats—he knows how to run so well.

TUESDAY, APRIL 15, 1873.

Gen. Canby Murdered.

The assassination of Gen. E. R. S. Canby creates a profound impression among the officers of the Army, who know how little faith he had in the peace policy to which he has fallen a victim. He was a tall, erect, soldierly looking man, with a Roman nose and eagle eye. As commander during the early part of the war, he had comparatively few opportunities for distinction, but his conduct of the movements upon and capture of Mobile showed that he was a master of his profession, and in the more intelligent military circles he has been justly considered one of the foremost soldiers of the time. He was born in Kentucky in 1819, and was 54 years old. He graduated at West Point in 1839, and served in the Florida War from that year to 1842, and was made Assistant Adjutant General with the rank of Captain March 3, 1847, and was distinguished at Cerro Gordo. He was brevetted Major for his conduct at Contreras and Cherubusco August 20, 1847, and brevetted Lieutenant Colonel for gallant conduct at the Belen Gate September 13, 1847, and appointed Captain of the 3d Infantry June, 1851, and Major 10th Infantry March 3, 1855. He was made Colonel 19th Infantry May 14, 1861, and Brigadier General of Volunteers March 31, 1862. He served in the Utah expedition under General A. S. Johnston, and in 1859 and 1860 commanded Fort Bridger, Utah. When the rebellion broke out he was in New Mexico, and exhibited great skill and judgment in defending the Territory against the rebels. He afterward served in the War Department at Washington, and commanded the troops in and around New York city at the time of the riots in July, 1863, and resumed his post in the War Department November, 1863. May 7, 1864, he was made Major General, commanding the district embracing the departments of Missouri, Arkansas and the Gulf. He commanded the expedition which captured Mobile April 12, 1865, and May 4 received the surrender of the rebel General Dick Taylor and his army. He was appointed Brigadier General United States Army July 28, 1866. During the reconstruction campaign he commanded successively the fifth and first Military Districts, and at the time of his death was in command of the Department of Columbia, with headquarters at Portland, Oregon. He will be succeeded by Gen. Davis.

A dispatch from Lava Bed Camp states that on Friday a peace commission party, comprising General Canby, A. B. Meacham, Dr. Thomas, Mr. Dyer, Riddle, interpreter and squaw, Bogus Charley and Boston Charlie met Captain Jack, John Schonchin, Black Jim, Ellen's man, and Hawker Jim. They had no guns with them, but each carried a pistol at his belt. This however, was not much noticed, as in previous interviews they had their guns with them. They sat down in a kind of a broken circle, and General Canby Mr. Meacham and Dr. Thomas sat together, faced by Captain Jack and Schonchin. Mr. Dyer stood by Jack holding his horse, with Hawker Jim and Shack-Nasty Jim to his left. The place was overlooked by the signal station, from which Lieut. Adams closely watched the proceedings. About half an hour after the party had arrived a cry from the signal station was heard, saying that the Indians had attacked the peace commission, and that an engagement had commenced between the Indians and Colonel Mason. In a moment the troops were at double-quick time.

The military speedily reached the scene of the massacre. About a hundred yards to the west of the place of meeting was found Mr. Meacham, badly wounded with a pistol shot over the left eye. He was immediately attended to and carried back for medical treatment. Fifty yards further on was the dead body of Rev. Dr. Thomas lying on his face and stripped to the waist. The body of General Canby was stripped of every vestige of clothing and lay about one hundred yards to the southward with two pistol-shot wounds in the head. Pausing only a moment the troops dashed on and the two leading batteries were within a mile of the murderers when the bugle sounded a halt. It was found that all the Indians had got back to their stronghold and the troops were ordered to fall back. Active operations were to commence on Monday. General Sherman telegraphed an order through General Schofield to attack the Modocs and to capture or exterminate them. An order announcing the death of General Canby has also been given to the press by General Sherman. The feeling in all official circles is intense, and more so from the fact that General Canby was well known, and aside from the deference awarded to his rank he was cordially esteemed and respected by all who knew him.

It appears that at the fatal conference Mr. Meacham made a short speech to the Indians and was followed by General Canby and Dr. Thomas. Then Captain Jack made a speech asking for Hot Creek and Cottonwood, now occupied by Fairchild and Dorris for a reservation. Meacham told Jack that it was not possible to give him what he asked. Schonchin told Meacham to say no more; that he [Meacham] had said enough on that subject. While Schonchin was speaking Captain Jack stepped to the rear and stood near where Meacham's horse was hitched. Presently Mr. Dyer heard a cap miss fire and looking around saw Captain Jack to his left with his pistol pointed at General Canby. This was the signal for a general massacre and a dozen shots were fired inside of half a minute. Mr. Dyer after hearing the cap miss-fire turned and fled, followed closely by Hawker Jim who fired two shots after him. Dyer finding Hawker Jim gaining on him turned and drew his Derringer, whereupon Hawker Jim retreated, and Dyer made the best of his way to the camp. Captain Jack fired again on General Canby, who ran off to the left, but he was speedily shot down and killed instantly. Meacham was shot at by Schonchin and wounded in the head. He tried to draw his Derringer, when two Indians ran up and knocked him down. Dr. Thomas was killed almost instantly by two pistol shots in the head, fired by Boston Charley and another Indian. Riddle's squaw was knocked off her horse by an Indian, who took the animal, but was forced to return it by Captain Jack.

An Indian Fight.

On the 11th of March, Gibs Swain, John McDonald and George Taylor were murdered by a band of Apaches. The savages were pursued by the troops and overtaken, and during the conflict that followed 79 warriors were killed and 26 women and children were taken prisoners. The troops were under the command of Lieutenant Rice, who is now at Fort Whipple. They followed the trail of the Apaches and learned that Taylor had been captured and subjected to the most horrible tortures. Captain Randall reports an engagement with the Apaches in which 47 warriors were killed and 7 women captured.

Mark Twain writes a caustic letter to the New York Tribune, recommending life-rafts instead of boats for seaduty in case of accident, each raft to consist of three inflated horizontal rubber tubes, with a platform lashed on top. Mark says government had too much other business on hand to consider this plan when he first suggested it —"receiving Credit Mobilier donations and forgetting the circumstance."

A CHINESE JUDGMENT.—At Shon Ting, China, recently, the murderer of a high official, killed twelve years ago, gave himself up to the authorities, and when placed on trial avowed his act in these words: "The man," he said, "whom I assassinated, caused, twelve years ago, the death of my father by giving false testimony against him. Since the day my father was beheaded I have followed everywhere, step by step, the perjurer whom I had sworn to kill. If all that time I delayed taking revenge, it was because, in the event of my being condemned for murder, there would be no one to render funeral honors to my mother, for I was her only son. She died three months ago, and I have killed my father's murderer. If I have delayed surrendering myself, it was because I had important affairs to arrange." The Judge did not reproach this candid criminal with taking the law into his own hands, but, much to the satisfaction of the spectators, set him free for "having shown great filial attachment."

—The pious ladies of Des Moines, Iowa visited the abandoned females of that city recently, and urged them to quit their sinful habits of life. The abandoned females asked the pious ladies if these latter would find them homes and furnish them with other occupation. The pious ladies said that that was wandering from the argument and elevated their skirts and their noses, and in a second the abandoned females were abandoned again.

A FRAGRANT BREATH AND PEARLY TEETH.—Are easily attained, and those who fail to avail themselves of the means, should not complain, when accused of gross neglect. The Sozodont will speedily eradicate the cause of a foul breath, beautifying and preserving the teeth to the oldest age.

AT THIS VERY HOUR Thousands are suffering from fever and ague, of languishing in that condition of debility which the variable weather of the season is apt to produce, especially if the nervous system be particularly sensitive and the physique delicate rather than robust. All these sufferers, however much they may deserve sympathy, are nevertheless the victims of their own want of forecast. A course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, commenced a month ago, would have exempted them from their present troubles. Having neglected prevention, let them at once adopt the means of cure. A wineglassful of that genial vegetable tonic and alterative taken twice or thrice a day, for a week or two, will afford effectual relief in any case of intermittent or remittent fever, chronic indigestion, constipation, biliousness or nervous weakness, and a perseverence in the use of the restorative will prevent the possibility of a relapse.

The Temple should be crowded tonight, for aside from the benefit which will thereby accrue to a valuable local institution, every person who attends will enjoy a rich musical feast at a very low price—only fifty cents. Mr. Barnabee, by special request, will give his amusing character sketch, "The Unprotected Female," and other attractions; Mrs. H. M. Smith, soprano, will sing "The Chalet Horn," with cornet obligato by the world renowned soloist, Mr. Arbuckle, which has been received with unbounded enthusiasm at the concerts of the troupe throughout the country; Miss A. R. Clark, contralto, and Mr. W. H. Fessenden, the popular and well known tenor, will also give choice selections; and there will be a liberal number of concerted pieces, any of which it is safe to say will be worth the price of a ticket to any real lover of harmony. If you want an hour's genuine fun, or care to hear a splendid quartette or an artistic solo, go to the Temple this evening. See advertisement.

Inferior Goods.

Nothing for foot-wear in winter has ever been invented to exceed in comfort for the wearer the bungling and clumsy-looking but warm and convenient "Arctics;" and nothing in the shape of manufactured goods (not even excepting wooden nutmegs, which could be used for marbles,) of meaner quality than the Arctics which have been sold during the past winter in this vicinity, has ever been put in the market. Two, three and even four pairs of these overshoes have been worn out by individuals who in past winters have found one pair sufficient; and one gentlemen recently exhibited to us the third pair he had procured in two months, and the third pair showed evident signs of speedy dissolution. The trade in this style of goods has been heavy, but the manufacturers will find that they have done something akin to killing the goose which laid golden eggs, in putting such miserable material and work into their goods,—at least we hope they will, for the swindling of the public by the overshoes manufacturers has been outrageous. A pair of old fashioned rubbers used to last for many years; a pair of such Arctics as have recently been sold in this city will last (with great care) nearly a month—three weeks anyway.

The Trial of Wagner.

We understand that the counsel of Wagner will make an effort to have his trial take place at the next term of the Supreme Court in this county instead of Alfred. It is said that Gen. Plaisted is in favor of the change. York county will probably be glad to get rid of the large bill attending his trial.—Portland Press

She graduated from Mount Holyoke Seminary, studied medicine in Philadelphia, and after practicing her profession four years in Springfield, Mass., went to Constantinople three years ago.

It is expected that the Boston and Maine road will put on a train of two Wagner cars, baggage car, tender and locomotive, that will make the quickest time ever attained by a train between Boston and Portland. This train will stop only long enough in Portland to run over a "V" on the Ogdensburg track and continue on to Conway and Lawrence. This latter place is twelve miles beyond Conway and but six from the Crawford House, thus making the route almost all rail and avoiding the long staging by other routes almost entirely. It will bring Conway within five and a half hours of Boston.

DELAYED MATRIMONY. — A young man in Detroit was to be married at a certain time last week, much against his mother's wishes. All other experiments having failed to prevent the dreaded event, the night before it was to take place, after he had gone to bed, she gathered up and hid every rag of his wearing apparel; and when he got out of bed the next morning he hadn't more than Georgia costume, and couldn't even go down to breakfast He threatened and pleaded, but at the last advices the old lady held him.

PERENNIAL LOVE.—In the breach of promise case tried at Springfield on Thursday, the District Attorney protested against regarding the betrothal of minors as a "boy and girl affair," and said that he was engaged to his present wife when he was only sixteen, that their happy courtship of nine years was the brightest spot in his life, and that now, after twenty years of happy married life, he kisses his wife's lips, although she is somewhat faded, with the same fervor as in the early days of their youthful courtship. Thereupon, $4,000 damages were awarded the plaintiff.

WILL OF NAPOLEON III.—The will of Napoleon III. has been proved in England, as one of our foreign correspondents informs us. His personal property is sworn at under £120,000, and this he leaves to the Empress without reserve. To the Prince Imperial there is only one bequest, we are told—the Imperial Crown. If this be true, we have here a certain violation of the idee Napoleonienne, according to which any Bonaparte may govern who is called by the voice of the people, and the Emperor's will is in this respect an important manifesto to the Imperialists. It is a message to the friends of prince Napoleon. —Pall Mall Gazette.

PURIFICATION OF FLOWING WATER.—Concerning the rapidity with which contaminations are got rid of by flowing water, Dr. Letheby asserts that sewage impurities will entirely disappear in a flow of a dozen miles. If, he says, ordinary sewage, containing say one hundred grains of solid matter to the gallons, of which solid matter probably something like fourteen or fifteen grains will be organic, be mixed with twenty times its bulk of ordinary river water, it will not contain, after a flow of ten or twelve miles, a particle of that sewage discoverable by any chemical process. Dr. Parkes also believes that flowing water thus purifies itself, but he does not undertake to say how far it must run to make the process of purification complete.

—There is one thing no family pretends to do without. That is a hammer. And yet there is nothing that goes to make up the equipment of a domestic establishment that causes one-half as much agony and profanity as a hammer. It is always an old hammer, with a handle that is inclined to sliver, and always bound to slip. The face is as round as a full moon and as smooth as glass. When it strikes a nail full and square, which it has been known to do, the act will be found to result from a combination of pure accidents. The family hammer is one of those rare articles we never profit by. When it glides off a nail head, and mashes down a couple of fingers, we unhesitatingly deposit it in the yard, and observe that we will never use it again. But the blood has hardly dried on the rag before we are out doors in search of that hammer, and ready to make another trial. The result rarely varies, but we never profit by it. The awful weapon goes on knocking off our nails, and mashing whole joints, and slipping off the handle to the confusion of mantle ornaments, and breaking the commandments, and cutting up an assortment of astounding and unfortunate antics, without let or hinderance And yet we put up with it, and put the handle on again, and lay it away where it wont get lost, and do up our mutilated and smarting fingers, and yet if the outrageous thing should happen to get lost, we kick up a regular hullabooloo until it is found again. Talk about the tyranizing influence of a bad habit! It is not to be compared to the family hammer.—Danbury News.

—It is surprising how many curious things happen in Indiana. The Evansville Journal tells a little of its own history thus: "In the Journal job office, a few days since, while running a job through one of the presses, the paper adhered to the machinery without any apparent cause, and had to be pulled off. A short time afterward the pressman sat down on a lot of the same paper, and while sitting there gave an electric shock to every one who touched him, the sparks appearing at each touch as they do at the clicking of the instrument in a telegraph office. When he left the paper the electricity left him, and reappeared when he or any one else approached it, showing that the paper was the battery where it was generated."

Morning Chronicle.

Battle of the Eagles.

The New York Times gives an account of a fierce conflict between two eagles in Central Park, recently. It says that the eagles are gathered in a large wire enclosure in which is a small pond. On the day in question a most contentious spirit was exhibited by the birds. They seemed to be divided into two factions. Hostilities commenced early in the day, but after individual combats had taken place, without any other result than a great scattering of feathers and the spilling of some blood, it was apparently decided to settle the matter by selecting a champion from each side to contest for victory. The method by which this decision was arrived at was not made clear to those outside the cage. But that some agreement was made was very evident from the subsequent conduct of the birds. A little after noon two eagles advanced from opposite ends of the cage towards the centre. One was a comparatively small bird, with a white head; the other was a splendid specimen of the large gray eagle. They met near the little pond, and after glaring at each other for a few seconds, commenced the battle. The movements of the combatants were not unlike the unfeathered bipeds who sometimes contest in the roped arena. Five or seven minutes were consumed in what, in ring parlance, would be styled "fighting for an opening." At length the champions rushed in, and for a moment there was a terrible screaming, flapping of wings, and flying of feathers. The "round," however, was completed without serious damage to either of the contestants. After a little more fencing the smaller of the two—the birds being at this time at the edge of the pond—by a dexterous movement succeeded in fastening his talons in the neck of his opponent and dragging him into the water. The utmost efforts of the gray eagle failed to throw off his adversary. Somebody called for a keeper, and in a few seconds one of these officials arrived, and rushed into the cage with a large stick. The smaller bird be beat on his head with all his force, and even lifted both birds out of the water with his stick. His efforts were not attended with success. The small bird held on with the tenacity of a bull-dog, and never relinquished his hold until he had, partly by keeping it under water and partly by tearing it with his talons, killed the large eagle. After the battle the white-headed champion stalked with dignified steps to an adjacent perch, and spreading out his plumage to dry, glared fiercely and proudly around at his fellows, who signified their approval or otherwise by the most unearthly screams.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

Pulmocine Cordial

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment' warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SCULL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ill," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women: and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Love on a Log.

"Miss Becky Newton."

"Well, sir?"

"Will you marry me?"

"No, I won't."

"Very well; then don't, that's all."

Mr. Fred Eckerson drew away his chair and putting his feet up on the piazza, unfolded a newspaper. Miss Becky Newton bit her lip and went on with her sewing. She wondered if that was going to be the last of it. She had felt this proposal coming for nearly a month, but the scene she had anticipated was not at all like this. She had intended to refuse him, but it was to be done gracefully. She was to remain firm, notwithstanding his most eager entreaties. She was to have told him that though respecting his manly worth and upright character, she could never be more than an appreciative and earnest friend. She had intended to shed a few tears, perhaps, as he knelt in an agony of supplication at her feet. But instead, he had asked her the simple question, without any rhetorical embellishments, and on being answered, had plunged at once into his newspaper, as though he had merely inquired the time of day. She could have cried with vexation.

"You will never have a better chance," he continued after a pause, as he deliberately turned over the sheet to find the latest telegraphic reports.

"A better chance for what?" she asked shortly.

"A better chance to marry a young, good looking man, whose gallantry to the sex is only exceeded by his bravery in their defence." Fred was quoting from his newspaper, But Miss Newton did not know it.

"And whose egotism is only exceeded by his impudence," retorted the lady, sarcastically.

"Before long," continued Fred, "you will be out of the market. Your chances, you know, are getting slimmer every day."

"Sir!"

"It won't be a great while before you are ineligible. You will grow old and wrinkled, and—"

"Such a rudeness to a lady, sir, is monstrous!" exclaimed Miss Newton, rising hastily, and flushing to the temples.

"I'll give you a final opportunity, Miss Becky. Will you mar—"

"Not if you were the King of England," interrupted Miss Newton, throwing down her work. "I am not accustomed to such insults, sir." And so saying she passed into the house and slammed the door behind her.

"She is never so handsome as when she is in a rage," thought Fred to himself, after she had gone, as he slowly folded up his paper and put it in his pocket. "I was a fool to goad her so. I shall never win her in that way. But I'll have her," he exclaimed, aloud. "By heaven! I'll have her, cost what it may."

Very different was the Fred Eckerson of the present, pacing nervously up and down the piazza, from the Fred Eckerson of a few moments ago, receiving his dismissal from the woman he loved, with such calm and imperturbable exterior. For he loved Becky Newton with all his heart. The real difficulty in the way, as he more than half suspected, was not so much with himself as in his pocket. Becky Newton had an insuperable objection to an empty wallet. The daughter of a wealthy Louisiana planter, reared in luxury, and the recipient of a weekly allowance of pin money sufficient to pay Fred's whole bills for a month, she had no immediate idea of changing her situation for one of less comfort and independence. Besides, it had been intimated to her that a neighboring planter of unusual aristocratic lineage had looked upon her with covetous eyes. To be sure, he was old and ugly, but he was rich, and in her present mercenary state of mind, Miss Becky Newton did not desire to allow such a chance of becoming a wealthy widow to slip by unimproved.

But alas for human nature! If Becky was really so indifferent to Fred Eckerson, why did she run up stairs after that interview, and take the starch all out of her nice pillow-shams by crying herself into hysterics on the bed! It was not all in wrath, not all vexation, not all pique. There was somewhere deep down in Becky Newton's heart, a feeling very much akin to remorse. She was not sure that she would not some day be sorry for what she had done. She had no doubt she could be very happy as Fred Eckerson's wife, after all.

"But then," she cried, growing hot with the recollection, "he was so rude, and so insulting! I never could live with such a man—never!"

When Fred Eckerson had walked off some of his feelings on the piazza he concluded to take a look at the river. The Mississippi, which flowed within five hundred yards of the house, was at that time nearly at the height of its annual "spring rise." Its turbid waters, rushing swiftly towards the sea, had nearly filled the banks and in many places broken through the levees and flooded the lowlands for many miles. A crevasse of this description had been made in the farther bank, nearly opposite the house, and the windows of the Newton mansion commanded a view of a vast and glittering inland sea, not laid down on the map. The main current of the stream bore upon its coffee colored bosom an enormous mass of floating timber, which was dashed along in the boiling flood, rendering navigation wholly impossible. The waters were still rising and the frequent crashes far and near told of the undermining power of the current, as sections of the sandy bank succumbed and disappeared, carrying with them the trees which overhung the stream.

Now, it happened that by a curious coincidence Miss Newton also resolved to look at the river. She dried her tears, and putting on her hat slipped out by the back door to avoid Fred, and soon found herself at the foot of a huge cotton tree on the bank below the house. Throwing herself upon the grass, and lulled by the rapid flood beneath she soon fell fast asleep. Had she possessed any power of foreseeing the future, it would have been the last thing she would have done, for although it was very pleasant dropping asleep in the shades with the soft sunlight flittering through the leaves overhead, the awakening was not all to her mind. A terrible crash made chaos of her dreams; Miss Becky Newton found herself suddenly immersed in the cold flood, with her mouth full of muddy water. In a moment more somebody's arm was around her and she felt lifted up and placed in the sunshine, though precisely where, she was as yet too bewildered to know. Getting her eyes open at last, she found Fred Eckerson's whiskers nearly brushing her face.

"Well!"

"Well!"

"Where am I?" asked Becky, shivering and looking around her.

"You are in the middle of the Mississippi," replied Fred, "and you are in the fork of a cottonwood tree, and you are voyaging towards the Gulf of Mexico just as fast as the freshet can carry you."

"How came you here?"

"In the same conveyance with yourself, Miss Becky. In fact, you and I and the tree all came together, to say nothing of a portion of your father's plantation, which I fear is lost to him forever."

Becky was silent. She was thinking, not of the accident or their perilous position, but of her appearance when she was lying asleep on the grass.

"How long were you there before this happened?" she asked.

"As long as you were. I was up in the tree when you came."

"You had no right to be up there," she said coloring—"a spy upon my movements."

"Nonsense!" he replied. "You intruded on my privacy, and while you slept I watched over you like the sweet little cherub that sits up aloft."

"Thank you for your service, I'm sure," she said, bridling.

"You snored awfully."

"Mr. Eckerson, remove your arm from my waist."

"Then put yours around my neck."

"Indeed, I shall do no such thing."

"You will fall into the river if you do not."

Becky was silent for several minutes, while the unwieldy raft whirled along in the current, rolling from side to side and threatening every instant to turn completely over and tip them off. At last she said—

"What are we to do?"

"I think, now that I am started, I shall go on to New Orleans," he replied.

"To New Orleans," exclaimed Becky. "It is a hundred miles!"

"Yes, and the chance of a free ride for such a distance is not to be neglected. You can go ashore if you prefer."

She burst into tears.

"You are cruel," she said, "to treat me so."

"Cruel!" exclaimed Fred, drawing her closer to him, quickly—"cruel to you."

There was no help for it, and she again relapsed into silence, quite content, apparently, to remain in Fred's arms, and evincing now no disposition to rebel. For once in her life she was dependent on a man.

"I want to go to New Orleans," continued Fred after a pause, "because there is a young lady of my acquaintance residing there, whom I have an intention of inviting into this neighborhood."

"O!"

"If we don't go to New Orleans, and if we get safe out of this scrape, I shall write for her to come any way."

"Ah!"

"I shall obtain board for her in St. Jean, which will be convenient for me as long as I remain your father's guest. I can ride over after breakfast every morning, you see."

"She is an intimate friend, then," said Becky.

"I expect to marry her before long," he replied.

"Marry her! Why you—you proposed to me this morning."

"Yes, but you refused me. I told you that you would never have another chance."

Becky was again silent. It is a matter of some doubt whether, had Fred at that moment, sitting astride the cottonwood log with his feet in the water and his arm around her waist, proposed to her a second time, she would have accepted him or not. To be sure a marvellous change had come over Becky's feelings since her tumble into the river. She felt that one strong arm like that which supported her was worth a thousand old and decrepit planters, and she recognized the fact that a man who could talk so coolly and unconcernedly in a situation of such extreme peril, was one of no ordinary courage. But she was not yet quite prepared to give up her golden dreams. The dross was not quite washed out of her soul, and she did not know how much she loved Fred Eckerson. Besides she did not half believe him.

Their clumsy vessel floated on, now root first, now sideways, and now half submerged beneath the boiling current. Their precarious hold became more uncertain as their frames became chilled by the cold water, and every plunge of the log threatened to cast them once more into the river. In vain Fred endeavored to attract the attention of some one on the shore. The cottonwood retained a course nearly in the middle of the stream too far from either bank to render their outcries of much avail. As it grew dark, their case seemed more and more hopeless, and to Becky there appeared to be no escape from certain death, either by drowning in the darkness or by exhaustion before day-break. Yet to die in this man's arms seemed not wholly a terror. She could hardly think, even if death must come, of any way in which she would rather meet it. Was it possible she loved him, and must needs be brought within the valley of the shadow before she could know her heart. Had she loved him all along? While she was thinking about it, chilled by the night air, she fell asleep. When she awoke the stars were shining, but she was warm and comfortable. Raising her head, she found herself enveloped in Fred's coat.

"Fred!"

"Well?"

"You have troubled yourself to keep me warm; you are freezing."

"No, I ain't. I took it off because it was so awful hot," and taking out his handkerchief with his disengaged hand, he made a pretense of wiping the perspiration from his brow.

"How long have I been asleep?"

"About three hours. We are drifting in shore now."

"Shall we be saved?"

"I don't know. Put your arms around my neck, for I am going to take mine away."

Beck did this time as she was bid. She not only threw her arms quickly around his neck, but laid her head upon his breast without the slightest hesitation. In the darkness Fred did not know that she imprinted a kiss upon his shirt-bosom.

"Hold fast, now!" he cried. "Hold on for your dear life."

The log had been nearing the shore for some time, and it now shot suddenly under the boughs of a large sycamore which overhung the bank and trailed in the brown flood. Quick as thought Fred seized the limb above his head, and pulled with all his might. The headlong course of the cottonwood was checked; it plunged heavily and turned partly over, its top became entangled in the sycamore and a terrible crackling of limbs ensued. With a sudden spring, Fred gained the projecting branch, dragging his clinging burden after him. In another instant the cottonwood had broken away and continued on its voyage down the river, while the bent sycamore regained its shape with such a quick rebound that the travellers were nearly precipitated into the stream again. Fred, half supporting, half dragging Becky, worked his way to the trunk by a series of gymnastics that would have done no discredit to Blondin, and in a moment more both had reached the ground in safety.

"That's a business we are well out of," he said, when he had regained his breath.

"Now where are we?"

He looked about. A light was glimmering from a habitation behind them, a short distance from where they stood. Becky could not walk without great pain and Fred lifted her lightly in his arms and started for the house. It proved to be the dwelling of a small planter, who was not lacking in hospitality. Here their wants were quickly attended to, and under the cheering influence of warmth and shelter, Becky was soon herself again.

They drove home on the following day, Fred having procured the loan of the planter's horse and chaise for that purpose, promising to return them by Mr. Newton's servants the next day after. The morning was bright and clear, and the fragrance of the orange groves was in the air. Becky, who had maintained almost utter silence since their escape from the cottonwood, was no less silent now. Fred himself did not appear particularly communicative, and many miles of the long ride were taken without a remark from either. It was Becky who spoke first.

"Fred," she said.

"Yes."

"You have saved my life, have you not?"

"Happy to do it any day," he remarked, not knowing what else to say."

"Thank you very much."

"Quite welcome, I'm sure."

There was another long silence, broken only by the sound of the horse's hoofs upon the road. Fred himself seemed to have lost some of his habitual ease, for he kept his whip in constant motion, and he held the reins nervously.

"Fred."

"Yes."

"Are you going to write to that young lady in New Orleans?"

"I s'pose so."

"Hadn't you—better—try—again—before you—before you write?"

He turned his eyes full upon her, and opened them wide.

"Try again? Try what?"

"I've been thinking through the night," said Becky, bending low to hide her face and carefully separating the fringe of her mantilla, "that perhaps—if you ask me again the same question, that you did yesterday morning—I might answer a little—different."

Becky's head went against Fred's shoulder and her face became immediately lost to view.

"You darling!" he exclaimed, "I never intended to do otherwise. The young lady in New Orleans was wholly a myth. But when, may I ask, did you change your mind?"

"I never changed it," she murmured. "I have loved you all the time, but never knew it until last night."

And to this day, when Mrs. Becky Eckerson is asked where it was that she fell in love with her husband, she answers, "on a log!"

Readables.

Our democratic exchanges are jubilant as possible over the great "victory" of their party in Connecticut, and pronounce it an indication of the final breaking up of the republican party. If our memory is not at fault, they talked in a similar strain just after the New Hampshire election in 1871, the North Carolina election in 1872, and on numerous other occasions; and we can only wonder, when there have been so many indications of the decadence, disruption and dissolution of the republican party, that there is enough of it now left for the democratic party to combat with.

The novel torpedo boat now being built at the Brooklyn Navy Yard is a subject of much mystery and conjecture. No detailed account of the plan of construction will be given by the officials. The plans of the boat have been only exhibited to two or three persons; the carpenters even have no connected idea of the work. When the work is more advanced and the mysteries of construction hidden, it will be possible to view the boat, but not before.

The death of General Canby reduces the number of brigadier-generals on the army register from seven to the limit of six, established by the recent act of Congress, and hence there is no vacancy created.

A Honolulu letter reports that annexation with the United States is openly advocated, and meetings for that purpose are being held.

Mrs. Cota of Fall River tried the experiment of filling a kerosene lamp while burning a few days ago, and succeeded in nearly burning herself and baby to death. It is not expected that either will live.

A sad bereavement is that of Mr. Murray, of the firm of Murray & Baker, of Chicago, who lost father, mother, and sister in the sinking of the Atlantic.

The boiler of steamer Westfield had two rivets blown out of it on Monday, in New York, and the panic-stricken passengers were fearful of a second disaster.

Mills No. 1 and 2, at Chicopee, Mass., were burned Monday night. Loss $750,000. The fire caught from the upsetting of a lamp.

Murder at Candia.

An orphan boy by the name of John Emerson, aged fifteen years, who came from Richmond, Va., and has a sister at Great Falls and another at Haverhill, Mass., has been living in Candia for the last two or three years, and latterly with Mr. Jesse R. Fitz, on the North road, about three miles from Candia depot, and two miles from Candia village. Stopping with Mr. Fitz, on a visit, was his nephew, a boy about fifteen years of age, who is a son of Mr. Newton Fitz, a carpenter, of Lowell. His name is Wilfred Fitz and he has been at Candia about two months. Mr. Charles Rowe, a farmer, living three-quarters of a mile from Mr. Fitz, was drawn on the jury at Exeter, and left for that duty, leaving his wife, two little children and his aged mother, Mrs. Sarah Rowe, 76 years old, at home; and had secured the service of the lad, John Emerson, to stay at his home during his absence, to do the chores and take care of the cattle.

At 12 o'clock, Monday night, the old lady who slept in an adjoining room to the lad, John Emerson, heard a noise in his room, and called out: "Johnny, Johnny!" Receiving no answer she got up, went into his room in the dark, and felt in the bed, and was almost horror-stricken by feeling his body and the hot blood pouring therefrom and into the bed. The noise had awakened Mr. Rowe's wife, who was sleeping down stairs, and they found that Johnny had been, as they had supposed, murdered with an axe. Mrs. Rowe ran for the neighbors, the first of whom to arrive was Mr. Jesse Fitz, when to his astonishment he discovered on the floor where the boy had been mutilated his own axe covered with blood. The boy was also covered with blood, his face horribly cut, and the bed clothing and wall bespattered.

Dr. E. S. Perry found a terrible gash extending from the corner of the mouth into it and back to the neck, under the ear; another gash extending from just below the nose on the left side, about two inches long, penetrating into the mouth, and separating the jaw and cutting out a piece thereof, and pushing out several teeth, and with a frightful gash across the bridge of the nose, from eye to eye. On the right hand, the thumb and two fingers were cut off entirely, and lay in the bed. There is also a heavy gash across the back of the left hand, and one on the wrist. He had lost a great deal of blood, and Dr. Perry thinks he cannot live. The boy heretofore mentioned as Alfred Fitz is suspected of having committed this dreadful crime, and was sent to Lowell, to his father.

Whoever committed the crime took an old chair from the barn, placed it to the parlor window and got in there, passed through into the hall, up stairs and to the rear of the house, where Emerson was asleep, and went out of the house in the same way.

The agent of Mr. John E. Owens, who came down on the evening train from Manchester, informs us that the Fitz boy was a somnambulist and that he had recently been found in a neighbor's house with a broad-axe, having gone there and been found while fast asleep. On Tuesday morning on his way to the depot, the murder of the Emerson boy not having been spoken of, he asked his uncle to let him call and see Emerson, but was refused. He appeared innocent. It is thought he killed Emerson and does not know it.

LETHARGIC INFLUENCE OF THE SEASON—Languor, lassitude, an indisposition to engage in any actual employment, mental dullness and melancholy are evils which materially detract from human enjoyment, and they are experienced in a greater or less degree, according to the temperament and constitutional tendencies of the individual, by a large proportion of the community in spring. To rouse the physical and mental powers from this sluggish condition a tonic and receive is imperatively required, and Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the only medicinal preparation in existence that is thoroughly adapted to the word. The first dose produces a genial glow thoroughout the system which is an earnest of permanent relief. As time wears on and the tonic and regulating properties of this pure and agreeable vegetable remedy takes full effect, every trace of debility, nervousness and hypochondria vanishes, and mind and body become alike alert and vigorous.

The Reunion.

A meeting of the Fourth of July committee was held at the Common Council room, Monday evening, the Mayor and Finance committee being present previous to adjournment.

James P. Bartlett, Esq., from a special committee reported a resolution, which was accepted and adopted, favoring the appointment of an auditing committee, consisting of two Aldermen, two councilmen and three members of the citizens' committee, whose duty it should be to audit all bills for expenditures; also to appoint a treasurer to receive funds subscribed by the citizens.

A committee, consisting of Ex-Governor Goodwin, Hon. Frank Jones, Wm. R. Preston, J. C. Carr and Henry M. Clark, was appointed to confer with the City Councils on Thursday evening to secure an appropriation from the city.

The committee adjourned to this evening, when a general attendance of all members is earnestly requested, ladies who feel interested included.

Recruiting on a small scale for the United States Navy will be recommenced in a few days, with a view merely to filling vacancies which are constantly occurring, and to enable the government to keep in reserve a number in excess of those in actual service. Machinists and boiler-makers are the most difficult to obtain, although such workmen can make more money in the employ of the Navy than in most shops on shore.

Col. E. R. Goodrich writes that the New York delegation of Sons have succeeded in obtaining transportation to Portsmouth and return for $7. Philadelphians and all returning Sons west of New York can obtain the same terms by applying to the New York delegation.

Easter Decorations—Re-Building The Burnt District—The Returning and Non-Returning Sons—A Healthy Minnow—Exhausting Jokes.

BOSTON, April 14.

Easter Sunday has passed, and Lent is over. [This refers to all things but small sums of money lent to particular friends on promise of immediate repayment, and umbrellas loaned under promise of prompt return.] The disagreeable weather of yesterday will long be remembered by Bostonians, who ventured out in large numbers to witness the beautiful floral decorations and listen to the fine services in our city churches. The custom of bringing in the powerful auxiliary of Nature's praise to the Creator, by the purity and fragrance of choicest blossoms, is growing year by year. Despite the abominable weather of Saturday, our city florists were taxed to their utmost, some being obliged to work in full force through the entire night. The enormous amount of flowers needed may be imagined from the fact that of violets alone the Galvin Brothers used over twelve thousand in filling their orders that day.

The work of raising goes on rapidly on the site of the great fire. The ruins of the old buildings are nearly all razed to the ground, while the walls of many new ones are raised four or five stories from the ground. Albert Blaisdell, Esq., has the difficult and dangerous contract of removing Trinity Church, well under weigh. The heavy square tower contains an immense number of cubic feet of granite, and the price for taking down this ruin is the round sum of $4000.

The "Sons" here are moving in earnest at last, and will give a good account of themselves at home on the "Fourth." Many who came in '53 will be present in '73; many—peace be with them—have visited their final home. They lie in foreign lands, where the orange blossoms, where the palm waves, where bitter biting cold benumbs the blood, where eager bearded men delve for wealth in glittering sand or sparkling gem, and far down beneath the restless surface of the blue water that so ceaselessly murmurs its restless hymn of grandeur at the very gates of their old home. When Portsmouth welcomes her returning "boys," those who have departed forever should not be forgotten.

The laws against catching fish out of season should be vigorously enforced. Not long since I noticed in the window of Rogers & Allen, Faneuil Hall Sq., a tiny pickerel, only 38 inches in length, and weighing but 16 1-2 pounds. Now if that minnow had been allowed to remain in Castleton Pond, near Rutland, Vt., whence he was taken, he might have grown to a decent size in thirty or forty years, and the public have been spared the exposure of such a sprat in a clothing store window. Contrary to general expectation this pickerel proved to be excellent eating.

Youthful Boston came to grief on the 1st instant. After an immense deal of labor they succeeded in decorating the sidewalks with bricks sufficient to rebuild a large portion of the burnt district. There were bricks placed temptingly under old hats, to kick; there were bricks enclosed in neat parcels, to pick up; there were bricks in every style of the April Fool cuisine; but, alas! the fools would neither kick nor pick, and the boys were not happy. The rising generation must improvise some new tricks, for the old ones are too thin.

I met a man at noon with a lighted lantern. I accosted this modern Diogenes as to what he was seeking. He said: "an honest man." Then I saw he was an employee of the Gas Company, and having read the articles thereon in the Globe, came to the conclusion he would find what he sought a non est man in that business.

Mr. Bellew, the English elocutionist, has been here, mightily heralded through the journals, but his bellowings have not created much few-roar.

Carver had a nice cattle scene on exhibition a few days since. Who should paint a good picture of a cow, unless it was a calver? [Answer next week.] M.

SPRING TIME.

Sonoma Wine Bitters

are the BEST to use to counteract the debilitating effects of SPRING and early SUMMER. They are MILD AND PLEASANT IN THEIR EFFECTS, and no change in diet is needed.

EVERYBODY CAN TAKE THEM:

Man, Woman or Child!

They are made with PURE, SOFT, MILD WINE, and choice Plants and Roots, are Delicious to the Taste and Delightful in Aroma, while the strong, fiery spirit, so prominent in most other Bitters, is lacking.

SONOMA WINE BITTERS

have been used for years, not only in the United States but in the British Provinces, West Coast of South America, Sandwich Islands, the East and West Indies, and Austria, and are recognised as the Most Palatable, Healthy and Appetizing Bitters in the market.

Sonoma Wine Bitters

are Medicinal and Invigorating, cleansing the blood, and giving a healthy tone to the entire system. Ladies and Children will find therein a most agreeable Tonic. Try them, and you will use no other.

If

If the moon were made of cheese,
And the stars were macaroons;
If the sands were all green peas,
And the pebbles all stewed prunes;

If the sea were bitter ale,
And the rivers red-heartrum;
If the woods were curly kail,
And the lakes were sparkling Mumm;

If ever these things should be,
I should like you to understand
That I'd very much rather be drowned at sea
Than buried alive on land.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

Pulmocine Cordial

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the choice of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment' warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," no one the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SQUILL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S

PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ill," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women: and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WHY JEFFERSON DAVIS WAS NOT PROSECUTED.—The Charleston Daily News of March 29 is responsible for the following revelations made by Judge Clifford, recently, at a dinner party given in that city by Colonel Richard Lathers to a number of distinguished northern gentlemen, who, at Colonel Lathers' table, met some of the leading gentlemen of South Carolina. The News remarks, after referring to the conversation upon the Webster-Parkman murder, in which Judge Clifford prosecuted as Attorney General of Massachusetts: "Another event of great historical interest in which Judge Clifford participated was the solemn consultation of a small number of the most able lawyers of the North at Washington, a few months after the war, upon the momentous question as to whether the Federal Government should commence a criminal prosecution against Jefferson Davis for his participation and leadership in the war of secession. In this council, which was surrounded at the time with the utmost secrecy, and which has never yet been described, were United States Attorney General Speed, Judge Clifford, Hon. William M. Evarts, and perhaps half a dozen others, who had been selected from the whole northern profession for their legal ability and acumen, and the result of their deliberation was the sudden abandonment of the case by the Federal Government, in view of the insurmountable difficulties in the way of getting a final conviction, which were revealed by their patient study of the law bearing upon the case. Mr. Hoadley, then and now a near neighbor and intimate friend of Judge Clifford, relates that before the latter set out for Washington to join this conference he paid him (Mr. Hoadley) the compliment of calling upon him to consult upon the momentous question which he was about to assist in solving, and it was agreed between them that unless it were clear that the conviction of Mr. Davis would follow his trial, and that the law and the facts on the side of the prosecution would be irresistible in the Supreme Court as well as in whatever court of original jurisdiction the case might be initiated, it would be the part of wisdom and true statesmanship as well as policy not to begin the prosecution. The conference took place, and was long, learned and profound. The federal constitution, the law of nations, the decisions of the Supreme Court in the trial of Aaron Burr, and other causes celebres, having more or less bearing on the case then under consideration, and the whole list of State trials in the history of the civilized world, were studied, weighed, analyzed and dissected. The council was divided upon some points and agreed upon others. Some were at first strenuous for prosecution, others who had weighed the subject more carefully insisted from the first upon the futility of such a course, and finally the wiser counsels of the latter prevailed and the proposed prosecution of Mr. Davis was, as will be remembered, suddenly abandoned, although it may doubtless be news to many of our readers to learn that this sudden change of policy was the direct result of this solemn conclave. After the council had adjourned, and Judge Clifford had returned to his home, Mr. Hoadley inquired the result of their deliberations, and Judge Clifford made a striking and characteristic reply in something like the following language: "Remarkable as the case may appear, we find that the laws of the United States are not so constructed as to afford any certainty of punishing high treason or rebellion, and Mr. Davis if arraigned under them cannot be proved to conviction. Perhaps it is that the men who framed our fundamental law and system of government, and who were then fighting for liberty, with halters about their necks, did not pay much attention to the question of punishing in the future the acts which they were committing themselves."

Another reminiscence, illustrating the sentiment of the thinking men of the North in 1865, was related by Mr. Hoadley of Hon. John A. Andrew; then Governor of Massachusetts. It was on the day of the grand review of the Federal army in Washington; a number of gentlemen were being entertained at the residence of General S. L. M. Barlow, in that city, and the conversation had turned to the subject of bringing the leaders of the Confederate cause to punishment under the criminal law of the land, when Gov. Andrew expressed himself as follows: "It cannot be done. The criminal law has no application here. Why it is proved by its very title that the criminal law is a law for criminals—the laws or the code of laws formed by the great body of the people, who are in the main good men, for the regulation and punishment of the bad men scattered here and there throughout society. But when a whole people commit an act, rash, and direful in its consequences though it may be, and the best and wisest men and women of the whole participate therein, encourage and lead it, it is impossible to consider the criminal law as being framed to meet that case, or as in being in any way applicable thereto. These people appealed to the arbitrament of war, and they have suffered by the war—that is their punishment. I believed in giving them war when it was war they wanted—yes, and I gave a captain's commission once to a Massachusetts sergeant for no other reason than that he had, with his own hands, hanged seven guerrillas. That was war, that the measure of their punishment; but criminal law has nothing to do with this case." This declaration of the emphatic Governor of Massachusetts caused the remark, when related yesterday, last it had a historical parallel in the famous words of Burke, when he told the British Parliament, in reference to the American revolutionists, that he "knew of no way to write an indictment of a whole people."

A number of similar reminiscences, of both Northern and Southern history, were related, and after an hour or two of pleasant conversation, and mutual expressions of a desire for better acquaintance, and a fuller appreciation of the condition of both sections of the country, the guests separated.

THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1873.

Somnambulism.

It is true that the horrible affair at Candia may be the result of somnambulism, yet we hope this plea will not be successfully used at murder trials in place of the well-worn insanity dodge. Conceive the idea, for instance, that Wagner was a somnambulist, that he rowed to Smutty-nose, murdered the Christensons, robbed the house, coolly set the table and ate heartily and then rowed home again! Consider farther that he knew nothing of the cruel murders he had committed, partook of breakfast at his boarding house and availed himself of the first opportunity of escape from the city, the latter action implying guilt, and then the absurdity of ascribing it all to somnambulism is evident

The action of the lad at Candia, Wilfred Fitz, in assaulting his friend and playmate, John Emerson, requires a strong stretch of the imagination for people to believe that somnambulism is the only cause. Young Emerson had gone to sleep in a house he had never before slept in. Fitz had never been in the house, which was a mile away from his abiding place; yet he arose from his bed, took the axe with him, entered the house at midnight, although all the windows had been fastened with nails, found the sleeping room of Emerson, assaulted him, returned home and was sound asleep when his uncle awoke him in the morning and told him he must return to Lowell. On the way to the depot he requested his uncle to let him call at the house of Mr. Rowe, and bid Emerson good bye! The circumstances of the case certainly go far to sustain the statement that if Fitz committed the deed he is unconscious of it, and his previous pre-disposition to somnambulism makes the plea plausible.

The singular features of the case recall to mind an incident which happened in this city a few years ago. A young lady residing on Islington street had been intending to carry a squash to a friend on Cabot street. Feeling weary, she went to sleep on a lounge at home, with her eyes open. An hour afterward her mother and sister called her to go with one of them; she arose, donned shawl and hat, and taking the squash in her arms, proceeded to the residence of her friend on Cabot street, chatted merrily for half an hour, returned home and retired. Her first conversation next morning was in reference to the squash, which she declared must be taken to its destination immediately. All efforts to convince her that she had performed that duty the evening previous were unavailing, and to this day she can recall no remembrance of it!

An account of the action of a singer, who arose and sang an hour while in a somnambulic state has recently been going the rounds of the papers. This and other similar occurrences, with the sad affair at Candia will set people thinking, and among the first thoughts comes the question, "What is somnambulism?"

The spiritualists claim that "mediums" who give what purports to be messages from "departed friends in the spirit land," are so controlled by "spirits" that they lose all consciousness, the soul leaves the body and absents itself from earth, while other influences control the speech and actions of the medium's body! If this queer doctrine were true, evil disposed "spirits" who had perchance been pushed into "kingdom come" by an undue tightening of hemp about the neck, would be as likely to "get control" of the "unconscious medium" as any others. If somnambulists are "mediums" then the controlling "influence" might induce them to commit deeds of violence such as that at Candia! The thought is a horrible one, but we think is consistent with the spiritualistic belief. In such a singular and unnatural state of affairs, the best of us might find ourselves suddenly awakened at the bedside of a friend with axe in hand ready to hurry that friend into eternity and ourselves to the gallows.

A more reasonable explanation might be given, possibly with a proper knowledge of the habits of young Fitz. His mind might have been in a morbid state from the perusal of accounts of the deeds of Wagner and others. The impression received may have haunted his dreams—a fearful nightmare! Bound in sleep, he may have unconsciously endeavored to kill his playmate and can recall no remembrance of the act! There are more wonders in the world than all are disposed to admit. Are spiritualism and somnambulism identical? Is the action of Wilfred Fitz directly traceable to outside influence for which no one on earth is responsible, or to natural causes operating naturally?

The Candia Horror.

John Emerson, the injured boy, slept well Tuesday night and seemed to be quite comfortable Wednesday morning. He suffers more pain on account of the cutting off of his fingers than from the frightful wounds in his head and face. It now appears that he may recover. Wilford Fitz, who committed the assault, has been confined to his room at night for some time past on account of his tendency to get up in his sleep.

Horrible Barbarity.

The demonstration of the negroes of Grant Parish, Louisiana, against the McEnery officials, recently reported, has resulted in one of the bloodiest conflicts between the whites and blacks which ever occurred in that State. It appears that the negroes having driven out the obnoxious officials, who, they alleged, were elected by fraud, had entrenched themselves at Colfax, where they were attacked last Sunday by a force of whites and driven into the court-house. That building was then set on fire and the negroes were shot down as they escaped from the flames. It is reported that between eighty and a hundred were killed, and the terribly significant statement is made that none were to be found afterwards for miles around. Two white men were severely, and a few others slightly wounded.

Another account says all Sunday the two factions quarreled at the Court House, in the village or town of Colfax, and the riot culminated in the Court House being set on fire by the whites, and burned to the ground, together with from 200 to 300 negroes, who were unable to escape from the burning building. The unfortunate colored men were literally roasted alive in sight of their enemies.

Readables.

William Patterson, the English thief, who made the murderous assault on Officer Shaw, six days ago, at the Massachusetts State prison, was sentenced to twenty years in the State prison.

Augusta thieves are hard pushed. One stole a coffin from Knowlton's warerooms, Wednesday night.

Some of the members of the present unpopular Legislature of Kentucky having declared that Watterson, of the Courier-Journal, would not dare to appear in Frankfort, that gentleman sent them a message something like this: "I do not see how there can be any bloodshed. As I have no occasion to go to Frankfort again during this session I will not be there; and when the next Legislature meets you will not be there."

Indiana cats are having the small-pox.

Postal cards will be a convenience to people who wish to tell you all they know. Smith says to his landlady: "Any letters for me to-day?" And she answers: "Only two postal cards, but there's nothing particular on them."

Dr. Thomas, murdered by the Modocs, was one of the leading Methodist divines of the Pacific coast.

The Boston Advertiser says Madame Goddard married Mr. Davidson, the musical critic of the London Times, since her return to England, and has but one child, and that a son by her former husband. She was reported to have sailed for Australia on a professional tour some time ago. The Mrs. Davidson who was drowned by the wreck of the Atlantic was probably the wife of the late Professor Davidson of the University of California. She was accompanied by a grown-up daughter, who also was lost.

Arrangements are in progress to run a fast steamer between Portland and Bangor the coming summer, to leave Bangor at eight o'clock every morning except Sunday, and connect with a train on the Boston & Maine Railroad, by which passengers will arrive in Boston at ten o'clock on the evening of the same day.

State News.

A singular case was recently decided by the Supreme Court at Concord. In 1868, over 2000 barrels of tar were taken from the Charles River, where it had accumulated from the Boston gasworks. In 1869 a survey estimated the quantity remaining to be 250,000 barrels, and under the laws of New Hampshire, a joint stock company for getting out the remainder was formed with a capital of $40,000. Four persons originally formed the company, one of whom—A. A. Moore—sold half his interest to another man, Thomas Johnson, for $2990. The company meeting with no success, and the business being practically abandoned, Johnson brought suit against Moore for having got his money under false pretences, and was finally awarded $1815 damages.

Nothing but circumstantial evidence has yet been obtained in the Goffstown murder case, but there is no doubt that Mr. Merrill entered his house on the evening of the twenty-third of October, about eight o'clock, and was never seen again until his body was taken from the river on the eighth of April in a frightfully mutilated condition. The supposition is that Merrill and his wife were the sole occupants of the house that night, and the theory is that the bloodstains found about the house, which a thorough washing had not obliterated, show that Merrill was killed in his own house and afterwards thrown into the river.

Concord, at its last town meeting, decided to accept the bequest of Ebenezer Hubbard, who left the town $600 and a strip of land on the left bank of the river as a sight for a monument in commemoration of the skirmish in 1775.

A draw-bar pulled out on the cattle train near West Canaan on Monday night, dumping two cattle cars and the drovers' saloon. No one was injured, but a number of calves and sheep were killed, and considerable stock is roving at large over the meadows.

An ice house in Lake Village was burned last week; but it is denied that it caught from spontaneous combustion.

The selectmen of Gorham find dogs more numerous than sheep in that town.

The story that Shute, the defaulting cashier of the Exeter Bank, has been seen in Cuba is said to be false.

John Stark Sanborn of Danville jumped down into a well recently, endeavoring to commit suicide. His recovery is doubtful.

SHUTE'S SPECULATIONS.—A communication has been received from N. Appleton Shute, the Exeter defaulter, in which he says that the story of his defalcation is the old one of unsuccessful speculation; that ill fortune attended his speculative investments, and in using the property of the bank to release himself from his dilemma, he only sunk deeper into the mire, and his final flight was the inevitable result. He states that his losses were wholly on Wall street, New York, where he operated through Boston parties. He further states that his transactions were bad enough, but they might have been much worse, that he took none of the stolen property with him, nothing more than a few hundred dollars he had in his pocket at the time. He writes feelingly of his wife and children, who are held blameless and he trusts they may be comfortable cared for. There is nothing about the letter to show from whence or how it came. In verification of Shute's statement it is shown by a memorandum taken from the books of his Boston broker that between the dates of October 22 and November 25, his net losses amounted to $42,619, which was but a part of the heavy losses by which he was finally swamped. Of a package of $10,000 in greenbacks in the bank vault, from which $2000 were missing, supposed to have been extracted by the defaulter, it is stated in the letter referred to, and is also shown in the books of the bank, that they were paid out the day of his absconding, January 20, to the Exeter Machine Works to pay off their help, and the date and amount taken out was marked by him on the strap which enclosed the package. All his transactions with individuals it appears were invariably straightforward and correct.

AN OLD LADY'S HOPE.—There are several residents of Detroit whose friends took passage on the missing steamship City of Boston, which went down to her ocean grave in such a mysterious manner that her fate has never been ascertained. Although so long a time has elapsed since the steamer was given up, there are those here who have the strongest faith that at least some of the passengers were cast away on some shore or island, and will some day make their escape to tell the sad story. One of these is a woman of 60, whose manly and promising son was one of the lost passengers. She has subscribed for a Boston paper for no other reason than that she thinks the press of that city will be the first to receive news of the ship. As regularly as the paper is received she opens it in the hope that her son's fate may be explained; and disappointment only engenders new hope. His plate is kept at the table, and to almost every friend who calls the mother says: "I have not heard from William yet, but I hope to this week." The neighbors feel that the hope is the only sunlight of her life, and encourage her in it. No one but a mother could hope thus against all the rest of the world, and none but a mother's heart would continue so faithful through all the long months since the missing steamer, so heavily freighted with human souls, plunged down to her deep-sea grave, or was beaten to pieces on the rocks of some forbidden shore. —Detroit Press.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Sudden Death.

Capt. Prince Harding was taken ill at 2 o'clock P. M., Wednesday, had an attack of apoplexy at 5, and died at about 8 o'clock in the evening. He was an enterprising citizen, and his death is a public loss.

The Concert.

The concert given by the Barnabee troupe at the Temple, Tuesday evening, gathered the largest audience which has been in that building for many months, and was eminently deserving of all the patronage it received. Barnabee was as amusing as ever, in his humorous pieces; the quartette and solo singing was splendid, and Mr. Arbuckle's cornet playing was of course perfect, but the closing duet, "When ye gang awa, Jamie," by Mrs. H. M. Smith and Mr. Fessenden, was sung too fast, (to our fancy,) and Mr. Arbuckle's breathing was unpleasantly audible to the persons on the front seats. Mrs. Smith's song, "The Chalet Horn," with cornet obligato by Mr. Arbuckle, was exquisitely pleasing and won deserved applause. The concert was the success of the season in the number of patrons it attracted, and equally so in the entire satisfaction it gave. Mrs. Smith has just made an engagement with Christ Church in New York at a salary of $4200 a year, and that church gets a singer who has no superior in any church choir in America. The fine toned piano used on this occasion was of the celebrated Weber manufacture, for the sale of which Mr. Barnabee is agent.

Laconics.

Capt. E. G. Adams has disposed of his stock of stationery, periodicals and confectionery, toys, etc., at the news room, Congress Block, to Messrs. Fred F. and Samuel W. Moses, Jr., two live young business men. Capt. Adams retires from the business with a largely increased list of personal friends, who wish him success in his future business operations. The Moses brothers will also have the best wishes of our citizens in conducting the business at No. 1 Congress Block.

The Boston Transcript of Wednesday evening has a racy description of matters at the Episcopal church in this city.

Barque Quickstep, Chase, at New York from Glasgow, took the northern passage, and had heavy gales and ugly cross seas; lost and split sails. March 25, lat.45, lon.47, experienced a severe hurricane from S to NNW; blew away lower topsails from yards, and cap off of bowsprit; also sprung bowsprit and jibboom badly; lost foretopgallantmast and all head sails; sprung forctopmast and received other slight damages. Since April 3 had variable winds and foggy weather; was 18 days west of the Banks. March 24, on the northeast of the Banks, saw several small icebergs.

Portsmouth howls loudly for Maggie Mitchell to come this way.

S. J. Court.

Among the indictments reported by the Grand Jury at Exeter was one against Newcastle Bridge Co. for not keeping their bridges covered with snow during the winter, and one against School District No. 1 of Hampton for continuing a school-house in the highway.

John J. Smart was divorced from Anna Smart of Portsmouth.

Catharine McCarty, for keeping a disorderly house in Portsmouth, was fined $50 and costs.

John W. F. Locke, Addison Wall and John H. Parker plead guilty to the charge of selling intoxicating liquors at Seabrook, and were fined $50 and costs each.

THE NARRAGANSETT COMPANY have had the world-famous steamers Bristol and Providence thoroughly overhauled and refitted with every appliance for safety and comfort. Trips for the Summer season were resumed on Monday. The elegant and commodious saloons of these steamers have attracted general notice. One hardly realizes that he is aboard a steamer, everything being conducted as in a mammoth hotel. Promenade concerts are given every evening by Hall's brass, reed and string bands. Trains leave Boston from the Old Colony depot at 5:40 P. M. every day, connecting with these magnificent steamers at Fall River; returning they leave Pier 28, North River, foot of Murray street, New York, at 5 P. M. J. R. Kendrick, formerly of the Concord Railroad, is Superintendent of the Old Colony Road, and Mr. Richard W. E. Robinson, formerly of this city, is one of the Cashiers of the Narragansett Steamship Company.

SPRING TIME.

Sonoma Wine Bitters

are the BEST to me to counteract the debilitating effects of SPRING and early SUMMER. They are MILD AND PLEASANT IN THEIR EFFECTS, and no change in diet is needed.

EVERYBODY CAN TAKE THEM:

Man, Woman or Child!

They are made with PURE, SOFT, MILD WINE, and choice Plants and Roots, are Delicious to the Taste and Delightful in Aroma. Yet the strong, fiery spirit, so prominent in most other Bitters, is lacking.

SONOMA WINE BITTERS

have been used for years, not only in the United States but in the British Provinces, West Coast of South America, Sandwich Islands, the East and West Indias, and Austria, and are recognised as the Most Palatable, Healthy and Appetizing Bitters in the market.

Sonoma Wine Bitters

are Medicinal and Invigorating, cleansing the blood, and giving a healthy tone to the entire system. Ladies and Children will find therein a most agreeable Tonic. Try them, and you will use no other.

Sole everywhere by Druggists and Grocers.

Morning Chronicle.

THE GALLANT O'KELLY.—The following, from the Washington National Republican is a specimen of the many cruel paragraphs, on the subject, now going the rounds of the press:

"The New York Herald's O'Kelly has been arrested in Cuba by the Spanish authorities, and is held a prisoner. That paper is trying to make itself believe that the position of the O'Kelly is a critical one, and, in yesterday's issue printed a double-leaded leader warning the Spaniards not to harm an O'Kelly hair."

This is so maliciously disingenuous that we shall not stoop to expose it. Perhaps at this very moment the gallant O'Kelly's gore is staining the sod of the fair Queen of the Antilles. At such an awful juncture Ireland and America have one supreme consolation—the reflection that he will die game. Neither would death find him unprepared, for he was a gracious, apostolic youth, and the most devout Christian would not hesitate to inscribe upon his tombstone the simple legend, "O. K." New York Commercial Advertiser.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

Pulmocine Cordial

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cured for. There painful attacks come with scarcely a moment' warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SQUILL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating, yet it increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S

PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women: and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY.—"Gath," the Chicago Tribune's correspondent, has been amusing himself, lately, by interviewing an engraver on the subject of counterfeit money. Said this gentleman: "I am one of the oldest engravers in the country. There is an investigation one day to be made into the currency of the country, which will startle you, and your newspapers and all their readers. There is a ten-dollar bill. Take it—look at it! Do you see anything notable about it?" I looked at the bill all over, and then the man all over, and saw nothing to excite a remark. "There is nothing particular about that bill," he said, "except that it is a counterfeit. There are eighteen distinct counterfeits on the ten-dollar bill, and, as an engraver, I know that they present eighteen different counterfeiting gangs. People generally know nothing whatever about the duplication of United States bonds, and about the quantity of counterfeit scrip afloat. If you, as a newspaper man, were to go to General Spinner, and to the heads of the Treasury, and ask how much counterfeit currency was in circulation, they would probably tell you ten per cent; but I tell you as an engraver, that they have admitted to me that there is twenty-five per cent., or one quarter of the whole amount of the stamps current in this country, which are fraudulent.

Do you know, sir, that the postal currency is renewed six times every year? That is the case, and see the possibilities for its increased duplication and counterfeiting. We could better afford to pay fifty per cent. premium and use gold than have to deal as we do with a lot of paper which is beyond the control, to a great extent, of the Government officials. The extravagantly high prices, and the corruption in our politics and life, hinge upon the currency. The duplication of the United States bonds will some day be found such an alarming matter as will bring the whole country to its feet. That crime began in the Treasury as far back as Chase's time. John Covode and others in Congress made strenuous efforts to expose it, but they were gagged by the gavel and the party majority. An official who at that time was connected with the printing, had, in some way, got a grip upon the Secretary, and could not be budged from his place by any power in the country. His accounts were short one year $63,000, and he could not tell where the money had gone. They kept after him, however, and, on one occasion, he appeared before the examiners with his arms full of bonds, and, throwing them down, said, "there are your $63,000.'

Now, there was a press used for printing at that time, and it ran repeatedly at night. The official himself was seen to immerge after dark, on two occasions, with a great tin box in his hand, which he put into his buggy and carried away. Now, how much duplication of bonds do you suppose it required to make $63,000 worth of coupons to equalize that account?" "Several hundred thousand, I suppose."

"No, sir, it took between $18,000,000 and $19,009,000 of bonds, and about that time happened the first duplication."

I looked suddenly into the old gentleman's eyes, and was in great doubt whether I was speaking to an intelligent lunatic or a great reformer.

WHEAT AND PHYSICAL VIGOR.—There is a southern wheat belt, which includes Australia, in part, South Africa, New Zealand, and a part of South America, where a civilization equal to that of the central north of the United States is growing up. Our correspondent reasons almost exclusively from factsas they exist, and not from their causes; but he reaches the same result as, a priori, science would have arrived at. For nothing is more sure in the chemistry of life than that the great bread-eaters are the great thinkers, or that the phosphorus which wheat contains, in the outer kernel, immediately beneath the husk, is the feeder of brains, and the material substance which provokes to thought, study, reason, and all the forms of nervous energy. There are physiologists who attribute the remarkable success of States like Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois to the bounty and perfection of the wheat crop, and the intellectual stimulus, or rather food, which it affords the brain. Certainly no commonwealths in the world have evinced a higher sense of law and order, or more rapidly developed a social system which has hardly an equal in the world. The constitution of Indiana, for instance, the very centre of the wheat zone, is beyond comparison the best in the Union, and produces the highest results in our civilization.

But the full value of wheat as a civilizer will never be fully realized until wheat-meal takes the place of bolted flour, and the people learn to make bread without yeast or risings. Good bread is emphatically the "staff of life;" but the commercial article is the way to dyspepsia and premature death. —From The Science of Health.

FRIDAY, APRIL 18, 1873.

Readables.

Mrs. Jane P. Thurston, proprietress of "the city of Portland, State of Maine, United States and Kingdom of Great Britain and Colonies," has issued her manifesto, warning the citizens of Portland against paying their taxes to the assessors of that city, as she has given them (the assessors) no authority to proceed.

An Iowa dealer, who sold severa pumps, "to be paid for when Greeley was elected," recently brought suit against his customers for pay. Judgment was given for the defendants, with costs.

The President cannot commute a sentence, though he may grant a pardon. This was so decided by the Supreme Court years ago.

Mr. A. D. Williams, of Richmond, has become the wealthiest man in Virginia by the simple process of investing $1,000 a few years ago in 40,000 acres of land which has since turned out to be immensely rich in coal.

The negro as a juryman seems to know his business, and to be able to do it fearlessly. Half of the Washington jury that convicted Tom Wright, the negro murderer, were negroes, and on the first ballot the verdict "guilty" was unanimous.

Ned Buntline, who manages the Indian stage business, has cleared $30-000 so quick. Buffalo Bill and Texas Jack each receive $1,000 a week, and spend it like lords. Jack has an Indian's fondness for gewgaws. He bought of Tiffany, in New York, a huge gold chain, almost half the size of a ship's cable, and almost long enough to go around his neck, for which he paid $1,000. He also scoured the city for the biggest watch that money would buy, and he got one, they say, as large as a spittoon. He is now prepared to astonish the natives of the effete European capitals.

The greatest snow storm of the season in Nebraska abated on the 16th.

George H. Comstock of Newport, a brakeman on the down freight from Claremont, was thrown from the car by the breaking of a coupling and run over. Both his legs were cut off below the knee and he died on the 16th.

The salary of the mayor of Portland has been raised from $1500 to $2500.

President Grant has appointed Dorman B. Eaton of New York and Samuel Shellabarger of Ohio to succeed Messrs. Curtis and Medill on the civil service board.

It is said that the Eastern Railroad Company has agreed to pay Colonel Palmer $25,000 for damages sustained by the Seabrook disaster.

Agreeably to the request of Judge W. D. Kelley, Gen. Spinner has converted into the treasury the three hundred dollars which Oakes Ames handed over to Judge Poland, as a dividend on Credit Mobilier stock, which he, Ames, claimed belonged to Mr. Kelley.

Peter Fay, of Washington, who kicked his little boy to death because he would not buy rum for him, has been found guilty of manslaughter in the fourth degree.

Rev. I. F. Waterhouse denies that he has been called to the charge of the Children's Mission at Boston.

A story of a horrible crime and a fitting retribution comes from Union county, Arkansas. A few weeks ago a married woman was abducted by a negro, carried to a secluded place, outraged, and kept there three days, during which time she gave birth to a child. The negro was caught and tortured to death, and three other negroes concerned in the affair were shot.

The annual reunions of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, the Ninth Army Corps, and the Grand Army of the Republic will take place at New Haven on the 13th, 14th and 15th days of May next.

THE VALUE OF A POTATO. — Prof. Tyndall illustrates the value of a single potato by supposing that every potato in the world but one was destroyed; that one would contain in itself the possibility of again stocking the world with an invaluable article of food. If one potato would produce, when planted, only a crop of ten potatoes, in ten years the total product of the produce of this one potato would be equal to ten thousand millions, which would be sufficient to stock the whole world with seed. The real value of that single potato, then, would be such that it would be better that the city of London or New York should be totally destroyed than that tuber should be lost to the world.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT OF COMMON SCHOOLS IN MAINE. — By the favor of Hon. Warren Johnson, this Report, made last winter to Governor and Council, has come to hand. It is a well executed work of 220 pages and is a full account of the school interest in that state. We put down a few items of what pertains to York county nearest us.

In York county the average of wages of female teachers per week, exclusive of board is $3 93.

Town Superintendent were suggested to make suggestions as to alterations needed in School laws. Berwick, said, "Make attendance compulsary for a certain time for all between the ages of 3 and 16." Sanford said, "Revise the law in regard to County Supervisors. Make a law to compel scholars to attend school when well. Fine the parents for neglect of duty. The abolition of the supervision system was most unwise legislation. Better abolish the legislature than submit to such legislation."

A Teachers, Institute for the county was held in Biddeford in November with 95 in attendance.

In York the Committee speak of young females being employed only 16 years of age, some of whom had mistaken their vacation, and poor school houses in Nos. 4, 5 and 6.—Sanford reports some teachers deficient in energy and a lack of love for the schoolroom. It says parents can make a poor school better, and they can make what would be a good school poor if they so determine. Wells report "Some good schools. In others the government has been so deficient that very little good has been accomplished." — Kennebunk, "More than usual interest on the part of parents, teachers and scholars." — Berwick, A lack of co-operation with teachers on the part of parents. Visit your school often.— Saco. "We expect teachers to excite ideas in the mind of the scholar; to lead him to gain his ideas by a process that shall lead him to think earnestly and independently." Alfred, "Improvement in reading and spelling especially, also in punctuality of attendance."— Shapleigh. "An evil is, the too rapid advancement of scholars. The scholar that goes farther than he understands loses more than he gains."— Eliot. "The want of the times is an ample supply of the right kind of teachers, possessing the requisite natural and acquired abilities."

The extracts given are but binted. The report is so valuable that we wish all the friends of school in Maine could see it.

THE POSTAL CARDS.—The Third Assistant Postmaster-General, E. W. Barber, has given notice that the necessary appropriation having been made for the purpose, the department will, on the 1st of May next, commence the issue to postmasters of the postal cards authorized by the act of June 8, 1872. The card adopted is five and one-eighth inches in length and three in width, and is made of good stiff paper, watermarked with the initials U. S. P. O. D. in monogram. The face of the card is engraved, surrounded by a border in scroll work one-eighth of an inch in width. The one cent stamp, printed on the upper right-hand corner, is from a profile bust of the Goddess of Liberty, looking to the left and surrounded by a lathework border, with the words "U. S. Postage," inscribed above and "one cent" below. On the upper left-hand corner are the words "United States Postal Card," with directions to "write the address on this side—the message on the other"; underneath and occupying the lower half of the card are ruled lines on which to write the address, the top line being prefixed with the word "To ———." The back of the card, intended for the communication, is entirely plain, being devoid even of ruled lines; in color the body of the card is light cream; the printing velvet brown. No variation in size, shape, color or in any other particular will be made from the regular style, to accommodate special cases; nor will the department do any printing on the cards beyond the engraving specified in the description. The cards will be sold for one cent each, neither more nor less, whether in large quantities or in small.

FAMILY READING.—The following clever jeu d'esprit, by Orpheus C. Kerr, has a bit of quiet sarcasm which may be suggestive to parents. It appeared in the New York Graphic:

An American male parent, unto his babes said he:
"Come hither, pretty little ones, and sit on either knee.
And I'll tell me what you've lately heard your mother read, and me?"

In his fatherly assurance, and fond, parental way.
He wanted to discover what the innocents would say
About a Missionary book, they'd heard the other day.

Full of glee spake young Alonzo, all legs and curly hair:
"You read about the man they hung, and all the people there;
And mamma read the funny part, or how it made him swear."

Joining quickly in, cried Minnie—all waist and dimpled neck;
"It wasn't half so funny, though, as that about the check,
They caught somebody forging 'cause he was so green, I 'spock."

"But the thing I liked the bestest," Alonzo piped amain,
"Was how somebody runned away, and won't come back again,
And took't somebody's wife with him upon a yallyead tyain."

"Then you wasn't listening, 'Lonzo," came swift from Minnie small,
"When Papa read about the girl that took't her hat and wrap a baby up in it, and left it in the hall."

"Oh, I wan't, hey?" trilled Alonzo, dismayed to be outdone;
"I'm go'n' to learn to yead, myself; and you can have the Sun;
And I'll read Herald 'Personals,' and never tell you one!"

The American male parent, his hair arose on end;
On either knee an infant form he did reverse and bend,
And from their little mouths straightway made dismal howls ascend.

SPECIFIC FOR CURE OF MENINGITIS.—A Michigan correspondent of the Freeport, Illinois, Bulletin pronounces what is now known as the cerebro-spinal meningitis, now prevailing so extensively and fatally in many parts of the country, as the same epidemic which raged in Michigan about twenty-five years ago to such an extent that it actually broke up the legislature and carried to the grave every one whom it attacked, until the "old-fashioned hemlock sweats were adopted," after which every one was saved. He says: "Our people sent about twenty-five miles distant and procured hemlock boughs, and they sent for it from all parts of the State. There was a company called the Hook and Ladder Company, and for weeks they did nothing night or day but go from house to house giving hemlock sweats, and it never failed to save every case. Thorough sweating might do, but there is no mistake about hemlock sweats being a specific."

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

An Innovation.

At the meeting of the School Committee of this city at the Common Council Room on Wednesday evening, the subject of a new system of school management was discussed, and the proposed new regulations were finally adopted. The plan is not an experiment, having been in vogue in Boston and elsewhere for the past two or three years, proving a decided success. It applies only to graded schools and the gist of it is simply as follows: The Principal of each grammar school is to commence his school at eight o'clock in the morning and continue until 12 M; commencing in the afternoon at two, and closing at half-past three. The remaining hour and a half i. e. until five—is to be devoted by the Principal aforesaid to visiting the lower schools, and having a general supervision over them, will note and correct any irregularity he may observe and also examine into and familiarize himself with the standing and proficiency of every scholar in the several schools under his charge — the intermediate primary and infant. The teachers of all the schools in the city are required to meet together once a month, to consult each other in regard to their respective schools, and adopt such measures as may seem practicable. This will secure uniformity in the management and general conduct of the several schools of the city, besides bringing the teachers into a fraternizing contact with each other, which cannot but result in good to all concerned.

The change will go into effect on the first of May, prior to which time, the regulations will be printed and a copy furnished each teacher. The plan alluded to has been in operation at the Haven and Manning schools, under Mr. Folsom, for some time, and it has proved satisfactory in every respect. Innovations are not always improvements, but we regard this as feasible, and a step forward in the matter of school management.

Sentiment vs. Dollars.

Dover evidently has a few individuals who think that the height of human ambition is not to treasure recollections of "auld lang syne" but to add dollars and cents to their hoarded wealth. Portsmouth has been afflicted in that way to some extent in the past, but with the lapse of time that element has become so inconsiderable that it has disappeared from public view, and our citizens now join with one accord to welcome home the returning children at the next anniversary of the nation's independence.

This year being the 250th anniversary of the settlement of the cities of Dover and Portsmouth, a celebration of the event was desired in both places. Portsmouth has moved—and moved effectually. Dover, on the contrary, through its city councils, decided to pass its quad-centennial with the ringing of bells and an address! Of course, there was remonstrance and counter action. The Enquirer comes to the relief of the disappointed citizens with a satirical article from which we quote portions referring to Portsmouth:—

There are a great many people in this country who ought to have lived a hundred years ago—men of old fashioned notions, given to mere sentiment, full of ideas of filial reverence, inspired with patriotic memories and associations and glorying in the heroic virtues and hard experiences and splendid achievements of a past age. * * * Even our modest sister city of Portsmouth has given way to this sentimentalism, and sent out her invitations far and wide to reassemble her sons and daughters in the old homesteads to recall and relive the past. Portsmouth is putting itself to the expense of thousands of dollars in carrying out its old-fashioned ideas of keeping up a home feeling among its sons and daughters. Such can extravagance be justified? Why, a thousand dollars taken from our city treasury for such a Quixotic purpose would add two cents to every poll tax in the city, and would cost our largest tax payers ten to fifteen dollars apiece! Such rank injustice and oppression should not be tolerated merely for an idea. Let us save our time and our money, and not waste them on foolish celebrations. Or if there are some who still think reverently of their ancestors and take an interest and pride in the history of our venerable town, and would like to bring together once more her old familiar faces and long absent children—why let us hold our anniversary on Sunday, when time can be saved and the bells can be rung without expense.

As "Artemus Ward" would have said, the foregoing "is written sarcastic."

Laconics.

Fred D. Nowell, son of Thos. S. Nowell, Esq., has received the first prize in a New York class in mathematics of seventy, for scholarship, deportment and punctual attendance. He received an elegant present with a diploma.

The concert and dance at Congress Hall, Wednesday evening, was very successful, netting St. Mary's church $100.

There was a time when Portsmouthians could know of the arrival of trains by the whistling of locomotives—but 'tis not so now.

Sheridan & Mack are coming on Thursday and Friday; the veteran H. E. Parmalee bills them.

State News.

Wilfred Fitts, who committed the assault at Candia, has been arrested at Lowell. He is a bright appearing lad, and does not take his confinement to heart. He says he has no recollection of the deed. Before being sent into the country for his health he had on one occasion taken $15 from his father, and another time $50, secreting the latter in a bottle in the cellar. Books and other things were missed and afterwards discovered in a remote and unused corner of the attic of the house. There is no doubt he committed the deed while asleep, and a detailed account of his former actions would show that he has been fearfully and painfully afflicted. His father, a highly respected citizen, had a long interview with City Marshal Bowles, giving a full account of the boy, who is evidently not fit to be at large.

Camile Douget, the French Canadian who lost one of his legs and was otherwise injured by falling through the bridge at Piscataquog village in Manchester, in January last, has begun an action against the city to recover damages. He had previously offered to settle with the city for $10,000.

The May number of Zell's Monthly Magazine keeps up to the mark of its predecessors, both as regards literary matter and illustrations.

The May number of Oliver Optic's Magazine is one of the best yet issued. "The Yacht Club," gets on swimmingly. Elijah Kellogg's story, "The Turning of the Tide," deepens in interest; and "Lottie Eames," the girls' own story, cis harming. Shillaber's "Then and Now Sketches" are continued. There is a timely article on "Vienna," fully illustrated; four very good poems, an original dialogue, and a variety of prose sketches and stories. The full-page illustrations are "May-day in the city," "May-day in the country," "The Missing Ship," and "Then and Now." "The Pigeon Hole Papers," "Head Work," and "The Letter Bag" are stuffed with good things. "Oratory" and "Music" also add rich contributions. Published by Lee & Shepard, Boston, at $2 50 per year.

For Sportsmen.

As the season for snipe shooting approaches we publish for the benefit of those interested the laws passed by the Maine Legislature at its last session in relation to this subject:—

Chapter 90.

AN ACT to amend section sixteen of chapter thirty of the revised statutes, relating to birds. Be it enacted &c., as follows:

Section sixteen of chapter thirty of the revised statutes is hereby amended by inserting after the the word "sparrow," in the fifth line, the word 'orioles,' so that said section as amended, shall read as follows:

Secor. 16. Whoever takes, kills, destroys, or pursues with intent of killing, destroying, or taking with dogs, guns, traps, nets, snares, pit-falls, or any other device or contrivance whatever, any of the birds commonly known as larks, robbins, partridges, grouse, swallows, quails, wood-cocks, sparrows, orioles or snipes, except between the first day of September and the first day of February, shall forfeit for every such bird not less than five nor more than ten dollars, to be recovered by complaint before any municipal or police-court or trial justice, one-half to the use of the complainant, and the other half to the use of the town where the offence is committed.

[Approved January 27, 1873.

The laws of our own State offered protection to the same birds with the exception of grouse. 1wkd&w.

Morning Chronicle.

JOHN IN TENNESSEE.—I talked about an inch of geology to a chap down here; a little piece of geology, say about a cent's worth.

Says I, "Those are some mountains."

Says he, "Them are right smart mountains, stranger."

Says I, "Hush, they'll hear you."

Says he, "What?"

Says I, "They've got ears. You've heard of the hardy mountaineer, hain't you?"

Says he, "Get out, stranger, you might as well say that they are Irishmen."

Says I, "Why so?"

Says he, "Because they are full of mica."

Says I, "That's so, or roosters, because they have spurs."

Says he, "Stranger, remember that mountain has a foot, and if those mountaineers hear you and raise that foot, you'll be spiled."

Says I, "Oyr rever."

Says he, "Bone swore."

As I saw his manly figure vanish in the thickening gloom I chewed a piece of raw licorice stick, and thought of home and its articles of virtue.

SINGULAR SUICIDE.—In Chicago, a man named Nicholson had slept and boarded seven dollars ahead of his ability to pay, and was suddenly given the choice to settle for that amount or seek fresh fields without the company of his trunk. He chose the latter course, and walking along the street went into the express office, took a seat, and for a couple of hours read the papers and watched the industrious clerks. At last he mentioned to one of them, incidentally, that he guessed he'd die, as he didn't see much use in living when business was so dull. Soon after, he began to act strangely, and before assistance could be procured, died in his chair, sitting bolt upright until the arrival of the coroner, as if he had deposited himself there to be sent to eternity without charge. The verdict was, death from morphine.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

Pulmocine Cordial

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment' warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine" so does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SPIRIT ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a generic sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ill," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women: and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

LOT'S WIFE.

And How She Saved Him.

Three of us held joint possession of a "claim" in one of the rural districts of the placer-mining country. At first we had excellent success; the sand seemed rich with dust, and several small nuggets of the pure ore attested our rising fortunes. In a short time, however, the yield began to diminish; somehow it didn't seem to "pan out" well. Our scanty washings of dust grew scantier every day.

There was little chance for romance in the life we led. We worked hard in the "diggings," all day, taking our cold snack at noon; and morning and evening "took turns" in our culinary duties, and the keeping of our little shanty. Washing days—"few and far between"—after wrestling mightily with soiled garment and creek water, augmenting considerably therein the alluvial deposit, we were wont to lounge in triune council, smoking our pipes of peace, and viewing complacently our renovated apparel, dripping and swaying upon the tops of the neighboring brush.

The surrounding "claims," with the exception of one adjoining, had been worked out and abandoned long ago; but with a pertinacity born of necessity, we had clung to ours. We had put in everything we had here; and it must be a hard struggle which should cause us to throw it all up, and leave empty-handed. The boys in the next claim were either "harder up" or more easily discouraged than we, for after trying in vain to sell out, they abandoned their claim and left the mines entirely—all but one man, who, for some reason best known to himself, decided to remain behind.

There were no other occupied "claims" within a space of three miles; and our nearest point of obtaining supplies being a day's journey out, one can easily imagine that in our isolated situation the gain of a comrade was not merely a nominal consideration.

Tompkins, the new-comer, or "Lot," as he was familiarly called, was a character. Originally a New Hampshire man, and shiftless as only a degenerate scion from the thrifty New England stock can be, he had emigrated from the "land of steady habits," first to the West, and from thence to our American "El Dorado." Fated to disappointment, he had drifted about hither and thither, led by one freak and another, until finally he had settled down in the mines. Lot was a famous story-teller, abounding in legendary lore and rich in store of quaint old-time ballads. In the beginning of his life with us, he might have been often heard hilariously chanting, in high-pitched nasal tone:—

"The sand with golden dust is thick,
Ho, boys, ho!
Pick up lumps as big as a brick,
Of California gold!"

Humorous, hasty, and with a strong dash of egotism, combined with persistent good nature and lively credulity—such was Lot, as we first knew him at the mines. Eventually, however, his enthusiasm died out; for, as Lot himself feelingly expressed it: "The darn thing was e'en-a-most gin out?"

As I have before stated, for some reason best known to himself, Lot had considered it expedient to remain behind, at the time his partners abandoned the claim. Our explanation of this was, that to his easy disposition it seemed less difficult to "bear the ills he had" than to subject himself to the exertion of seeking those he "knew not of." Subsequently, however, considerable additional light was thrown upon this subject.

One afternoon—it might have been three weeks after the exodus of Lot's partners—one of our neighbors, engaged in mining three miles further up the gulch, reined into camp on his way back from the city where he had been to deposit his dust in the Miner's bank, and get out a lot of supplies.

"Halloo! George! Chris! Here are letters for you!" he cried tossing us the welcome missives.

Lot loitering up, with a quizzical smile, perpetrated his standing joke:

"Wall, sayy, ye ain't got nothin' fur me, now, ain't ye?"

"No, I guess not," returned the other, with a peculiar twinkle beneath his bushy eyebrows; "but thar's a woman an' four small children on the way, asking fur just such a looking feller as you."

Lot's jocularity vanished in an instant; his jaw dropped, and with visible agitation he blurted out:—

"Come, now, none of yer foolin'! Ye don't pull that on with me!"

"Foolin? Nary time! It's sober truth."

A sickly pallor swept over the man's countenance, and he seemed to shrink within himself until dwarfed much below his diminutive stature.

"What? what's that yeou say?" he stammered wildly.

"I say a woman an' four small children ar' coming this way, searching for a husband and father."

"How fur behind?" gasped the anxious Lot, whose legs were fast getting tremulous under him.

"Oh a matter of three miles, or thereabouts!" and with a nod and knowing glance, and "No further news, boys!" to us, the little mule, answering the spur of his rider, struck into a brisk gallop, which speedily carried them both out of sight.

There we stood, enquiringly facing Lot. He gulped awhile; but finally out with it:—

"The fact is, boys—I'm married!" And with this lucid explanation, Lot, with rapid and somewhat unsteady step, disappeared within his cabin.

After a few seconds, he hastily emerged, bearing in his hands a pack of thumbed and greasy cards, a set of dice, several worn "dime novels," and an old "Comique Songster."

"I guess, boys, I shan't need these any longer," he said, flushing painfully—alternately standing on one foot, and then shifting his weight to the other; "so I thought I'd jist clean 'em out. Some wimmen folk is pertickerler, ye know."

Chris took the articles, and offered to keep them for him.

"Wal, if ye've a mind to. I'd be much obliged to ye. It mought be possible—barely possible, ye know—they'll come handy some time." And Lot, his neck just beginning to receive the yolk, looked forward with vague expectancy to a dim chance of future release.

Pitying the poor fellow's evident discomfiture, we refrained from joking or questioning him, and impatiently awaited those "coming event" which had so unmistakably "cast their shadows before."

Just at sundown, a novel train was seen wending its way toward the camp. Lot stood in the door of his cabin, while we, drawn together in the background, were watching for developements. In advance rode a figure in female apparel, perched upon the back of a gaunt pack-horse, a child, just past the threshold of infancy, clasped by one arm, and another, also of tender years, sitting astride the pillion, its limited embrace aspiring to

In the first three sentences she spoke a contract was matured, to the effect that we, furnishing the wherewith, should thenceforward look to her to "keep the pot boiling," at the average rate of "twenty-five cents a head" per diem.

Lot's children were miniature reproductions of the mother, and were under a control little short of automatical. Even Lion, the great St. Bernard, seemed to know his place, and performed various useful duties, under the judicious eye of his mistress and ruling spirit.

"Never had much opinion of dogs, any way," she said, rather apologetically, one morning, as, distributing our breakfast, she glanced at Lion and the infant, rolling and gamboling together in the deep, warm sand. "Never could bear one, until Lion there, then only a half-grown pup, saved my first baby. He, jist a weeny, toddling thing, got out of the door, and went down to the creek, and the first thing I saw was the dog, bringing him out, strangled and dripping in his mouth; I wouldn't part with that dog for his weight in gold!"

Whatever Lot's inmost mind or secret repinings, his outward life bore evidence of a marked revolution toward the side of fruitful and virtuous industry. No more loitering at tasks or levity of demeanor; no judicial magnate ever clothed himself in dignity and reticence more severe than characterized Lot under the new administration, at whose head stood his brisk little wife.

To us, the advent of Lot's wife marked the commencement of a new era; wholesome food, a tidy cabin, and above all, no more darning of socks, or washing days. The wilderness had begun to blossom. We even attained to, now and then, the luxury of a "biled shirt." We were opening up a new and richer vein in our claim, and prosperity and contentment smiled upon us.

It was an evil day that dawned upon our camp in the gulch, when one of the boys, ten miles above us, turned in on his way to the city almost prostrate from a sudden attack of mountain fever, and with money to pay a note which had become due on a quartz mill. He wanted to know if any of us were going in, as he could make it worth our while to do the errand for him, he remaining at our cabin until the messenger's return. As it happened, we were not intending to go for several days, our stock of supplies on hand being considerable, and not having enough dust to pay for carrying to the bank.

Lot's wife, however, on learning the state of affairs, was observed to communicate some instructions to the ten-year-old, who immediately "lit out" in the direction of his father's claim. A few moments, and Lot himself came in. He was willing to accommodate, and would go to the city. His claim wasn't paying him much; and he might as well look about a little. All of which familiar terms might have been translated to mean that his wife was not at all averse to earning the "something" before intimated which should "make it worth his while." None of us questioned Lot's honesty, and we made haste to get him off as soon as possible.

It was after nightfall of the ensuing day, when he was seen riding furiously toward the camp, looking neither right nor left, bating neither breath nor speed, until, opposite his own threshold, he leaped to the ground, dashed inside the cabin, and slammed to the door.

We had scarce time to wonder at this strange and unusual proceeding, when there swarmed upon us a party of men—armed, and stern members of a vigilance committee.

SATURDAY, APRIL 19, 1873.

Sublime Impudence.

The advertising agents have been holding a meeting at New York at which it was "decided to ignore all publishers who refuse to recognize the claims of agents to a commission, or allow discounts to advertisers while refusing commissions, or who permit careless editorial criticisms on agents. Publishers may, however, employ canvassers at half commission, provided they have no distinct flow of business."

"Careless criticisms of agents" is good. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. and some of the other prominent agencies are reliable and do not need very severe criticisms, but one prominent New York firm of agents can not be brought to deal fairly or to settle justly, and criticisms against such agents might be deemed "careless" because they seem to have adopted a rule by which publishers have no rights which an advertising agent is bound to respect. We cut loose from all such agencies long ago, and nothing but cash in advance at our established rates can induce us to pay any attention to their offers. Rowell & Co. are not wholly blameless in endeavoring to cut down rates of well established papers, making offers which they would think publishers very foolish to accept. We admire their frankness in admitting their unfairness, but our admiration of such candor somewhat abates with a renewed offer from the same source at double the rates first proposed!

To establish firmer relations between agents and publishers, it is necessary that each endeavor to merit the respect of the other. We have always upheld advertising agencies properly conducted, but as in all kinds of business, irresponsible agencies spring up and the more honest agents are injured by admitting to their association for the sake of an organized movement (apparently against publishers of the most and least important and influential newspapers) agents who bring no strength individually or collectively to any cause. We do not clearly see how the situation is to be changed for the better for the agencies by ignoring such papers as the New York and Boston Heralds because they refuse to allow commissions. The disposition of the new organization of agents to dictate terms to the weakest class of newspapers is unmanly, to say the least, and would be considered contemptible were it not so supremely ridiculous. Are the agencies so conceited that they think publishers will allow the new league to govern their system? Do the agents forget that well established newspapers do not need "canvassers at half" or double commissions? And are they so blind to the interests of their patrons as to think that any paper having "no distinct flow of business" is a valuable advertising medium? If so, their organization may ere long be subject to the mercies of peripatetic travelling agents who semi-occasionally put before the citizens of towns and villages diminutive specimens of curiously mixed auction bills and trashy reading.

S. R. Niles, the veteran proprietor of the oldest advertising agency in the United States, was named as the probable President of the new organization, but was "conspicuous for his absence" when the "convention" met. Mr. Niles has the confidence of publishers because he has recognized their rights to a greater extent than the list agencies. Business conducted on such a broad basis as the Niles agency must thrive because most honorably managed, and if Mr. Niles and others who are straightforward in their business transactions, do not see it necessary to journey to New York to obtain greater control over publishers, it goes to show that their present relations are sufficiently satisfactory, financial and otherwise. We do not know the ultimate object of the assembling of advertising agents at New York, but desire by way of a word of caution to remark that when they seek to combine against publishers, for their own protection publishers will naturally combine against them.

The Secretary of the Navy has decided not to construct more than two of the new vessels outside of the Government Navy Yards. Experience has shown that work of this character can be done cheaper and better by the Government than by private parties. The law gives the secretary discretion as to where the vessels shall be constructed.

Later news from Grant Parish shows that the massacre of negroes at Colfax Court House was even more horrible in all the details and more complete in its execution than at first reported. Not a single colored man was killed until all had surrendered to the whites who were fighting with them, when over one hundred of the unfortunate negroes were shot in cold blood. It is understood that another lot of negroes were burned in the Court House when it was set on fire.

The long standing case of Mrs. Alice Jepson vs. the town of Exeter, was taken out of court and adjusted. Mrs. Jepson is a clairvoyant physician in Boston, and was thrown out of a carriage in Exeter by a defective highway two years ago, receiving serious injuries. The case has been settled by the payment of handsome damages. Gen. Marston acted as attorney for the plaintiff, and J. F. Wiggin defended the town. It is possible that another town suit will arise from this accident.

—A few weeks since we called attention to a beautiful piece of wax work in floral design, executed by Mrs. Samuel Lamprey, then on exhibition at Foster's bookstore. At the same place is now to be seen another and yet more exquisite piece of this lady's artistic handiwork—a unique urn of wax, containing a collection of flowers of the same material. The vase itself is a rare specimen of skill and taste, formed of leaves and vines having the natural appearance of crystal. The beautiful calla embowered in its verdure home appears as if she might be Flora herself scattering from within her "bright footsteps of the Angels" all around.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

City Councils.

IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN, Thursday evening, a communication was received from the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department recommending the sale of one of the hand engines and some old hose. Referred to committee on Fire Department.

Chas. W. Roberts and Geo. H. Seavey were appointed special policemen at the Eastern depot without pay; Thomas R. Moore, Edwin Underhill and Reuben Rand were appointed supernumerary watchmen.

Petition of Percy I. Lowd and others who desire to organize a company of Continentals intending to purchase their own uniforms, asking the Board to procure suitable guns, was referred to the committee to which a similar petition from the Independent Military Company was referred last week.

The Board balloted for Assistant Marshal of the police force.

Chas W. Shannon had	2
Henry Wallace	2
Wm. H. Jellison	4

No choice.

A second ballot was had with the same result. The Mayor stated that he did not wish to be considered obstinate in refusing to acquiesce with the action of the Board and in vetoing at the last meeting the appointment of one of the Assistant Marshals, but he had what he deemed sufficient reasons for so doing, and would explain his action to any member who might request it.

The committee on Claims reported adversely on the claim of Daniel Austin for refunding tax paid in 1868. The report was accepted and the Board voted that the petitioner have leave to withdraw.

The Board adjourned and then re-assembled in special session to confer with the committee from the citizens' Fourth of July committee.

Dr. William R. Preston spoke in favor of prompt action on the part of the City. The estimates were cut down and with some of the features of the proposed celebration omitted, the committee had reduced it $4000. Remarks were made by Messrs. J. C. Carr and Henry M. Clark, the general sentiment being that the City should take charge of the reception and care of the Sons and pay the bills, which can hardly be less than $10,000.

The subject was referred to the Finance committee to report next Thursday evening.

The Sons of Portsmouth.

The responses that are everywhere being made to the invitation of the City Council for a return home on that day of its absent children, indicate that the Fourth of July festival of the Sons of Portsmouth, N. H., (of which we recently made mention,) will prove a much more formidable event even than was at first anticipated. An enthusiastic gathering of the "Sons," relating to the matter, was held in Boston last week, in the accounts of which, as speakers and otherwise, appear the names of Rev. Dr. A. P. Peabody of Harvard College, Hon. Charles L. Woodbury, Commodore E. G. Parrott, Dr. D. W. Cheever, Martin P. Kennard, James T. Fields, and with those of other prominent business and professional men, last, not least, that of B. P. Shillaber, a poet of no mean order, as well as a humorist, long known to the world as "Mrs. Partington," the famous. From Boston not less than a thousand will join the throng, attended by one or more, including Gilmore's, of its very best bands. Besides Downing's Ninth Regiment Band, which will accompany the "Sons" from New York it is said that an escort of 300 men, forming a battalion of that noted military body has been tendered to them. The returning host as they enter their birthplace, will be received by a procession, military, floral and industrial, and a collation, followed by a promenade concert, and fireworks in the evening; the day succeeding, as well as the National birthday, will also be one of festivity. The proverbial attachment of the Teutonic race for their much-loved "Faderland" is not more deep and strong than that of its natives for Portsmouth, which, if "a good place to emigrate from" by young men when seeking a broader field than it offers for their enterprise, is one of the best of places to come back to in their later years, as all acknowledged who took part in the first "return festival" of twenty years ago. We may say here, that it is scarcely less an interesting locality for its antiquities and pleasant position to visitors of intelligence and taste than to those of whom it is the birthplace. Among its more modern dwellings are some of the finest old mansions of the English style of the days of the Georges that yet survive in any part of the country; ancestral homes whose walls are adorned with family portraits by such artists of a bygone age as Smibert and Copley, and Stewart of a later day, and where the richest of antique furniture may be seen, with other interesting relics of the past. —N. Y. Express.

Laconics.

Some people are always trying to "force the season,"—they get out their sleighs at the first snow-fall, go on excursions into the woods on May day, and all that indefensible sort of thing. Two gentlemen of this city, in their haste to inaugurate the season for down river fishing excursions and sailing parties, went outside the harbor in a boat at an early hour, Thursday, and remained out all day, trying to catch something. As trophies of the days' exploits they brought back one very small cod fish and two of the largest sized eels.

Reminiscences of "the late campaign" were aroused on Thursday by the appearance on our streets of a youth who fearlessly served out milk to customers from under protection of a scarlet cape which formerly did duty on the shoulders of one of the Grant & Wilson Guards.

Dr. Strong's sulphur baths have become popular and his patients warmly commend their action on the system. If you want your blood stirred up, call on the Doctor at his rooms over Oxford's store, corner of State and Pleasant streets. The bath opens the pores of the skin and effects wonders in the way of cures.

At about 2 o'clock, Friday morning, fire was discovered in a house situated on a right-of way between Hancock and Gates streets, and was put out without a general alarm being given. It is supposed to have been purposely set, and would have made a serious conflagration had it not been seen so soon after it was kindled.

Mr. Frank W. Hilton, late in the Pullman car service, is to be general manager of the new Oceanic Hotel on Star Island, Gosport. Mr. Hilton's urbanity and efficiency while on the road became proverbial, and patrons of the Oceanic will gladly welcome his presence there.

The Barnabee concert proceeds were $368, from which the Mercantile Library Association netted $40, about twice as much as was expected and promised, the expenses being very large.

Sailmaker Stephen Seaman, U. S. N., is detached from U. S. receiving ship Sabine and ordered to Equipment duty at the Navy Yard.

Our local evening contemporary has a letter from "Betsey," which it is "tempted to publish because of her sharp and caustic hits at the CHRONICLE." Give us "Betsey's" letter, do; we've heard so much of letters "denouncing the CHRONICLE," etc., that we should really like to see one of 'em—just one—in print. The first two or three hundred times our contemporary menaced us with its denunciatory letters from indignant correspondents, we were a little frightened; but we are used to it now, and don't feel scared a bit.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

—The attention of every one passing through State street, has been drawn to the new and elegant house erected by Mr. Benj. F. Webster, nearly opposite the Rockingham House. A few more touches will complete the work and fit it for an occupant. This house has been built throughout with the same completeness that characterizes the exterior, and may be considered as the chef d'œuvre of Mr. Webster's skill as an architect and mechanic. From basement to attic the same care has been exercised in every detail. The lower and second stories are entirely free from painted wood work; but the walls and ceiling are painted and elegantly frescoed in oil colors by the Messrs. Schumaker of Portland. The black walnut finish of the hall and front rooms is chaste and elegant even when uncompleted, and the inlaid walnut and hard pine floor of the dining room is in keeping. The view from the front windows has been greatly improved by the neighborly kindness of the Messrs. Lord in opening to view the spacious grounds opposite, which in summer time must afford a prospect delightful indeed. From the windows of the Mansard roof we look over all surrounding objects and have "a sight" to enjoy. With all the appurtenances of a perfectly appointed modern residence, the house is a ready opportunity for some body to buy one of the finest for its price in this vicinity. We understand that the house is in the market for a purchaser.

—We are indebted to Capt. Shillaber, for the following statement in reference to the small pox. Since August, 1864, when he assumed the guardianship of this loathsome disease, up to the present time, just fifty cases have come under his care. Of this number only six were conveyed to the Pest House; and only seven deaths occurred, though none of these were at the hospital. All were natives but eight. P. S. —Another case, Mr. Chas. J. Mason from Atkinson Street, was conveyed to the Pest House on Sunday. Including the two cases now existing, the fifty-two afflicted ones have been divided among 27 males and 25 females.

—Francis Murphy, President of the Portland, Me., Reform Club, is to deliver the next lecture in the Temperance series, at the Temple on Sunday evening. Mr. Murphy, it will be recollected, is the reformed Irishman who had not only been a rumseller but a drinker to that extent that when under its influence he committed a crime which placed not only his liberty but life in jeopardy of the law. He gave better satisfaction when here before than any person who has been here. Lecture to commence at 7½ o'clock. Admission fee, to defray expenses, 10 cents.

—It took all the brains of the human race from the moment when the flood soaked it down to the nineteenth century of the Christian era to find out how to start a train of cars, and all the brains have been employed ever since to find out how to stop one!

Morning Chronicle.

FOOD FOR THE WORKERS. — Nearly every laborer and mechanic in the United States can earn, and does earn, more than he need expend, for necessaries. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are paid out annually in the city of New York by these classes for things which are worse than useless—liquor, tobacco, costly and unwholesome viands, to say nothing of drugs and doctors. Sickness, however, is a large item in the average expenses.

All that journeymen mechanics and day laborers require to become independent in a few years is, a curtailment of all needless expenditure; and this means a knowledge of living so as to preserve health, and the abandonment of all pernicious things. There are hundreds of families in New York who pay one or two dollars per day for food, when one-half the money, judiciously expended, could provide more and better nutriment. For example, the supply purchased on Saturday afternoon, to last till Monday noon, may be:

Ten pounds bacon,	$2 00
Eight loaves baker's bread,	80
Two pounds butter,	90
Two pounds sugar,	20
One pound cheese,	20
Six eggs,	20
Half bushel potatoes,	60
Sundries—tea, coffee, etc,	1 00
	$5 90

More nutriment, of a much better quality, can be had in the following articles:

Wheat-meal, 25 pounds,	$1 25
Potatoes, half bushel,	60
Apples, half bushel,	50
	$2 35

Many poor persons expend more for cigars alone than they pay for the rent; others pay more for lager, or worse liquors, than it costs their family for bread.

But all reformers have their hobbies, and we have ours; and we recommend producing classes to study the Science of Health, learn how to live, and then be their own masters.—From the Science of Health.

For Sportsmen.

As the season for snipe shooting approaches we publish for the benefit of those interested the laws passed by the Maine Legislature at its last session in relation to this subject:—

Chapter 90.

AN ACT to amend section sixteen of chapter thirty of the revised statutes, relating to birds. Be it enacted &c., as follows:

Section sixteen of chapter thirty of the revised statutes is hereby amended by inserting after the word 'sparrows,' in the fifth line, the word 'robins,' so that said section as amended, shall read as follows:

'SECT. 16. Whoever takes, kills, destroys, or pursues with intent of killing, destroying, or taking with dogs, guns, traps, nets, snares, pit-falls, or any other device or contrivance whatever, any of the birds commonly known as larks, robins, partridges, grouse, swallows, quails, wood-cocks, sparrows, orioles or snipes, except between the first day of September and the first day of February, shall forfeit for every such bird not less than five nor more than ten dollars, to be recovered by complaint before any municipal or police-court or trial justice, one-half to the use of the complainant, and the other half to the use of the town where the offence is committed.'

(Approved January 27, 1873.

The laws of our own State offered protection to the same birds with the exception of grouse. 1wkd&w.

SMALL--POX.

NOTICE TO PHYSICIANS AND OTHERS.

The Mayor and Aldermen call the attention of Physicians and Householders to the Law of the State and the Ordinance of the City relative to cases of Small-pox occurring in this city, as follows:

It shall be the duty of every physician who attends upon any person sick with the small pox to immediately report the same to the Health Officers or the Mayor and Aldermen: and if any physician shall neglect so to do he shall forfit the sum of one hundred dollars.

When any householder shall know that any person within his family is sick of the small pox, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers: if any such householder shall refuse or neglect to do so he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars.

The Board of Aldermen have requested the Mayor to cause IMMEDIATE PROSECUTION to be instituted for every violation of the above provisions.

MARCELLUS BUFFORD, City Clerk.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

Pulmocine Cordial

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES at all times prevalent, it is the cause of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment' warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY OPERATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD CHERRY BARK, SQUILL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ill," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women: and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

LOT'S WIFE.

And How She Saved Him.

Concluded from Saturday.

Just at sundown, a novel train was seen wending its way toward the camp. Lot stood in the door of his cabin, while we, drawn together in the background, were watching for developements. In advance rode a figure in female apparel, perched upon the back of a gaunt pack-horse, a child, just past the threshold of infancy, clasped by one arm, and another, also of tender years, sitting astride the pillion, its limited embrace aspiring to encircle the maternal waist. A trifle in the rear came a rough mountaineer, in the capacity of guide, sandwiched between two children of a larger growth, the elder of whom could not have exceeded the age of ten years. A monstrous dog of the St. Bernard breed formed, successively, flank and rear.

Checking the beast within a few rods of us, the woman gave a keen, scrutinizing glance around, which rested at last fixedly upon the countenance of Lot.

"That's him!" she explained, in a strong and decided voice, nodding significantly to the guide; "We'll stop."

Clasping the infant tightly and loosing the arms of the other from about her waist, down she slid, lithe as a young girl; and in a twinkling had the three children on their feet, and the youngest transferred to the arms of the ten-year-old.

Lot waited, in an apparently dejected mood, while she settled with the guide, from her own pocket, with business-like dispatch. Then she and her little brood, followed closely by the dog, walked up to the door of our neighbor's cabin.

"Well, Lot, we've come."

"I see you have, Marier!"

And the door closed upon Lot and his family.

On the ensuing morning we were able to arrive at a more correct estimate of the new comer, who early introduced herself to us as "Lot's wife." She was of fair complexion, short in stature and very slim about the waist. Her thin flaxen hair was drawn smoothly back from a prominent forehead, and fastened in a tight button-like knot at the back of her neck. Restless blue eyes, a sharp nose, thin cheeks, and a firm, large mouth, filled with even, white teeth completed the list of her personal characteristics. Energy, decision, business, was written on every lineament of the little woman's countenance—spoke in every restless move of her "lissome" body.

In the first three sentences she spoke a contract was matured, to the effect that we, furnishing the wherewith, should thenceforward look to her to "keep the pot boiling," at the average rate of "twenty-five cents a head" per diem.

Lot's children were miniature reproductions of the mother, and were under a control little short of automatical. Even Lion, the great St. Bernard, seemed to know his place, and performed various useful duties, under the judicious eye of his mistress and ruling spirit.

"Never had much opinion of dogs, any way," she said, rather apologetically, one morning, as, distributing our breakfast, she glanced at Lion and the infant, rolling and gamboling together in the deep, warm sand. "Never could bear one, until Lion there, then only a half-grown pup, saved my first baby. He, just a weeny, toddling thing, got out of the door, and went down to the creek, and the first thing I saw was the dog, bringing him out, strangled and dripping in his mouth; I wouldn't part with that dog for his weight in gold!"

Whatever Lot's inmost mind or secret repinings, his outward life bore evidence of a marked revolution toward the side of fruitful and virtuous industry. No more loitering at tasks or levity of demeanor; no judicial magnate ever clothed himself in dignity and reticence more severe than characterized Lot under the new administration, at whose head stood his brisk little wife.

To us, the advent of Lot's wife marked the commencement of a new era; wholesome food, a tidy cabin, and above all, no more darning of socks, or washing days. The wilderness had begun to blossom. We even attained to, now and then, the luxury of a "biled shirt." We were opening up a new and richer vein in our claim, and prosperity and contentment smiled upon us.

It was an evil day that dawned upon our camp in the gulch, when one of the boys, ten miles above us, turned in on his way to the city almost prostrate from a sudden attack of mountain fever, and with money to pay a note which had become due on a quartz mill. He wanted to know if any of us were going in, as he could make it worth our while to do the errand for him, he remaining at our cabin until the messenger's return. As it happened, we were not intending to go for several days, our stock of supplies on hand being considerable, and not having enough dust to pay for carrying to the bank.

Lot's wife, however, on learning the state of affairs, was observed to communicate some instructions to the ten-year-old, who immediately "lit out" in the direction of his father's claim. A few moments, and Lot himself came in. He was willing to accommodate, and would go to the city. His claim wasn't paying him much; and he might as well look about a little. All of which familiar terms might have been translated to mean that his wife was not at all averse to earning the "something" before intimated which should "make it worth his while." None of us questioned Lot's honesty, and we made haste to get him off as soon as possible.

It was after nightfall of the ensuing day, when he was seen riding furiously toward the camp, looking neither right nor left, bating neither breath nor speed, until, opposite his own threshold, he leaped to the ground, dashed inside the cabin, and slammed to the door.

We had scarce time to wonder at this strange and unusual proceeding, when there swarmed upon us a party of men—armed, and stern members of a vigilance committee.

Their errand was soon made known; they were in pursuit of the unhappy Lot.

A party instantly surrounded his cabin. Then the whole of the unfortunate affair came out. Lot's spirit, released from its accustomed restraint, had rebounded like a balloon that has thrown over its ballast. "Marier's" last words were useless as the wind against this sudden and overwhelming elation, born of renewed liberty. His journey furnished him a golden opportunity, though brief, for the renewal of those harmless indulgences of late religiously foregone.

A chance acquaintance, met just in the edge of town, easily led the way to a friendly tipple in the nearest saloon. This exchange of good fellowship eventually resulted in many more, under the combined influence of which, no Rothschild ever felt richer than did Lot with the trust-money in his hand.

What occurred thereafter, passed to Lot like a troubled dream. There was a vague remembrance of all hands at the bar, a scuffle, a pistol-shot; and then the mad race home, a trust betrayed, the blood of the slain upon his hands, and the "Vigilantes" close upon his heels.

They were sure enough of him now—twelve to one, and he trapped like a prairie-dog in his hole.

Lion, the huge St. Bernard, came smelling at the garments of the invaders, looking up with large inquiring eyes. Half unconsciously, the leader patted the rough head caressing, as it rubbed against his hand. The dog, friendly to the friendly, reared upon his hind legs and placed his fore-paws on the leader's shoulders, standing a half-head taller than the man himself.

Meanwhile, neither sound nor light came from Lot's cabin. Lion, going over, pushed at the door with a low whine. Speedily following, the leader, with three of his men, knocked for admittance.

Straightway in the door appeared Lot's wife.

"Gentlemen, what will you have?"

"We have business with your husband, madam. Will you ask him to step outside?"

"My husband is not able to attend to business to-night."

"But our business is important, and cannot wait. If he does not come out, we must come in."

"Gentlemen, you cannot see my husband tonight!" Her voice was firm, even, decisive; perhaps a trifle more decisive than usual.

The dog, crouching at her feet, gave a low growl.

"Woman, we have no time to bandy words! Let us pass!"

The dog rose partly up, with a menacing growl. The woman behind him seemed to rise and expand in the white heat of passion that possessed her. Her voice rose high and shrill:—

"And I say you shall not pass! you that come, twelve men, with murder in your hearts, to take an innocent man out from the midst of his helpless children. I swear that you shall not touch a hair of his head to-night!"

As she spoke, drawing with dextrous hand a "Colt's navy" from the folds of her dress, she held it at full cock, bearing straight upon the leader's heart. Not a man among them but was touched at the sight of this dauntless devotion; yet emotion must not prevent the discharge of duty.

"But this man has committed murder—the gravest crime known to the eyes of the law. Public safety demands that we deal with him according to the letter of the law," expostulated the leader, more moved than he cared to acknowledge.

A superb scorn overswept the woman's features. Bending to touch the dog with her hand, the huge creature drew himself erect, angry and bristling, with his lips drawn threateningly back from his formidable teeth. Then boldly throwing open the cabin door, she pointed with upraised finger, still holding the deadly weapon aimed full at the breast. A scathing contempt rang in her words:—

"Does that man look like a cut-throat? Can you all, looking inside this cabin, tell me that you are afraid to spare to his wife and children this one last night?"

She paused a moment, glancing swiftly around the circle of rough faces pressing close upon her. The tableau within showed Lot, crouching upon a low camp-stool, pale, disordered, and shaking with terror, clasping in his arms his youngest-born; the two girls firm and fearless as their mother, were planted at his knees; while between him and the door, the ten-year old, with a dilapidated chair, as a rest, stood behind his father's rifle.

The she bear and her cubs were grit to the backbone.

"Who are you?" she cried, eloquently gesturing to the crowd with her unoccupied hand, "that take the business of the Almighty into your own hands, and send the souls he has made, unbidden into his presence, without a prayer for mercy?" Which would be the better, you or him? Leave him to us this night, and as surely as there is a heaven above us, in the morning you shall come in without hindrance! You can guard the cabin. There is no danger he will escape you!"

There was a murmur among the "vigilantes." Their task was a harder one than they were prepared to execute; and perhaps a thought of wives and children at home moved them a little to this unwonted leniency. A brief conference, and the leader said:—

"Have your way. Make the most of your time. We'll not disturb you until morning."

"You are not deceiving me?" she said watching the while with eyes which seemed to pierce like sharp steel points.

A hoarse murmur ran through the crowd.

"No! no! Fair play!"

For a moment the woman's strength seemed to fail, and she leaned heavily against the casement; another, and she disappeared within, the faithful dog followed, protectingly, close behind.

The men bivouacked around the cabin, disposing themselves for the night, two or three appointed sentinels keeping vigilant watch. The other members of the camp, unable to sleep, had kept wakeful vigil, using our little influence and knowledge of the accused's inoffensive disposition to mitigate, if possible, the prejudice which we found greater than the real weight of evidence against him.

In an affray, two men had been stabbed—one seriously, one fatally; and Lot's hand held a bloody knife. Innocent men have been hanged, even after full judicial trial, under circumstantial evidence far less convincing than this.

As the night wore away, I restlessly paced the camp. An occasional sound came from the guarded cabin, but otherwise all was still.

Once, about midnight, after a prolonged scratching at the door, it was opened to let out the dog. A stream of light flashed out but I caught no glimpse of those within. The dog, poor fellow, as though his canine spirit seemed to comprehend the fatal danger impending over those he loved, with drooping head and pendant tail, slunk through the open space.

"Good Lion! Poor fellow! Come here!" I called.

He lifted his head at the sound of my voice, raised his muzzle mournfully in the air, then drooping it again, went on, soon disappearing in the adjacent chapparal.

At the first faint streak of day the "vigilantes" bestirred themselves, and in knots discussed the grave business before them. The excitement of the past night had worn away, and in these calmer moments not one of those most eager for duty then, but wished himself relieved from the painful responsibility devolving upon him.

There was yet no sign of life about the cabin.

Never, I think, did the solemnity of the occasion appeal more forcibly to the heart of the "vigilantes." They were confident—terribly confident—that the prisoner would be found guilty. With voices subdued, and quiet mien they awaited the action of their leader, who humanely postponed, to the last possible moment, his official summons.

Just as the sun's disk appeared above the horizon, three of the committee advancing knocked upon the door. With eyes red and swollen with weeping, Lot's wife opened it wide.

With a sickening sensation I fail to describe. I awaited what was to follow. A suggestive rope lay where it had been thrown, at the foot of a neighboring tree. With a shudder I recalled the many times Lot had sat under the shadow of its branches, his children playing about his knees.

Chris and George had followed at the heels of the other party.

A resounding slap upon the shoulder nearly sent me reeling to the earth.

"By the great Moses, that little woman's a brick!"

"What is it, Chris?" I asked in astonishment; for his lively tone was anything but appropriate for the occasion.

"Come and see!" and seizing me by the arm, he commenced dragging me toward's Lot's cabin.

A sudden revelation came to me: Lot had committed suicide! Well, better so than the hangman's noose!

Entering the cabin prison, a singular spectacle presented itself. The committe stood in a dismayed group in the centre of the room; while Lot's wife, stern and resolute no longer, bent over the huge dismantled carcass of poor Lion. The prisoner had escaped disguised in the poor dog's skin. Gone was the nerve, the passion and power, which had, the night previous supported and lifted the wife above her sex. Plainer, more meagre, if possible, than usual, there was yet a something touching in her weakness; perhaps because it was so foreign to her nature.

Lifting her woe-begone countenence as I approached, she exclaimed brokenly:—

"I'd a'most rather died than a' done it: but there wasn't no other way!

Hardly had the news of the escape spread through the camp, when a horseman, riding at break neck speed, came in the midst of a cloud of dust, flying up the trail. In his hand he bore a white signal, which he persistently waved as he had advanced. Dashing into camp he threw himself breathlessly into the midst of the Vigilantes."

"Where's the man you were going to hang?"

"Escaped."

"Thank God! for he didn't do it! 'Frisco Bill has confessed the deed!"

Then the cheers that rang out might almost have rent the heavens in twain; but Lot's wife, alone with her sleeping children, crouched in mournful silence over the form of her poor, dumb sacrifice—silent and faithful even unto death.—Lakeside Monthly.

MONDAY, APRIL 21, 1873.

The Modoc War.

Intelligence comes from the Modoc expedition of an attack by the troops begun on Tuesday, the 15th, and continued two days, with partial success, the Indians being driven into their stronghold and the troops gaining a commanding ridge near by. The chief advantage, however, was a junction of the attacking lines by which the Indians are deprived of their water supply. The losses are reported to be five soldiers killed and ten wounded, and five Indians killed.

Mr. Castello, a special courier from the lava beds, says:—"Early Wednesday morning the Modocs had a big fire in their camp. Major Thomas dropped a shell directly into it, provoking a frantic war-whoop and causing the sudden extinguishing of the fire. Another shell was dropped in the same locality and was followed by yells of pain and dismay. The Modocs then appeared and challenged the soldiers to come out and fight Another shell was the answer, and they were driven back. At 4 o'clock, A. M., after another fight, the Modocs gave up the attempt to break through our line and retired. Scattering shots were fired at the men who attempted to advance on them. At 9 o'clock Colonel Gillem's command moved forward from the position gained on Tuesday and soon occupied the ledge next to Jack's camp. Colonel Mason moved the right forward as rapidly as possible to form a junction with General Gillem's left, cutting off the Modocs from the lake, their only source of water supply. The junction was effected at noon. At 2 P. M., the mortars were throwing shells within excellent range.

Castello learned that our casualties were four killed and nineteen wounded, some slightly. The Warm Spring Indians fought like heroes and were ready to take and hold any advantages. They had lost one killed, and had taken four Modoc scalps when Castello left, among them that of Scar Faced Charlie.

Schonchon, the chief who shot Peace Commissioner Meacham and was shot by him in return, died of his wounds.

A dispatch from San Francisco, on Saturday, intimates that the Modocs have escaped from the lava beds, and are pursued by the troops. Eight Modocs were killed in Friday's fight. The friendly Indians found half a dozen other Modocs, wounded and hidden under the rocks, and killed and scalped them.

Gen. Canby's funeral took place at Portland, Oregon, on Friday.

A Railroad Slaughter.

The steamboat train from Stonington for Boston went through a bridge on the Stonington & Providence Railroad at Richmond switch, about three o'clock, Saturday morning, plunging into the Pawcatuck river, twelve miles from Stonington. The abutments of the bridge were partially washed away by the water from a dam above, which gave way.

The steamer of the Fall River line which should have left New York on Friday night, had not arrived in New York from Fall River at a late hour on Friday. Consequently many of those intending to come by that route surrendered their tickets, received their money and came via Stonington, thus adding largely to the passenger list of the wrecked train. The train which left Boston at 9.30 o'clock, Friday, passed over the bridge safely at midnight.

Seven persons were instantly killed by the accident. Eight cars went into the river bed. The fire from the engine set the train in a mass of flames, and there was no escape for many of the passengers. Several of the cars were burned to cinders.

The train was going at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour. The bridge was forty feet long and the engine jumped the chasm and landed on the other side.

The engineer and fireman were both found at their posts, dead, the engineer body half-way out the window, with his hand on the throttle, as if he saw the danger, but too late to avoid it. He was burned to a crisp. The fireman stood with his back to the engineer, with both hands on the brake of the engine, as if he too had discovered the danger.

In the list of injured passengers, we find the following names:—

Thomas Nolen of Boston, baggage master, had his thigh fractured.

E. Murrigan, of Boston, had three ribs broken.

Joseph Phillips, of South Boston, bruised.

John Carter, of Boston, badly bruised.

John Hollingsworth, of Boston bruised.

Miss Lizzie Evans, of New York, right ankle fractured.

J. J. D. Eldredge, of New York, bruised.

A girl about 18 years, name unknown, had her skull fractured.

Mr. Albert F. Allen of Providence was jammed in the wreck of a burning passenger car, and others tried to cut him out, before the fire reached him, but were driven away by the fire before they could release him, and Mr. Allen's body was consumed with the burning car.

There was an old gentleman, said to belong in Boston, who was unable to get out of the wreck, which held him, and was also burned up with the car.

Dennis Boben, New York, wrist hurt.

Dennis Hefferman, Ireland, collar bone broken.

John Donovon, Ireland, slight contusion and somewhat burned.

Patrick Williams, of New York, bruised.

Henry Steine, of New York, back injured.

Mary Bahan, Ireland, leg fractured and internal injuries.

Norah Bahan, skull fractured, probably fatal.

Patrick Burns, leg fractured.

Frank Johnson, face bruised.

Joseph Olmstead, rib fractured.

James Freeman, New York, flesh wound.

The following Boston-bound passengers escaped without injury:

Aaron Claffliu, M. M. Grodjinski, W. A. Abbott, G. G. Foster, T. G. Mulhern, T. T. B. Townsend, Jas. Hallstrain, B. Noyes, J. A. Grosvenor.

An elderly lady, seventy years old, was taken out of a car under water with both legs broken. Her daughter was badly wounded in the head, the brains oozing out.

James Todd, injured in the head.

Thomas Nolan, a brakeman, was killed.

The fire originated in an emigrant car from broken lamps. There were but few passengers in the second-class cars, East Boston sailors. Only one was lost, and he left a widow and six children.

B. R. Knapp, Jr., was sitting in front of the stove in the next car and the ruins pinned his foot against the under part of the stove. Mr. Knapp called loudly for help. Baggage-master Allstrom was in the back part of this car, and with one or two others sprang to the rescue. With large splints of the old car that had telescoped into their car, they pried up the stove, and Mr. Knapp was liberated, very lame.

At the same time there were two young men seated just in front of Mr. Knapp, in one seat, jammed down by the debris piled upon their legs. They were apparently little injured, were talking, and efforts were at once made to dig them out. Just then a light appeared forward in the end of the car. The flames from the burning second class and freight cars swept in among the ruins of the old car, and the baggage master and his aids were forced to retire, and the young men were burned to death in their seats.

On tee opposite side of the car, parallel to the young men, persons were sitting, who got out unhurt.

The two last cars were well filled, and were first class cars. They remained uninjured on the track and were detached and pushed back on the track out of reach of the flames. The train contained in all about 170 passengers of whom a dozen or more were killed and many wounded.

State News.

William F. Pike has been appointed postmaster at the newly made post office at Starkweather Station.

A Boston detective, Mr. George W. Chapman, who has been investigating the Candia horror, is satisfied that the assault on young Emerson was committed by young Fitts, and resulted from insanity and somnambulism,—a very dangerous mixture, evidently. It was shown that young Fitts had an established reputation as a somnambulist; and that he once before made his way into a strange house at night with a broad-axe in his hands, while in a somnambulistic state. The Emerson boy is likely to recover.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Getting Ready.

The well known Farragut and Atlantic hotels at Little Boar's Head, owned and kept by the Philbricks (mother and son), are being thoroughly refitted for the coming season. New buildings have been erected for the culinary department, and a host of workmen are engaged painting and decorating, also introducing gas and water fixtures, with other important improvements.

Considerable alterations and improvements are also being made in some of the hotels and boarding rooms at Rye Beach, where it is probable the room will be insufficient for the business of the coming season, the recent burning of the spacious Ocean House having destroyed the accommodations for some three hundred visitors, which will have a tendency to crowd the remaining establishments.

The largely increased accommodations at the Shoals, (including the Appledore extension and the huge Oceanic Hotel on Star Island,) will tend to draw a correspondingly large increase of travel to that favorite summer resort, and the enterprising proprietors of both the old and new houses may reasonably anticipate that in the future, as in the past, there will be no room to spare at the Shoals during "the season." The Laighton brothers have regularly enlarged their premises each year for some time past, but each year they have found their large establishment not large enough, and have had to transform the parlor floors into field beds and the piazza into a camp; and the erection of another first-class hotel on the neighboring island will add to the natural advantages of the locality,—pure air, low and equable temperature, wild scenery, and unsurpassed advantages for boating and fishing,—the further attraction of increased opportunity for social intercourse.

Laconics.

The grass in this vicinity already begins to show a well-defined green tint, as an earnest of what it proposes to do whenever the sun comes out once more; in some well sheltered places it is several inches in height, and looks as though it had been growing under the snow during the winter. Early planting was commenced last week, and on Saturday many ploughshares were brightened. An early season is anticipated by the farmers, the heavy crop of snow during the winter having kept the ground in splendid condition.

Mr. Wagner, the gentleman who was afflicted with homicidal mania at the Shoals some weeks ago, has been removed from the lower to the upper rows of cells in Portland jail, on account of his being threatened with rheumatic fever. It would be a sad affair indeed were his health to suffer from his confinement.

Mr. Elihu Dennett, of South street, has a choice menagerie on a small scale, including a mocking bird, gray squirrels, a young alligator and other pets. We are told that the alligator came by mail, and is quite tame; and our informant hinted that we could believe, if we chose, that a sharp rivalry in musical affairs has sprung up lately between the mocking bird and alligator. Mr. Dennett should have secured the hedgehog which recently came to an untimely end in this city, for his grand collection of "livin' wild beasts of pray."

The sale of reserved seats for Mr. John E. Owens' dramatic entertainment at the Temple on Wednesday evening commences at Preston's to-day. Mr. Owens and his company are spoken of in the most flattering terms by the press of cities where they have performed.

Charles C. Sheafe, formerly a Boston broker, belonging to one of the oldest families of this city and a member of the class of 1839 at Harvard college, committed suicide in New York, Thursday night, by cutting his throat.

Sheridan & Mack's Variety Troupe announce entertainments at the Temple on Thursday and Friday evenings next. See advertisement.

Dr. Wm. R. Preston has already had made an immense gilt eagle, to be used for decorative purposes on the Fourth of July. It was made by Mr. Bellamy, of this city, and is a magnificent affair. Dr. Preston's decorative taste is well known, and the returning Sons (and these sons who have never gone away) will see something from his hands worth looking at, on the Fourth.

The navy yard authorities caused the regular semi-occasional fire alarm to be rung at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and great was the scrabbling around of the fire department which it occasioned. The drill was perfectly satisfactory, the machines and fixings being found in apple-pie order and the department gathering for work in a very few minutes.

Two large, costly and handsome gas-lanterns were put in position beside the curbstone in front of the Rockingham House,—one in front of each of the two main entrances to the hotel,—on Saturday. They were made by Mr. M. W. Peirce, of Boston.

Old papers for sale at this office at thirty five cents per hundred.

The annual diocesan convention of the Episcopal church will meet at St. John's church on the 27th of May.

The ruined reading room building of the Mechanics' Association is now used as a bill-board for posting, Sheridan and Mack having utilized it for that purpose. The former occupants of the two stores have found better quarters, Mr. Fred Moses in the Congress Block news-room, and Mr. Francis W. Ham in the book store of Mr. William B. Lowd.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

FORTIFICATIONS OF PORTSMOUTH HARBOR.—The United States has purchased the point of land on the south-easterly side of the island of Newcastle, and extensive earth works are to be erected there the coming summer. The transfer of deeds was made a few days since. Uncle Sam paid Mr. John A. Lamprey $5000 for about ten acres of land. This is the remnant of the old Jaffries farm, and the proper name of this point of land is Jaffries Point. The name "Point Jerry," or "Jerry's Point," is a corruption. On all the old surveys, charts, &c., it is known as Jaffries Point, and it is only within a few years that it has been called Jerry's Point.

Years before the days of the rebellion of the colonies, George Jaffrey, who was clerk for a fishing and trading firm in this city, settled on this point. His grandson, George, was the treasurer of this province at the time of the breaking out of the war. The old Jaffrey mansion still stands and is now occupied by John Albee, Esq. The part of the farm not owned by Mr. Albee, consisting of 56 acres, fell into the hands of Mr. John A. Lamprey, he paying for it the sum of $1200. A few years ago he sold all but 10 acres to Prof. Woodman of Dartmouth College, for $2500. The Prof. erected a summer cottage upon it. This for the last two summer seasons has been occupied by Rev. James DeNormandie of this city. As we have already stated, Mr. J. A. Lamprey has now sold the 10 acres for $5000. It is said that the United States will need more land, and will purchase a part of that now owned by Mr. Albee.

General Duane, of Portland, who has command of the fortifications on this coast, has conducted the negotiations for the United States. The earthworks are to be of a very extensive and substantial character. A huge wall of brick will form the foundation of the casemates. This will be pierced for thirteen of the largest sized guns now at Fort Constitution, and buried in front and rear with twenty-seven feet of earth. A large sum of money will be expended.

—The enquiry is frequently made why the names of our streets can not be painted on the gas posts at the corners. Conspicuous names thus displayed would better aid strangers in finding their whereabouts, than the now half-carried out plan of signs on buildings, which are often put in obscure places and manner or so faded out as to be invisible to the naked eye. The general convenience seems to demand that a reform should be inaugurated in this matter.

—Since the opening early in the fall, of the series of temperance discourses under the auspices of the Washingtonians, a large number of old and young, have taken the pledge—in several instances of persons who had been inveterate drinkers. The good work should continue, and receive the hearty endorsement of the public.

—The ship Webster, built at this port in 1853, while on the way from Bull River, S. C., to York, with a cargo of phosphate, ran ashore on Barnegat Beach, on the 9th, proving a total loss. She was of 1717 tons, and rated A 1. She has been recently owned by Spofford Bros. & Co., of New York.

—The 3:15 P. M., train from this city to Boston, proves an accommodation to our people, and doubtless a success to the Eastern road. We counted sixty-three passengers from this city one afternoon last week. Now let the Concord road give us that long needed noon train both ways.

—The ship Daniel Marcy, of this port, 1212 tons register, built here in 1863, has recently been sold to Boston parties. The price is reported $57,500. The vessel arrived at Liverpool on the 30th ult.

—At this early day a large number of rooms have been engaged at our public houses, for July 4th, and appearances indicate that there will be none to spare in a short time.

—In answer to the remarks of the Chronicle respecting the office of City Messenger, we are requested to say that the position was neither sought nor desired by Mr. Dodge.

The Eastern Railroad

Managers are grasping after still greater advantages. Engineers have commenced making a survey for the shore line extension from Kittery to Biddeford and on Thursday had reached York. A charter for the road was granted last year. The surveying engineers report the road easy to build.

The measure for the consolidation of the Boston & Maine and Eastern Railroads was referred to the railroad committee of the Massachusetts legislature, on Saturday, after a hard struggle.

The President and some of the largest stockholders in the Eastern have purchased a controlling interest in the old Hartford & Erie, and are endeavoring to secure a through line via the Eastern from St. John to New York. To this end, a bill has been introduced in the Massachusetts legislature, allowing passenger cars to be drawn over the original railway in Boston. Should this measure succeed, and the Hartford & Erie route be rightly controlled, passengers may be transported from St. John to New York without change of cars.

S. J. Court.

On Friday, the S. J. Court at Exeter granted Emma S. Rundlett of Hampton a divorce from Frank Rundlett.

The suit of Nathan F. Baker, of Strafham, against Dudley C. Littlefield, of Greenland, to recover damages for injuries sustained by plaintiffs' daughter from a bite by defendent's dog, was called, but defendant waived his defence and the assessment of damages was left to Dr. Geo. W. Kittredge of Newmarket.

That Bell-Ringing.

Messrs. Editors;—I was in hopes that we would not hear anything more about St. John's Church bell being rung the morning of Easter Day, but a nameless correspondent of the Journal wants the public to understand it as he would. He wilfully or ignorantly gets said paper to publish a very wrong statement of facts. He says that Mr. Davies had the bell rung Easter Sunday mornings. I was sexton the six years of that Rector's time here, and he never had said bell rung as the Journal correspondent states, neither did he ever ask me directly or indirectly to do so, or have it rang for services in the Chapel.

Late Saturday evening, before Easter, the Rector's son came to me saying, "Mr. King, father would like to know if you'd ring the bell to-morrow morning?" I asked what time; he said, "six." I made some indirect remarks, and after silence of a few moments, he said, "What will I say to father?" I answered, "I had rather not, at that hour; if it was a chime of bells, there would be some pleasure in ringing it." ROBERT KING.

For Sportsmen.

As the season for snipe shooting approaches we publish for the benefit of those interested the laws passed by the Maine Legislature at its last session in relation to this subject:—

Chapter 90.

AN ACT to amend section sixteen of chapter thirty of the revised statutes, relating to birds. Be it enacted &c., as follows:

Section sixteen of chapter thirty of the revised statutes is hereby amended by inserting after the the word 'sparrows,' in the fifth line, the word 'orioles,' so that said section as amended, shall read as follows:

'SECT. 16. Whoever takes, kills, destroys, or pursues with intent of killing, destroying, or taking with dogs, guns, traps, nets, snares, pit-falls, or any other device or contrivance whatever, any of the birds commonly known as larks, robins, partridges, grouse, swallows, quails, wood-cocks, sparrows, orioles or snipes, except between the first day of September and the first day of February, shall forfeit for every such bird not less than five nor more than ten dollars, to be recovered by complaint before any municipal or police-court or trial justice, one-half to the use of the complaintant, and the other half to the use of the town where the offence is committed.

[Approved January 17, 1873.

The laws of our own State offered protection to the same birds with the exception of grouse. 1wkd&w.

Morning Chronicle.

Readables.

The decision of the court of enquiry at Halifax into the wreck of the steamship "Atlantic" was rendered on Friday, the court decided that Capt. Williams' course in bearing up for Halifax was judicious, and that his conduct and that of his officers, after the vessel struck, was brave and humane; but that there was gross carelessness exhibited by the captain in leaving the deck to his junior officers when running in for the land, and by the officers in charge of the deck in not discovering the lights. The captain's certificate is suspended for two years, and the fourth mate Brown's for three months. As about 540 lives were sacrificed by the criminal failure of the captain and officers of the Atlantic to take the commonest precautions, it would seem that in the opinion of the Halifax court of enquiry the murder of a man by reckless carelessness is properly punished by thirty-six hours' "suspension of certificate." Cheap enough, too.

The surrender of a large force of hostile Indians in Arizona to General Crook's troops is reported.

Henry Frolich was hung Friday at Syracuse penitentiary for the murder of Peter Schalter. The body was subsequently given into the possession of the friends of the deceased. Frolich marched firmly to the gallows, where he made a speech denouncing the judge and district-attorney in bitter language. He closed his remarks by saying: "In the name of God Almighty, I am ready. Let me go."

Baron Justus D. Liebig, the eminent chemist, died at Munich, Bavaria, April 18, aged 70 years.

Col. Emory, at New Orleans, has been instructed to afford all necessary military aid to the United States civil authorities in quelling the disturbances in Grant parish. The latest accounts report that "everything is quiet; the laborers have resumed work on the neighboring plantations, and no further trouble is apprehended." We should think the merciless slaughter, by fire and lead, of several hundred unarmed prisoners, would have a "quieting" effect in the neighborhood of the massacre.

—A boy of tender years, whose parents live on Rabbit Hill, returned Saturday night from a visit to his uncle's in the country, and Sunday morning got an augur and perforated his father's choice peach tree, and set out a pail for the sap. When the old gentleman discovered the preparations for the coming sugar season, he instituted an investigation, and the little boy, remembering Washington, went up in the garret, and hid behind a barrel. It will be some weeks before he will be able to ride behind a barrel again.—Danbury News.

—A New York paper suggests that you do not need to black your boots in Pittsburg. You hang them out of the window at night, and they are black enough in the morning.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

Pulmocine Cordial

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. EVERY FAMILY should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred THROAT DISEASES so all times prevalent, it is the ounce of PREVENTION. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment' warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this FAMILY MEDICINE prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMONCIC CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best PULMONARY CURATIVE he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are WILD-CHERRY BARK, SQUILL ROOT, LIQUORICE ROOT, BLOOD ROOT, &c. It is a BLOOD PURIFIER, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

USE BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified, in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Chronicle.

A "LEADER" UNDER DIFFICULTIES.—There was nothing else for it—we must write our leader. We weren't aware of having any very definite views on any subject that we cared particularly to express; and we didn't feel like writing heavy articles any way. It was such a day to be out of doors. Spring had come, heralded by robins and hand organs, and for three weeks our table had been covered with leaves—(the robins didn't do it, however) of paper, containing poetry on spring; varying in style and diction from the mild school girl lyric—where beauty and duty, youth and truth rhymed with great effect—to the Byronic effusions of an Atlanta youth who parts his hair in the middle, wears lavender kids in the forenoon, and exhibits much poetic absence of mind, which sometimes leads him to exchange hats, canes, etc.,—and invariably to the detriment of the other party concerned. His poem on spring darkly insinuated that the seasonable annual recurrence of vegetation did not interest him personally, that despair and dandelions have nothing in common and that as soon as possible he would like to have the south wind breathe over his grave. But this digression does not relate how we wrote our editorial. We sharpened our pencil, took some manuscript paper and assumed the editorial chair and an inspired expression. Before we had decided upon a subject, there was a knock at the door, a man entered, walked up to us with an air of stiffened viciousness evidently meant for dignity, and enquired what we "meant by stating in the columns of the Weekly, that at the recent donation party for the Rev. Mr.—, he received three bushels of potatoes and $7 50 in greenbacks, when it was turnips and $8.25? And this" he added bitterly, "is independent journalism!" We told him we didn't write the notice, had not seen it and did not know it had been written, but would enquire about it and have the error corrected. We called the sub-editor, who said he hadn't written it, was out of town and rather thought the local reporter did it. So we gave a mighty shout, which woke our errand-boy, who was sleeping just outside the door with his head on a pile of exchanges, sent him down to the corner of the street where our reporter usually is to be found, and had that interesting but erratic Bohemian before us in two minutes time. He said he wrote the notice, sorry, unintentional; and finally went off arm in arm with our visitor. We wrote the first sentence of our leader—and were interrupted by a citizen who insisted that our article on the Credit Mobilier was an attempt to get ourself elected member of the common council of Atlanta, and when we denied it and stated that the Weekly would uphold truth and integrity, on whichever political side it might be found, administered an excessively witty poke in our side, indulged in facial contortions to a surprising extent, and assured us we were no end clever, and knew where to put ourselves where we should do the most good. We told him we proposed invariably to tell the truth in all circumstances—that in order to grind an axe we would never dull the edge of our little hatchet, and that our best copper-toed type should ever proclaim Justice, Equity, Right and all the other capital letters. Our "opea pieroenta" apparently bewildered him a little—he vaguely replied: "You're another" and departed. And then it was a book agent, and next a man with maps, and another with a very ingenious Patent Self Acting Rotary Apple-corer. It cut a hole in our table, took the skin off two of our knuckles, and completed its work of devastation by falling on the sub-editor's toes. Next it was the compositor coming for copy; then a lot of books to be reviewed; after that, a lady with a subscription paper for the Society for supplying umbrellas to the natives of Ujiji; then came two or three friends, who having a spare hour or two themselves, adopted the popular theory that an editor is a leisurely person, with nothing to do and a large salary for doing it. So they passed the rest of the forenoon with us. We were glad to see them—but our leader was, meanwhile, at a stand-still. The rest of the day was after the same style; bores, politicians, a theatrical agent, half a dozen men with great, but wholly imaginary, griefs on account of some articles of ours—and threatening us with libel suits, whereas we had not previously been aware of their existence. So our day was lost—we sat up all night fixing the telegraphic matter and writing our leader. The compositor did his best with the unintelligible scrawl; and when our sentences failed to connect on account of our extreme sleepiness, that excellent compositor supplied words and punctuation; and we solemnly assert that the best paragraph in that leader is one that we do not recollect to have written.—Atlanta Weekly.

Strikes.

The European "strike," or concerted action of laborers to force their employers to grant some desired concession, by refusing to work until such concession is made, seems to have become thoroughly acclimated in this country; and at short intervals some great strike occurs in one branch of industry or another, ending sometimes in a seeming triumph for the strikers and sometimes in a defeat, and not unfrequently in a compromise which leaves matters just the same or a little worse for both parties than they were before the strike. But all long-sustained strikes are alike in one thing,—they all cause pecuniary loss to the employers and more or less privation and suffering to the workmen and their families.

Much good advice is regularly given by the press to working men on the subject of strikes, the largest part of which is comprehended in Punch's advice to the young couple about to get married, "Don't." Intending strikers are warned that such a proceeding will be "suicidal," that they will lose much and gain nothing, that their families will suffer and that striking is not the way to secure higher wages or shorter hours, or whatever advantage it may be which they seek. Harrowing tales of the results of past strikes are told them, advice so earnest that it sounds menacing, is given,—and then the working men go right off and strike, just as though nothing wise had been said by the public press.

If strikes uniformly end in disadvantage to the strikers, as some would have us believe, it is singular that all the bitter experience of the past has not yet opened the eyes of working men and made strikes impossible; but the opposite seems to be the case, for year by year the strikes in England—the birthplace of the strike—become more extended, better sustained and more formidable. The suffering and pecuniary loss resulting from a great strike are immense, yet there must be a compensating balance in favor of working men somewhere, and they must be aware of it, for they do not hesitate to strike again and again, though they know well what they will have to face. The following startling statements were made not long ago in an editorial article in the London Times, a paper which cannot certainly be called an advocate of strikes or of the cause of the working men: "Our working classes have just won a succession of great victories. The campaign of labor against capital may be considered at an end for the present, and the results may be calculated almost as easily as those of the late Franco-German war. They may be stated either in time or in money. Taking the latter test, it is not too much to say that five million men have won on the average a shilling a week from their employers, even when all allowances are made for the increased price of food. That is thirteen millions sterling a year, and, if capitalized, is about the amount of the French Indemnity." Since the Times spoke thus of the results of "the campaign of labor against capital," the coal miners of England have embarrassed and interrupted all the manufacturing interests of that country by a strike which has sent coal up to famine prices. Whether their wages will rise with it remains to be seen.

The Railroad Disaster.

The escape of the Shore Line mail train from the fate of the steamboat train was due to the firmness of the switchman at the junction at Stonington. The steamboat train was late and the conductor and passengers were indignant that the switchman did not give them the track instead of making them wait. Had he done so, a greater number of lives would have been sacrificed, as the sleeping cars were full and were the first cars of the train.

The washing away of the Ennis dam was the cause of the disaster, and must have occurred but a few seconds before the train reached the bridge. The dam was considered safe. There are some hints given out that Mr. Ennis had enemies caused by law suits about liquors, who had threatened to damage him, and that they may have mined the dam. Another report, more reasonable, is that musk-rats undermined its foundations.

The train hands seem to have done their duty faithfully, Conductor Gardiner immediately sent a danger signal after the accident occurred to warn the approaching mail train, which was but ten minutes behind. Sad as is the death of a hero, it is nevertheless a satisfaction to place on record an instance where the men to whom was entrusted the safety of the passengers did not desert their posts, but died facing their danger and in the discharge of their duty. William D. Gould, the engineer, could not have perceived the break long before the dreadful moment came. But though he might have made an effort to escape, he stayed firm, shut off the steam, applied the brake and went to death with his face to the front. He was instantly killed, probably by the steam from the broken boiler. Through the cab window his body could be seen burning, and when at last the fire was subdued and his charred remains were found, his hand still grasped the throttle. The body of the fireman, George Eldred, was found as he perished, the coal shovel in his hands, as if he was just putting coal in the furnace. According to all accounts Guild was a noble fellow, and lived, as he died, with the confidence and honor of all who knew him. His home was in that part of Providence known as Elmwood, his house being close to the railroad crossing. Whenever he passed this spot whether in daylight or darkness, he used to sound a short, peculiar signal on the locomotive whistle as a greeting to his wife and a notification that he was there and "all right." Year in and year out this signal never failed. The regular passengers came to know it, and on hearing it would say, "There's Guild's signal to his wife." On Saturday she missed it for the first time and will never hear it again. George Eldred, the fireman, had many friends and was highly esteemed. He was engaged to be married to a young woman in Westerly.

The locomotive stood as it had plunged, its position reminding one of a horse climbing a steep bank, the forward end pointed up in the air at an angle of something like forty-five degrees. The forward trucks were gone, but the great driving wheels were nearly buried in the gravel. As the engine made the fatal plunge and landed on the other side it must have struck the track, for rails were beneath the wheels, and one rail had pierced the smoke arch and penetrated to the boiler, letting the steam escape. The tremendous force of the shock is shown by the depth to which the wheels were buried, and the rail which is still there, like a Titanic arrow piercing a giant's heart, is stopped at the end like a common arch. In the water was found a woman's foot half-burned, and encased in a Congress boot.

The following persons were killed:—William D. Guild, engineer, of Providence; George H. Eldred, fireman, of Wickford; Albert F. Allen of Providence; Jerry Creamer of Boston; John Callahan of New York;

The Boston Advertiser says editorially:—

In spite of the terrible fatality that occurred and the sad wreck of the train, the result must be regarded as a proof of the value of the train-brakes and the improved platforms in use on the train. It is apparently demonstrated that the air-brake was not only applied, but that it performed an important service. It is not easy otherwise to account for the fact that any part of the train was left on the rails. The time was so short that it would have been useless to whistle for the hand-brakes to be applied, and if the air-brakes had but one second to operate, they paid a thousand times over for their cost. The platforms were even more useful. The shock of the sudden stop on the brink of the precipice would have broken cars not equipped with this platform in pieces, and driven them together in the fashion of a telescope. But not a life was lost in either of the cars so suddenly arrested in their progress, and they were drawn away from the scene entirely uninjured. After such a practical test as this, and after such a complete demonstration of the value of these inventions for saving human life, the failure of any company to employ them, or others as effective, is little short of criminal.

A DANBURY DOG.—A Nelson Street man is the un-envied owner of a dog that is a terror to the neighbors, purely by its snapping and snarling propensities. He snaps at everybody, and knows a little something of the flavor of everybody up that way. It is estimated that he has cloth enough in him to make a pair of breeches for every buoy on Long Island sound. The other day a youth on that street loaded up the end of a stick with a mixture compounded of horse radish and cayenne pepper, and commenced shaking it through the fence at the cur; and the cur flew up and caught the bait savagely, and the boy drew the stick away so sharply, that it left all the contents in the animal's mouth, and the animal chewed away on it in awful exultation for an instant. Then it commenced to stare, and then spit, and howl, and weep, and paw, and roll over, finally going under the barn, where it remained for two days in religious seclusion. Now, when anybody pokes a stick through a fence that dog don't step up. It merely looks over that way as much as to say: "No seasoning in mine, if you please."

—One of the Republican members of the Ohio Constitutional Convention was elected over his single competitor by one majority in a total vote of 3,105.

A woman named Mary Burns was found insensible in a street in Boston, Friday night, and was discovered to have poisoned herself. Antidotes were administered, and she will probably recover. She told a pitiful story, to the effect that she is friendless and homeless, her husband having died some time ago and she having been discharged from service with a family in Boston, on account of poor health. Having no place to go to, no money, no friends, no hope for the future, the poor creature determined to poison herself and die in the streets.

State News.

J. Stark Sanborn of Danville, whose attempt to drown himself in a well we have mentioned, jumped into a river on Saturday and although he was taken out five minutes afterward, was dead. He was driving to Brentwood with his wife. He was involved in several law suits, resulting from parties unfairly obtaining possession of his property.

Wm. J. Colley of Manchester was fatally injured at West Rochester, Vt., on the 17th, by the premature discharge of a gun.

George Hodgdon of Farmington was struck by a train on the Cocheco Railroad on the 15th and so badly injured that he died the same day.

Ballou's Magazine for May contains: "An Ancient Lighthouse; An African Musical Instrument; Parlor Amusement; The Eleventh Hour; A Farewell; The Impressed; A Little Love; The Little Stranger; The Belle of the Ball; To be Sold for Debt; The Darien Ship Canal; The Painter Friar; Three Evenings; Marriage in China; At Last; A Very Suspicious Letter; Tom and I; My Own Rival; An August Afternoon; and other articles. $1,50 per year; Thomas & Talbot, 36 Bromfield Street, Boston.

The May number of Harper's Magazine closes the Forty-sixth Volume. The volume contains four hundred engravings. In the May Number, Lyman Abbott gives a very entertaining description of the various forms of "Life under the Ocean Wave," both vegetable and animal, with thirty accurate and beautiful engravings. Wirt Sikes contributes a sketch of Antoine Wiertz, the eccentric artist of Brussels, his paper being illustrated by engravings from this painter's most characteristic pictures. Moncure D. Conway gives, in his best style, the notable features of the coming Exposition, and of Viennese amusements, art-galleries, musical entertainments, shops, markets, and superstitions. A picturesque description of a summer cruise, in the yacht Rambler, among the Azores and Canary Islands, with characteristic illustrations, will prove very attractive to many readers. There are also timely and valuable contributions from E. H. House, on "The Present and Future of Japan," and from Eugene Lawrence on "Geneva and its Bishop." Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford contributes a short story, "The Beautiful Miss Vavasour," a tale of Washington Society; and D. R. Castleton gives us another of her characteristic stories, entitled "Lost." The serial stories by Charles Reade, Wilkie Collins, and Miss Thackeray are continued. The poetry of the Number is by John G. Saxe, Ellis Gray, Kate Hillard, and Miss H. R. Hudson, the latter contributing a poem of great pathos, "The Newsboy's Debt," beautifully illustrated. An interesting paper by Dr. Samuel Osgood, on the "Æsthetics of Social Life," constitutes the Editor's Easy Chair for May, Mr. Curtis being unable, on account of illness, to supply that department. The Editor's Scientific Record furnishes an admirable resume of the progress of science since the beginning of the year, occupying four pages, and also gives a variety of important matter in shorter articles. The Editor's Historical Record is this month confined to the summary of political events, including an exhaustive analysis of the New York Constitutional Commission. The Editor's Drawer is unusually interesting, including another installment of "Our London Scrap-book," treating of the Artists' Quarter, with four illustrations.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Portsmouth Directory, 1873.

Messrs. Greenough, Jones &Co, Publishers of this valuable work, intended, we understand, two years ago, at the time they published it for 1871, not to revise it again for three years; but owing to many solicitations from our business men, to have it revised and issued just previous to the return of the "Sons of Portsmouth" on July 4th, containing the names, business, and present location of those visiting us at that time from all sections of the country, they have decided to add this to the Portsmouth Directory for 1873, and having secured the services of Mr. James E. Huntress, the gentleman who has canvassed for the Directory here for a number of years past, intend to have the new Directory ready for delivery about the 28th of June next.

This will be a work this year that every family will wish to keep, not only as the Portsmouth Directory, but to see at any time where the "Sons of Portsmouth" located in other cities may be found. The remuneration to the publishers for their increased labor, and expense, will come from the larger sale expected and not from any increase in the price of the book, which will be sold as in 1871 for $1.25. Business men who have been in the habit of inserting their advertisements in this work, will of course see the increased value of continuing the same this year.

Laconics.

First class acting should bring out a crowd to see John E. Owens to-morrow evening, even at first class prices. William Warren, Joseph Jefferson and John E. Owens are the great comedians of America. Warren long ago gave Portsmouth people an opportunity to witness his acting; Jefferson promised to do likewise and may yet come; and now the advent of Owens is looked forward to with delightful anticipation. As "Solon Shingle" and "Major De Boots" he is unexcelled. There will be a rush for seats, and those who are wise will secure them early at Preston's.

Gunner Thomas H. Fortune, U. S. N., reported for ordnance duty at the navy yard on Monday. Mr. Fortune made many friends during a former term of service at this station, and finds many to welcome his return after an absence of a little more than three years. His war record is first rate, and we believe he was in the Varuna with Commander (now Commodore) Boggs when that vessel made her celebrated fight with the rebel fleet at New Orleans.

Meeting of the ladies and gentlemen of the Fourth of July committee at the Council room, this evening at 7:30. It is proposed to organize a bureau of accommodation, which will give the ladies abundant employment for a time.

Capt. Richmond has been appointed time clerk in department of Steam Engineering at the navy yard vice Stephen F. Shaw, resigned. The appointment was made under the civil service rules.

It is expected that the libel case, Carpenter vs. Bailey, will be tried to-day at Exeter.

The trains on the Eastern Railroad will commence running on a new time table, next Monday.

The Temple was well filled on Sunday evening by a quiet and attentive audience to listen to the singularly effective temperance orator, Francis Murphy, Esq., who has been called the equal of John B. Gough. There can be no comparison made between these two workers in the temperance cause, because they are alike in no point whatever. Gough is dramatic, and studies to produce effect; while Murphy is as unstudied as a child, and covets no applause, seeks no encomiums upon his style, but seems bent only on undoing, if possible, the terrible work of the rum demon which had held possession of him for so many years; and his method is simply a recital of the history of his checkered life showing up its pitfalls and warning his fellow men from such a career, by exhorting them to let alone everything that unsells the man, and makes him a brute. Tears were manifest in eyes that were unused to weeping, and when the lecturer closed, and an invitation had been extended to all who wished to sign the pledge to come forward, a large number responded to the call, and enrolled their names, on the side of right. Mr. Murphy is to lecture in Concord next Sunday evening, and intends visiting the more prominent towns and cities in New Hampshire. We bespeak him a hearty welcome wherever he may go, because we believe him to be in earnest, and that he is obeying the promptings of an honest, overflowing and sympathetic heart.

Parties wishing to engage him can address the President of the Reform Club, J. Horace Kent, at Portsmouth to whose efforts we are indebted for the present interest in the cause of temperance hereabouts.

A Sad Case.

The New York correspondent of the Boston Advertiser says of the suicide of Dr. Chas. C. Sheafe:—

The "doctor," as he was familiarly called, was formerly in good circumstances in Boston, but the financial disasters of 1867 swamped him, and after giving up all his property to his creditors he came to this city, where his life has been one of unmitigated hardship. He has steadily declined returning to his home in Boylston street, Boston, where his wife and daughter reside in affluence, hoping that he would still live to recuperate his lost fortunes here, and be able to return to his old haunts on State street, free from any pecuniary liabilities. He was universally respected here by all who knew him, and was esteemed for his high sense of honor and old-time suavity and gentlemanly demeanor. He was formerly connected with the Institute of Technology of Boston, and was quite eminent in many departments of chemistry. Great depression of spirits, caused by his unfortunate impecunious condition, combined with a yearning for what he considered an impossible return to his home, was the prime cause of his fatal act. His memory will be tenderly retained by many old friends, here and in Boston.

A SOMNAMBULIST SINGER.—A curious case of somnambulism is reported as having recently occured in Troy, N. Y., the somnambulist being a young lady residing in a neigboring State, but visiting some feiends in that city:

There was a social gathering at the house of a friend, to which she was invited and during the evening she was asked to sing. Being an accomplished musician and a singer of more than ordinary sweetness, she responded to the demands of the company for repeated songs, until it is probable she quite exhausted herself. The company broke up about 1 o'clock, and at 2 o'clock the young lady retired. In about an hour the most delicious strains of music were heard proceeding from her room. They continued so long that one of the members of the famity arose, and upon entering the apartment of the young lady found her asleep and singing with all her power. She tried to awaken her, but the effort was unavailing. She continued to sing, going from one song to another, for upwards of an hour, when nature seemed to be exhausted and the fair and musical somnambulist sank into a real sleep. Upon awakening the next morning she knew nothing of the occurrence, and could scarcely believe that she had been the unwitting source of so much enjoyment and surprise to those who heard her.

A POKER PLAYING FORTUNATUS.—The Pacific slope has yet a hero unsung of Bret Harte or Mark Twain. He resides on the Humboldt river, in Nevada and his name is "Poker" Brown. It is the peculiarity of this individual that he is marvelously successful in every conceivable branch of industry except that to which his name associates him, and in that he is strangely and consistently unfortunate. At mining, farming, freighting and stock-raising, he has made about a dozen large fortunes, which he has lost at draw-poker in speedy consecution. Some time ago, he was the possessor of a farm and 500 hogs; when a couple of professionals dropped in on him. Straightway they had a little game, with a pig for a "blind" and hog for a "straddle," and in few hours "Poker" sallied forth, hogless and farmless, to make another fortune, for the vampires who subsist upon him. Surely he deserves an idyl.—Chicago Tribune.

—Mr. Harlan was the only retiring member of the Senate who would not accept his back pay.

In Tennessee at a Congressional election, where there is a tie vote, the Governor is to cast the decisive ballot.

—Wirt Sykes, the silent partner of Olive Logan, was once a poor printer boy, but by genius, industry and tact became the husband of a woman who can earn $200 a night, lecturing.—Des Moines Republican.

Morning Chronicle.

MORE THAN THEY BARGAINED FOR. The last hours of the Pennsylvania Legislature were accompanied by the usual half-drunken orgies that have marked its dissolution for the past six years. While the House was waiting for messages from the Senate the fun grew fast and furious, and Mr. Brockway moved that Andy McClure be invited to address them. The Senator was found by the committee appointed, and promptly responding to the invitation, addressed the House as follows:

Mr. Speaker and Commoners of Pennsylvania,—I thank you for the distinction you have conferred upon me by your invitation to address you on the subject of reform. I know of no other body of men, either of the present or past, that needs instruction on the necessity of both public and private morality so much as the House of Representatives of this State now before me—(laughter)—or that has so broadly and deeply experimented in the line of individual and official profligacy. (Laughter and applause.) I am not surprised, however, that it is so, when I consider that of the immediate members serving in this House from my immediate locality, many were not even nominated, and few, if any, were elected. (Shouts of laughter.) I sent you reform bills, which cost me many days of anxious thought and labor to perfect, but you danced not when I piped to you, neither did you weep responsive to my mourning over the degeneracy of the body politic. I must admit, however, that you were prompt executioners, for every bill that looked towards reform was negatived with a yell as fast as rules would allow.

But in political, as often in moral and religious circles, the darkest hour is just before the dawn of day; and it is gratifying that after you have consummated all the harm you can possibly inflict upon the State you have by a unanimous resolution called for a confessor. (Laughter.) It was well to pause thus, just for the sake of novelty or reference, so that when the tempest breaks you can point to this becoming act of contrition for the wrongs done to your constituents and the common wealth. (Applause and sarcastic shouts.) Most of you who have for three months been serving in the places to which other persons were elected by the people have discounted the retributive wave of popular reprobation by creating offices by legislative enactments, to which you hope to retire; and those unprovided for hope to be placed on the indefinite pay-roll of the pasters and folders of the House, in accordance with the prevalent custom here to pension decayed statesmen. (Shouts of laughter.) That you seek liberal counsels to have good seed in the chaos of virtue that surrounds you is a hopeful sign of the times, and if you do not cheat us more than 30,000 in Philadelphia next fall the places that know you now will know you no more forever. (Laughter).

But I turn to the faint silver lining on the deep cloud of your record. One act of this House gladdened the hearts of the whole people of the State and re-inspired hope throughout the length and breadth of the commonwealth. I refer to your vote in the midst of disorder that at a Philadelphia fire would be called a riot, on Monday evening last, fixing an early day for your final adjournment. I have heard of no citizen of the State who did not heartily approve of that act. (Laughter.) I am happy to point to it as the oasis in the withered desert that you have made about you, and to accord you credit for it.

Hoping, gentlemen, if I may be pardoned the use of the term—(laughter)—that the length of your lives may correspond with the measure of your virtues, and that you will be succeeded by better men than yourselves, I bid you good night.

The Senator retired amid roaring applause and a liberal shower of paper balls.

SPECIFIC FOR CURE OF MENINGITIS.—A Michigan correspondent of the Freeport, Illinois, Bulletin pronounces what is now known as the cerebro-spinal meningitis, now prevailing so extensively and fatally in many parts of the country, as the same epidemic which raged in Michigan about twenty-five years ago to such an extent that it actually broke up the legislature and carried to the grave every one whom it attacked, until the "old-fashioned hemlock sweats were adopted," after which every one was saved. He says: "Our people sent about twenty-five miles distant and procured hemlock boughs, and they sent for it from all parts of the State. There was a company called the Hook and Ladder Company, and for weeks they did nothing night or day but go from house to house giving hemlock sweats, and it never failed to save every case. Thorough sweating might do, but there is no mistake about hemlock sweats being a specific."

—A Michigan man has invented a unique, poetical, and to his mind, eminently practical mode of travelling rapidly on horseback. His idea is to construct a cone-shaped balloon, which is to be laid lengthwise upon the horse's back. The animal and rider are then to be weighed, and the balloon filled with just gas enough to lift all but a few pounds' weight of horse and rider from the earth, in order that the frisky Pegasus may have nothing to do but go ahead. The possible speed of such a contrivance is as yet beyond conjecture.

The Chronicle.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 74.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

THE FIRST OF THE GOV. WEARE FAMILY IN NEW HAMPSHIRE. — Massachusetts has furnished the ancestors of Governor Weare and was the native place of at least two others, Gen. Bartlett, a native of Amesbury and Gov. Isaac Hill, a native of Cambridge. Gov. Sullivan was a native of Berwick, Me., but Maine was then a part of Massachusetts.

The ancestor of Gov. Weare first in New Hampshire and probably the oldest of them born in this country was Nathaniel, of Newbury, Ms. The late Hon. John Kelly of Exeter stated that he was born there. But as the town was not settled till 1635 and he was born in 1632, more likely he was a native of some other place, perhaps near. There was a Nathaniel Weare, one of the grantees of the town, and this might have been his father.

The Nathaniel Weare who came to New Hampshire was the grand-father of Gov. Meschach Weare and married Dec. 3, 1656, Elizabeth Swain. There is no record of the Swain name in Newbury then, but it was in Hampton, and likely she was of that town, and to that town he moved about 1663. He had but two children at the time of the removal, Nathaniel, who became the father of Gov. Weare, and Peter. Six others were born after moving to Hampton.

When Mr. Weare came to Hampton the town was large, embracing besides what is now Hampton, North Hampton, South Hampton, Kensington, Hampton Falls, Seabrook, and a part of Rye. Much of it was a wilderness. He settled in what is now Hampton Falls. The minister of Hampton was Rev. Seaborn Cotton.

Mr. Weare was one of the Selectmen in 1680 and probably in other years. He was possessed of considerable property, only six of 125 tax-payers at that time paying higher than himself.

Soon troubles came on in which he was obliged to take an active part. In 1684 the old Mason claim for title to lands came up. Mr. Weare and others were sued. The court of which the unscrupulous Barefoot was Judge, was against them, and the verdict of the Jury also. They appealed to the king and Council of England. Then the court required bonds and the matter was dropped, as Mason's claim was found soon not valid.

At this time too, 1682—1685, New Hampshire was cursed with the worst Governor it ever had, excepting Andros a little later. This was Edward Cranfield. Rapacious, unjust, intolerant and arbitrary, the people felt that he could not be endured and sent Mr. Weare to England with petitions to the king, Charles II, for relief. These petitions were numerously signed in the four towns then in the Province, there being 34 signers in Exeter, 58 in Dover, 60 in Portsmouth and 67 in Hampton. Cranfield resided in Portsmouth and probably more could have signed there had they not feared his vengeance.

Mr. Weare sailed from Boston probably before Cranfield knew he was gone, or likely he would have prevented him. The petitions were laid before the king and he referred them to the Lords of Trade. This Board virtually decided against Cranfield and in the mean time the Governor not liking the shape things were taking, left the country, to the joy of the injured people.

After this Mr. Weare was for many years a member of the Council and was confided in as a man of good understanding and wisdom. In 1694 he was appointed Judge of the Superior Court and held the office some time. He had not a law education, but he had penetration and wisdom and an inflexible adherence to the right.

In Dec., 1701, he was one of 15 appointed by the Governor and Council to run lines between the towns. This is the last duty we have an account of he was appointed to perform. In 1712, Hampton Falls was disannexed from Hampton and became a town. In this he resided and died May 12, 1718, aged 85 years.

—That was a wise man who cut a big hole in his barn door for his cat, and a small one for her kitten.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1873.

The Salary Steal.

Our evening contemporary of the coppery persuasion says: "Gen. Farnsworth of Illinois has written a scathing letter in which he rebukes Grant and his followers in the strongest language for stealing tens of thousands of dollars of the people's money, and putting it in their own pockets." That is very good; but what about those who are not included among "Grant's followers," yet who participated in the steal? A larger percentage of democrats than of republicans voted for the back-action-salary amendment to the appropriation bill; and quite as many democrats as republicans, who voted against the bill, have since taken their share of the plunder. Did Gen. Farnsworth, in his "scathing letter" of rebuke to "Grant and his followers," have any remarks to make on the noble conduct of those sterling democratic patriots from New Hampshire who voted against "stealing tens of thousands of dollars of the people's money, and putting it into their own pockets," and afterwards, having made all the political capital they could out of their virtuous action, pocketed their share of the stolen "tens of thousands of dollars of the people's money," as a reward for their honesty? We pause for a reply.

"'Bout Ship."

The New York World recently discoursed as follows:

These outsiders, who pant for a dissolution of the democratic organization, would soon learn, if they could get access to a democratic audience, that the party was never less inclined to adopt or tolerate their notions. There is a general conviction that last year's campaign was an egregious blunder. Instead of being prepared to go further in the same direction, the party recoils from every experiment of a similar kind. That ill-starred experiment never had anything to recommend it but an impatient hope of success. The party will not again foolishly burn its fingers by putting them into the same fire. He must be a verdant politician Indeed who thinks this is a promising time to convince the democracy that they have anything to gain by ploughing with a strange heifer. If they had failed last year in spite of good management and strict fidelity, this kind of appeal would seem more specious. We say to the quacks; we have taken your medicine once, and do not doubt at all that the larger dose you now propose would render further medicine unnecessary—by ending both disease and patient.

That the World "disgusts" the Greeley movement and intimates that it was "quack medicine," is nothing to wonder at, for it strenuously opposed that movement; but we find the above extract going the general rounds of the democratic papers, the sentiment it expresses being universally endorsed and commended,—a fact which our "liberal republican" friends will do well to consider.

Only the most innocently confiding of the human race took any stock in the democratic-liberal-republican fusion movement of last year, or placed the least confidence in the professions of the ancient party hacks who fugled the whole proceedings; and now the organs of the democratic party, from the World down, are almost unanimous in acknowledging that it was merely an "ill-starred experiment" which "never had anything to recommend it but an impatient hope of success." That is just what the republican press and speakers said of it all through the campaign,—that it was but a desperate scramble for power, by the same old democratic party which had already sustained so many defeats and which had not changed and could not change; and for answer the democratic press earnestly reprobated the "radical partizanship" which refused to worship according to the tenets of the new democratic dispensation, and the democratic speakers talked gushingly of "letting bygones be begones," "clasping hands across the bloody chasm," "the era of good feeling" and all that lovely sort of thing. The confession of the democratic organs that all the bifalutin sentiments they expressed during the campaign were prompted solely by "an impatient hope of success," will not a whit alter the opinion then entertained of the honesty of their professions, by the republicans; but it will afford a satisfactory scale with which to weigh any future protestations of reform made by the democratic party.

—A strict observance of Lent seems a thing of the past in most parts of Europe. In England, twenty years since, to go to a ball during the season was held to indicate an absence of genteel orthodoxy, but now you may go every night.

Readables.

Mrs. Lucette Meyers is no longer "the parrot that will not talk." Now that she is at liberty, she freely expresses her opinion in regard to the Brooklyn detectives. She says they are good for nothing—worse even than those of New York; and their questions are so bungling that a child could answer them evasively. Their idea of the manner of Mr. Goodrich's death seemed to be, she said, that he fired the first bullet over his left eye-brow, then wiped off the blood from his face with a towel, and hung the towel up to dry; then he lay down, pulling the boots under his head, and fired the other two shots. They could not get rid of the idea of suicide. Mrs. Meyers thinks that if they had shown the same anxiety about the whereabouts of Kate Stoddard on the night of the murder that they did about her, they might have accomplished something. She says Roscoe by this time may be thousands of miles away, but it is just as likely that he is in New York. The only complaints she makes in regard to her detainment is that Coronor Whitehill and Detective Videtto did not keep their repeated promises to let her visit her father and mother and little boy, if only for a few moments, under the escort of officers.

The court in San Francisco has decided that Laura Fair shall pay her lawyer some three thousand dollars more than he has already received, for his services in her two murder trials.

A fire on an Indiana prairie near Belleville recently destroyed many houses, farms and cattle. One of the burnt-out families took refuge in a neighbor's house, a portion of which was soon afterward blown down, causing the death of two women and six children.

The suit of George B. Davis against the New York Times to recover $50,000 for an alleged libel, came to a sudden end on Monday. Davis was put on the stand, when the counsel for the plaintiff objected to his testifying, on the ground that he was a convicted felon; the judge sustained the objection, thus ending the trial.

Now that a few days have somewhat cooled our angry passions, it begins to appear that Captain Jack did it in a fit of emotional insanity.

General Butler announces that he will again be a candidate for the Massachusetts Governorship.

SUNSET COX, the Mercutio of the House, whose absence therefrom even the Republican leaders (with whom he measured swords so frequently and successfully) will deeply regret, is making a health trip through the Southern States, accompanied by his accomplished wife. When last heard from, Mr. Cox was at Jacksonville, Florida, "going in swimming with alligators," &c. Writing from that place to an old friend, a gentleman of Washington city, he says:

"You would have laughed yourself into a jelly could you have seen me addressing a republican caucus, or convention, to nominate a Mayor here, Friday night, 28th. When the committee went out to fix up, the municipal State speakers were called for. All of the five speakers, except two, were colored. If I recollect aright I was one of the two. More fun than killing alligators up the St. Johns! After a glossy specimen of African orator had finished his say to the 'audience,' a nice callud pussun suggested that Mister Cox was in de room; dar he, and moved he 'dress us. I supposed there was a colored man in Jacksonville owning my name, or that it was a joke, but 'dar he' came again, and being urged I said: 'Excuse me, gentlemen. I am not of your party. Am only a quiet observer of the refinements of primary assemblages by the democratic-republican people of the South.' (Here one of them laughed and came near being mauled.) Another gentleman, in a singularly eloquent and complimentary speech, invited me up. I went up and in. Told them to clear out the rascals, that after elections we were unanimous—and the minority acquiesced; that having adopted the fifteenth amendment I hoped they would make no distinctions against us on account of our white color, and so on. Well, I had a funny time, and came home dazed at my new experience. Just in to-day (Sunday) from the Methodist church, (no chimes attached.) The preacher fairly howled after the warriors of Jerry Cho to come out and fight for de Lord—callud pussun. Another said 'Paul was a good scholar, he was. He sot at old Gamalabel's feet. Old Gamal was de Supt. of de High School, you 'member. Good, eh?"

—The St. Paul Press notes that all the advertisements for Indian supplies call for just twice as many pounds of best brown soap as of plug tobacco, and it wants to know what the Indians can do with so much soap.

—If your wife falls into a coughing fit at the most pianissimoest passage of the whole concert, don't pat her on the back. The coughing, no doubt, distorbs everybody, but the remedy is not pat.

AN ECONOMICAL SWEDE.—Windstrand, the Swedish ex-Royal Secretary, who lives in Minnesota, has reached a height of economy of which even a Dio Lewis is ignorant. Having read a statement that Indian corn contains more than four times as much nitrogenous matter as wheat flour, and that one pound of it parched and made into bread is more than equal to two pounds of fat meat, the careful Swede resolved to test its power. Mixing cornmeal with water, he, with his own devoted hands, made a cake one inch thick and seven inches in diameter, which he baked on the coals in the parlor stove. A cake of this size proved to be more than sufficient for one meal. Three times a day for weeks the experimenter ate nothing else, didn't want anything else, didn't lose weight, and was perfectly well. He must have a constitution before which even hard-boiled eggs might bow and mince-pie blush. To rational people he presents the argument that it takes but one hour's work—besides fencing—to produce half a bushel of corn, which is more than sufficient for ten days for one person, it needn't cost anybody more than five dollars a year to live. "Rational people," he declares, "will be more satisfied on that than on the fare at the best hotels in Europe or America." Moreover, he observes that half an acre will produce all the vegetables one person will need for a year—without hard labor; that when the weather is warm it is very comfortable and healthy to go barefoot; that a "very comfortable house," large enough for one person, can be built in Minnesota for twenty dollars, and that almost anybody can do it for himself. Therefore nobody need be at a loss for a den wherein to dwell and fare surpassing that of the best hotels at the rate of five dollars a year.

—Even a bottle of quack medicine can be made to do some good when it is properly used; but this is only true when the stuff is applied in some other way than that which the vender specifies. Here is an illustration: A short time ago a fellow appeared in a Pennsylvania town and offered for sale a liniment which he warranted to cure corns. Probably if any citizen suffering from these pedal plagues had purchased a bottle and applied it as directed no good would have resulted. Yet the fellow's nostrum was not in vain. A drunken loafer who was present offered to drink a bottle without stopping to catch his breath and actually did so; and if the stuff never cured any one of corns, it cured the town of that drunken loafer very effectually.

WELLS' GRAND DISTRIBUTION.—The committee, after drawing nearly one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, have decided to postpone the drawing until July 1st, 1873. This will positively be the last postponement W. B. Lowd, Agent.

MAGIC OF THE MOUTH.—Odoriferous Sozodont renders the mouth enchanting; composed of rare, antiseptic herbs, it imparts whiteness to the teeth, a delicious flower-like aroma to the breath, and preserves intact, from youth to age, the teeth.

MOTHERS, DO NOT LET YOUR CHILDREN trifle with coughs or colds. Insist on their taking Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar without delay. See yourselves that it is done. Beware of procrastination. Crittenton's, 7 6th Avenue. Sold by all Druggists.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in 1 minute.

ECONOMY is consulted in purchasing the best. The most desirable qualities of Boots and Shoes, in latest styles and highest grades, both imported and of their own manufacture, are offered by T. E. Mosely & Co., 293 Washington street, Boston. Ladies and gentlemen will find it of advantage to inspect their stock and prices.

HOMŒPATHIC COCOA, prepared under the most able homœopathic chemical advice, is freely allowed by physicians of that school when a strict embargo is laid upon tea and coffee. For who have tested the purity and exquisite aroma of this choice preparation will ever wish to resume the indicted articles. Made by Walter Baker & Co., Boston, and for sale throughout the land.

VIRUS IN THE AIR. We know that a peculiar poison is evolved from marshy ground and from the decomposing filth of cities by the sunshine of spring, and that this element which is too subtle to be detected by scientific analysis produces epidemic and endemic fevers, aggravates dyspepsia and all bilious disorders, disturbs the bowels, relaxes the nerves and debilitates the general system. Luckily an antidote to this atmospheric virus and a specific for the diseases it generates, has been provided. For a period of more than twenty years Hostetters Stomach Bitters, a medicine in which the finest vegetable tonics and alteratives are combined with a perfectly pure stimulant, has taken precedence of every other preparation, as a specific for the ailments most prevalent at this season of the year. It is agreeable as well as effectual, and eminently safe and wholesome.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Owens.

There is but one Owens, but one "Solon Shingle" in the theatrical world, and to-night our citizens are to be favored by his appearance here. With his world-wide fame and his experience of 2000 performances in the character of "Solon Shingle," there is little wonder that there is an intense desire to hear him, supported as he is by a first-class company, among whom we recognize the names of Misses M. E. Gordon, May Williams and Susan Flood, Walter Bean, Colin Stuart, and other actors of note. Comedy is particularly acceptable to Portsmouth audiences and the programme of the evening offers a surfeit of it. Miss Gordon, the leading lady, is said to be beautiful and an accomplished actress. Owens appears in two characters, "De-Boots" in "Everybody's Friend," a comedy of the most mirth provoking character, and as "Solon Shingle." Secure your tickets early at Preston's.

Laconics.

The attention of persons in want of a small farm is directed to the advertisement, in another column, of the sale by auction to-day of the "York Farm" in Greenland on the Ocean road. The stage route to Rye Beach, including the horses, wagons, harnesses and other fixtures for the business, will also be disposed of at the same time and place.

Alderman Wilson's City Hall has begun to mortify!

We recently chronicled the fact that under the superintendence of Mr. Samuel A. Barrett, of the Concord Railroad, the cargo of steamer Hercules, 1040 tons of coal, had been discharged in twenty hours. The Hercules returned to this port from Philadelphia on Saturday, and Mr. Barrett succeeded in discharging 1042 tons of coal! This time in exactly seventeen hours!

Storer Encampment is making preparations for the observance of Memorial Day.

Mr. John Swain, foreman iron-plater in bureau of construction and repairs at the Navy Yard, while testing a boiler by hydraulic pressure on Monday afternoon, was knocked over by the hose (the coupling having given way) and so much hurt that he was unable to attend to his duties next day.

Pay Inspector Carpenter's suit for libel against Hon. John H. Bailey came before the S. J. Court at Exeter, Tuesday. The suit arose in 1869, from a petition signed by Mr. Bailey and others requesting the Secretary of the Navy to transfer Mr. Carpenter to other duty, and replace him as purchasing and disbursing officer at this station by some officer more in accord with the friends of the administration, which was speedily done. The case was transferred to the law term, on exceptions.

Mr. Charles L. Abbott, formerly of this city, is a State Senator in Texas. He is a bold, uncompromising republican, as he always was.

The large amount of coal arriving at this port so early this season belongs to the Manchester Print Works, that corporation having contracted with the Reading (Pa.) Coal & Iron Co., to furnish 15,000 tons. Steamers Hercules and Panther are engaged in transporting the coal to this port.

Mr. William H. Allen has put on a new hack, a handsome vehicle, which he wishes to keep in use and so advertises it in our columns. Mr. Allen is attentive to his customers and reliable in his dealings. We cordially recommend our citizens to call on him.

WILFRED FITTS.—The Lowell Courier says of the Candia somnambulist:

Within the past year he has at times, particularly in the cold season, appeared moody and disconsolate. Within a short time he has manifested an absent-mindedness at intervals which has seemed increasing. At one time he expressed a desire to his father to erase all the pencil-marks, &c., with which interior walls of church entrances are defaced, and wished his father to buy him a plane, so that he might obliterate the letterings and other forms of defacement of the fence around the North Common. He has seemed strong in religious convictions for one of his years. He is not, apparently, of a nervous temperament, and seemed but little, if any, agitated when told of the deed he had committed.

When asked if he did now know of being out of the house on Monday night, he responded that he found his stockings wet and his pants muddy in the morning, which gave him the impression that he must have got up in his sleep. It seems strange that, so far as known, no blood was found on his clothing. He is naturally of a quiet and inoffensive disposition, and has not joined much with the boys in the neighborhood, of late, in their amusements. He received a prize Tuesday from the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, for a composition on the subject of cruelty to animals. He was a carrier of papers at the Courier office at the time he left the city in March. He was an unusually quiet and orderly lad, and faithful carrier.

State News.

Mr. John Cummings, a highly respected citizen of Hudson and Representative-elect to the Legislature, died, Friday, from the mortification of a wound in the foot which he accidentally made with an axe, three or four weeks ago. He was sixty-seven years of age.

Wolfboro voted down the proposition to exempt certain manufacturers from taxation, at a recent town meeting, by twelve majority.

The town of Warner has voted to exempt from taxation for ten years a shoe manufacturing company with a capital of $50,000. Some Lynn men offer to go there and furnish $20,000, if the people would furnish $30,000. This has been done, and the buildings will soon be erected. It is expected the establishment will give employment to two hundred operatives.

The summer boarding-house which was building on Jefferson hill, at Lancaster, by Roby and Bedell, was burned, on Saturday night. It was nearly completed, and would have been ready for occupancy in June. Loss, about $5000; no insurance.

In the Supreme Judicial Court at Keene, Mr. Curtis A. Wood, a schoolmaster, has been awarded damages in the sum of $491 against Alfred and Erlan Kiblin, as compensation for injuries received in an assault made upon him by said Kiblins while on his way to the school house.

A Lafayette husband having ably discussed the new liquor law in a saloon, came home much discouraged to meet the peculiar arguments of his wife. She caressed his forehead with a stove-lid, and now enters suit against the saloon for the damages he incurred.

Harvy Clark, of Unity, has recently killed eight crows at one shot.

At Farmington, on the 13th inst., Mrs. Samuel A. Seavey was severely burned by the melting out of the bottom of a tin pail in which she was heating some pitch. It caught fire and communicated to her clothing, and before it could be extinguished her right arm, shoulder, neck and face were quite badly burned.

The Lake Village fellow who sent his little dollar for a "wonderful discovery" for enticing fish to bite, received by return mail a gorgeous chromo lithograph, in one color, and at the lowest estimate worth ten for a cent. It represented an ancient fisherman asleep on a log, with the simple word "PATIENCE" in large letters upon his hat. Underneath: "50,000 sold!".

Mr. J. Currier of Hanover, has a calf with six legs.

In Colebrook, a three year old boy slid out of a second story window, falling about fifteen feet. A slight bruise on the face and a sprained ankle, made the little fellow say, "I'll bet five cents I shan't go down there any more."

The boy Emerson of Candia, who was mangled by the boy Fitts, last week, while the latter was in a fit of somnambulism, is reported to be worse and his chances of recovery are said to be small.

Chester C. Marston, a fireman employed by the Great Falls Manufacturing Company, is missing. As his wheelbarrow was found in the river and his lantern on the bank, it is supposed he fell into the river and was drowned while dumping ashes over a bank which is fifteen feet high.

—Velvet and yak lace are the standard trimmings of the season.

Morning Chronicle.

A MAJOR GENERAL IN THE GUTTER.—To-day there is a man going about the streets of this city, ragged, dirty and penniless, subsisting on free lunches and the charities of gamblers, who has not slept in a bed for months, who, during the war, was one of the most dashing cavalry officers in the Union army, and was promoted from the rank of first lieutenant to full brigadier and brevet major general for brilliant exploits on the field of battle, and who for a long time had a large and important command.

He has been here for two or three months under an assumed name, being ashamed to dim the brilliancy of his record in the service of his country by an exhibition of his degradation under his former honored name. He is generally very reticent, having little to say with any one and talking but little save when "engineering" for a drink, at which he is remarkably successful.

Night before last, while lying helplessly drunk in the rear part of a Third street saloon, some men thought to play a joke on him by stealing his shirt, and proceeded to strip him. Underneath his shirt, and suspended by a string around his neck, was a small canvas bag, which the men opened and found to contain his commission as brevet Major General, two congratulatory letters, one from Grant and one from President Lincoln, a photograph of a little girl, and a curl of hair—a "chestnut" that doubtless one day crept over the brow of some loved one.

When these things were discovered, even the half-drunken men who found them felt a respect for the man's former greatness, and pity for his fallen condition, and quietly returned the bag and contents to where they found them, and replaced the sleeper's clothes upon him.

Yesterday a News reporter tried to interview the man and endeavor to learn something of his life in the past two years, but he declined to communicate anything. He cried like a child when told how his right name and former position were ascertained, and with tears trickling down his cheeks, said, "For God's sake, sir, don't publish my degradation, or my name at least, if you are determined to say something about it. It is enough that I know myself how low I have become. Will you promise that much? It will do no good, but will do my friends a great deal of harm, as, fortunately, they think I died in South America, where I went at the close of the war."

Intemperance and the gaming-table, he said, had wrought his ruin.—Kansas City News.

—Everyone remembers how a proof-error, more than any other vexation of life, used to upset the equanimity of Mr. Greeley. Noticing in one short article of the Tribune, foundered by W. R., such trifles as "stated that," "swrap of paper," "since returnee," "30 yeors," we are lost in awful contemplation of how the limbo of departed spirits must be echoing to Mr. Greeley's forcible English. The South American earthquake may have some connection with his outburst.—Cin. Chron.

—A man writing poetically of the weather says, "The back bone of winter is broken, but the tail wags yet occasionally."

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested, and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing agent, from the blood, and cures "a thousand ill," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhea, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

The Chronicle.

THE NERVOUS FORCE.—Dr. Brown Sequard of Paris has been lecturing in Washington on "The Nervous Force." The Republican report of the lecture is as follows—:

The speaker, after a few preliminary remarks on the subject of his lecture, said that the variety of phenomena in the nervous system is much greater than is generally supposed, even by medical men. All sorts of skin eruptions are more or less traceable to nervous disorder. Experiments in animals had shown that the eruption followed immediately after exciting certain nerve centres. It was only within the last ten years that it has been discovered that a bed sore was due, not to pressure of the bed, but to spinal lesion, or spinal irritation; when, for instance, an irritation in the spinal column was produced a bed sore appeared. They often come on parts subjected to no pressure whatever.

Elephantiasis—a disease peculiar to South American countries — may be caused by an affection of the nerves by tumor. Bones are injured by nervous influences, as are joints, the former not only dimishing in size, but their marrow wasting. Pain in the joints is caused by an irritation at the base of the brain.

The lecture referred to various physiological effects caused by an irritation at the base of the brain, giving among many instances the following: The knee in one night might be made twice its usual size. Immediate injury to the lungs might be produced. A number of white corpuscles could be made to appear in the blood; indeed, the brain itself should be considered as a part of the nervous system. The irritation arising from several nerves sometimes caused an injury to the spinal cord. A lesion of the spinal cord might change the structure of the brain.

Disease of any part of the brain does not necessarily arise directly from injuries to that particular part, but may proceed from some other part of the nervous system. An irritation starting from the cerebellum, on the left side of the head, often causes loss of sight of the right eye or vice versa.

An injection of cold water in the ear will make a person stagger or trot round in a circle like a horse in a circus. The Duke of Wellington, like many other noblemen, was stupid enough one time to consult a quack who injected nitrate of silver in his ear, and set the Duke rotating faster than he (the lecturer) could make his arm go. [Laughter.] The lecturer here read an extract descriptive of a high seasoned dish, of which Frederick the Great one time partook. Not satisfied with this mess of garlic and spiced meats, he ate directly afterwards a veal pie so hot that it seemed to have been baked in hell. He was seized with convulsions. Perhaps it would have a different effect on the speaker, as he was not a great man. [Laughter.]

A great variety of effects were produced by apparently the same cause, as in the case of persons in a perspiration coming out of a theatre. Some took cold in the head, lungs, throat, and so on. In each nervous system there are parts which are easier to excite than others. Exciting certain nerves will contract blood vessels and produce attraction of the blood by tissues. When the nerve running to the heart is galvanized the action of the heart is stopped. Indeed, whenever we breathe we produce a decrease of action of the heart. The exchanges between tissue and blood are stopped by certain forces of the nervous system. The loss of consciousness in epilepsy is caused by irritation of the medulla oblongata.

Stick a pin in your spinal column and it will produce complete paralysis. Coughing can be stopped by distending one's nostrils with the finger and thumb. A pressure of the finger upon certain parts of the face will stop sneezing, and by pulling down the sufferer's big toe convulsions may be stopped. The lecturer, after giving several examples of this character concluded his address by thanking the audience for its attendance and attention.

A PICKPOCKET'S DISCOMFITURE.—A woman who was riding in a Broadway omnibus, not long since, became aware that the "gentleman" on her right was feeling for her pocket under her cloak. For a moment a cold shiver passed through her, but as it was broad daylight, and as there were evidently many persons in the omnibus to whom she might apply for protection, she took courage, and recollecting that in the dress she wore her pocket had, much to her previous annoyance, been sewed on the wrong side of the skirt, concluded to sit still and await the course of events. After having been sufficiently entertained by the vain efforts of her neighbor to find the pocket, she turned to him and said quietly, "My pocket is on the other side, sir." The man immediately jumped up, pulled the strap, and disappeared with most amusing rapidity, the coolness of the lady having been too much for his artistic nerves.

—Had Eve heard any of the pedlars on the New Haven road holler "apples," there would have been no clothing stores in Danbury to-day.—News.

The Daily Chronicle,

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, APRIL 24, 1873.

Readables.

Gen. Sherman while in Europe was a trifle surprised to see some British battle flags with "Lexington and Bunker's" still inscribed thereon.

The New York Tribune has degenerated into a third-class paper.

The recent storm on the prairies was terribly severe. Men and cattle perished of the cold, and snow ploughs were useless.

The latest news from the Modoc expedition is of an attack by the Indians on a pack train guarded by twenty men, of whom one was killed and one wounded.

The Denver (Colorado) Times, in a report of a revival meeting, says about twenty letters were read, "one of which requested prayers for the editors and reporters of the Denver papers." Whether the revival meeting sanctioned such a wasteful expenditure as that is not stated.

The New York courts have refused to take a further stay of proceedings.

Mark Booth of Malden, Mass., shot his wife on Wednesday. Rum was the cause of the murder.

EARTH'S DESTINY.—The time is coming when there will be no more shipwrecks, when ocean steamers will not stick or disappear, and when coasters need no longer fear the dread lee shore. It will not be this year or next, but it some time will be, if we can credit a recent article by Prof. Winchell, of Michigan. It appears — or rather it is, though it does not yet appear—that the waters of the earth are drying up. The earth is cooling, the water works its way deeper and deeper into the crust each year, and in the course of time it will be soaked up without evaporation; ocean and atmosphere alike will be drawn into the cold embrace of the earth, which will be left a frozen desert, floating through space through out all time, like an empty ship in the Arctic seas. His theory is that as order came out of chaos by the cooling of the exterior of the melted masses, so this same process is to continue to the end. He finds confirmation for this in the present condition of the moon, which undoubtedly once was what the earth was, but it has gradually cooled off to be "a fossil world, an ancient cinder suspended in the heavens, once the seat of all the varied and intense activities which now characterize the surface of our earth, but in the present period a realm of silence and stagnation." Other heavenly bodies show other stages of the process. Saturn in its ring condition is the freshest; then Jupiter, where watery mists are beginning to gather in a vaporous envelope, producing rain; then the earth, as it is; and then Mars, which is entering upon the decline of the organic phase and where rains are infrequent and cold is encroaching. Last of all is the earth's moon, as already described. The reason why the moon has become a desert before the earth is, that it is forty-nine times smaller, and hence cools forty-nine times quicker. It any one, therefore, can just find when the moon began to cool and how long time the operation occupied, he can make an easy calculation as to the length of our future and the value of 999 years' leases. The theory does not precisely accord with the idea that we are to be destroyed by heat, unless that be interpreted in the negative sense of destroying us by leaving us, and the present condition of the Atlantic Ocean, or even nearer home, of Connecticut river, does not seem to imply imminent danger of a lack of water. Still with such a prospect, even in the remote future, men can laugh at the raging waters—especially since many of them, forestalling the disappearance, have already adopted a substitute for it as an article of consumption and daily need.—Hartford Courant.

A DYING MILLIONAIRE.—From all accounts, and despite contradictions, Alexander T. Stewart's days are numbered. He has, it is positively affirmed, Bright's disease of the kidneys, from which very few persons have ever recovered. He has been confined to his house for two weeks, the first time this has happened for many years. His friends, though they do not say so, fear, from his present critical condition, that he cannot live through the month. His estate is estimated to be worth some $50,000,000, and it must be a source of great regret to him, after his long life of determined struggle and splendid financial success, that he has no offspring to whom he can leave his colossal fortune. A poor man for children and a wealthy one for none, is applicable to his case. It is high time that some of our immensely rich citizens, such as Stewart, Astor and Vanderbilt, should be dropping into the grave, and giving their heirs the long-coveted opportunity to spend the money these millionaires have so carefully collected.—N. Y. Letter.

EMINENTLY LEVEL.—Since the Foster hanging a great number of Southern editors have been wrestling with the capital punishment question. The Raleigh News man has come nearest the mark. He says: "We have no statistics at hand to show whether public or private hanging have done more to suppress crime."

THE DANVILLE SUICIDE.—The Haverhill Bulletin says "Mr. J. Stark Sanborn leaves a widow and three children to mourn his loss, together with the whole community in which he resided—except one or two persons by the name of Lurvey, who have doubtless helped to hasten Mr. Sanborn's death, though the tendency of the family is to insanity. We beg pardon of our readers for mentioning this aggravation of a weakness in this connection, but an indignant community ask it. This Mr. Lurvey, formerly of Canaan, bought a farm of Mr. Sanborn in October last. Soon it was evident that Lurvey was intent on swindling Mr. Sanborn, and the latter was obliged to resort to law for protection. Several suits have followed an injunction against Lurvey's cutting off wood, as he had not paid for the farm. Lurvey also made bold threats and circulated base insinuations. This trouble preyed upon Mr. Sanborn's mind, and undoubtedly was the cause of his suicide. The whole community for miles around is so aroused and enraged at the conduct of Mr. Lurvey that summary vengeance is intimated as the best remedy for existing evils, rather than trust to the slow course of law and its entanglements."

A SERIOUS MATTER.—Old Mr. Watson on Nelson street, has got a nice little bill to pay. He sent a man down town for a pot of paint and a ladder. The man got the paint, and then went to a lumber yard after a ladder. Then he tied the pain pot on the end of the ladder, and put the ladder on his shoulder. This was a very smart arrangement, and the man himself admired it very much. He started for home this way, and didn't find any trouble in getting along the first block, because people had an impression that a long ladder with a pot of yellow paint dangling on the end of it wasn't exactly the thing to trifle with, so they balanced along on the curb stone, or rubbed up against the buildings. Pretty soon the man saw somebody in a store he knew, and he turned around to speak to him, and drove one end of the ladder into a millinery case and knocked the crown out of an eighteen dollar bonnet. Then he backed off in affright, and knocked down two sewing machine agents with the other end. Then he started to turn round, and an old gentleman who was desperately endeavoring to pull his wife out of danger, saw the peril, and shouted out "Hi, there!" But it was too late. The pot struck against an awning post, tipped to one side, and the entire contents went over the aged couple. This so startled the man that he whirled completely around, smashing in an entire store front, frightening a milk man's team, and knocking over some thirteen persons who were actively dodging about to get out of the way. Then he dropped the ladder, and fled into the country, shouting "murder" and "fire" at every jump. A regular ordained painter is now engaged on Mr. Watson's house.—Danbury News.

A SINGULAR STORY.—An Effingham Falls correspondent of the Concord Monitor relates that there is a man about 55 years old, now living within 50 miles of Conway, who was born an invalid, and could neither walk nor talk until nearly 10 years of age, and appeared idiotic. When some ten years of age he began to walk on his toes, which he has since done. Losing his balance one day, he fell, striking his head on the floor, and cried out, "Bump!" This was the first and only word he was known to speak until nearly 12 years of age, when he fell a second time, repeating the first word, after which he talked freely. The most remarkable part of his history is that as soon as he began to talk he could read nearly as well as other children of his age. When about 18 years old, his father fitted up a small room for him, putting in $25 worth of notions. He is now in company with a brother in trade, having goods estimated worth at least $5,000, and is doing nearly all the work in the store.

INDISCREET DOG.—A couple of dogs were having a dispute on the opposite sides of a slat fence on High street, recently, when one of them, letting his valor get the better of his discretion, plunged his head through the slats, in the hopes of nipping his antagonist. That was how he made the mistake; the head went through nicely, but would not pull back. The other pup, seeing his foe was in chancery, leisurely commenced eating up the front part of his head and ears. There was "music in the air" about that time, and the yelping brought the juvenile owner to the rescue. He took in the situation at once, and freezing on to that dogs' tail, and bracing against the fence, he pulled his level best. For a moment it was doubtful which would give way first—the tail, the head, or the picket; but with a final surge, the boy brought away the pup minus the biggest part of both ears. The first jump that that dog made when loose, was something over twenty feet, and with a continuous wail of grief he disappeared round the corner.—North Bridgewater Press.

All About Printing.

BY THE "PAY CONTRIBUTER."

There is a prevailing ignorance regarding the art of printing. We know all about it, being in the business. Goliah is believed to have been the first printer. He did it with his feet, leaving his prints wherever he went. Printers have been on the tramp ever since.

The first movable type was in the fifteenth century. It was never fully determined who moved it. Guttenberg is suspected, as he was guttin' nearly every thing in those days.

An edition of Donatus was the first book printed from movable types. Donatus was a cannibal. He would have don'-ate-us, if we had been around at that time.

The first letters were characters imitating handwriting. We would like to catch anybody imitating our handwriting, lettered or unlettered.

Roman type was made in 1465. We didn't make any until the year following—and we haven't made a great deal since. But the "Grecian type" is our choice—made of Athens business, you know.

Printing was introduced into Paris in 1470. Being in France the introduction was very formal.

The largest size of type for books is Great Primer. We never got anything but little primers in our youthful days. The smaller sizes of type are English, Pica, Small Pica, Long Primer (mixed half and half with Great Primer it makes Great Long Primer,) Bourgeois, Brevier, Minion (savant!), Nonpariel, Agate, (now editing the New York Tribune,) Pearl (a wholesale street in Cincinnati), Diamond and Brilliant, evidently very similar.

Pearl is the smallest type found in an ordinary printing office. Cora Pearl is about the loudest type found anywhere.

The type most in use for advertisements is nonpareil. Where there is nonpay there is very little reil, now-a-days.

In America, printers are paid by the 1,000 ems (M). We once had a girl named Emily—a sweet creature—and a thousand Ems we have since seen couldn't hold a candle to her.

Our foreman, the "Doctor," informs us that a good compositor will set, correct and distribute about 6,000 ems in a day of ten hours. The shocking creature! If he could set, etc., 6,000 in ten hours, how many Julias and Polly Anns could he serve in the same manner? (Answer in our next.)

Numerous papers now-a-days are printed off from stereotype plates. These plates are not good to eat off from, and they differ from fashion plates in that they are useful.

The hand press is said to have been invented in 1420, but bless you, hand-pressing must have reached way back of that time. The hand press has been in operation ever since young folks of opposite genders were on earth, you bet!

Ink rollers are made from a mixture of molasses and glue. It frequently becomes necessary to watch the roller-boys to prevent their licking off the 'lasses.

The Hoe press was patented July, 1847. You ought to see Hoe handle one of his presses. Before the Hoe was invented, newspapers were printed on a shovel.

A FAST COMPOSITOR.—In the office of a Wisconsin journal there is a compositor who sets type so rapidly (says the paper) that the friction of his movements fuses the leaden emblems in his stick, making them solid, like stereotype plates. The only way to prevent this is to have his case submerged in water; and the rapidity of his motions keeps the water boiling and bubbling so that eggs have frequently been boiled in the space box. Pipes lead from the bottom of his case to a boiler in the press-room, and the steam generated by the fast compositor's movements runs the press. In one day he set so much that it took all hands, from editor to devil, a week to read the proof, and it wasn't his good day for setting type, either.

VIRUS IN THE AIR. We know that a peculiar poison is evolved from marshy ground and from the decomposing filth of cities by the sunshine of spring, and that this element which is too subtle to be detected by scientific analysis produces epidemic and endemic fevers, aggravates dyspepsia and all bilious disorders, disturbs the bowels, relaxes the nerves and debilitates the general system. Luckily an antidote to this atmospheric virus and a specific for the disease it generates, has been provided. For a period of more than twenty years Hostetters Stomach Bitters, a medicine in which the finest vegetable tonics and alteratives are combined with a perfectly pure stimulant, has taken precedence of every other preparation, as a specific for the ailments most prevalent at this season of the year. It is agreeable as well as effectual, and eminently safe and wholesome.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Tipplers.

The Providence Journal of a recent date says Sheridan and Mack's entertainment was attended by an immense audience, filling the house completely. The programme was one of the best of the kind ever offered there, and the several acts richly merited the abundant applause bestowed upon them. Sheridan and Mack were cleverer than ever in their specialties, and their Dutch sketches and song of the Little Fraud elicited the most enthusiastic praise. Dunderburg Casey's sparkling wit kept his hearers on the broad grin, and if a vote had been taken he would have been declared the most successful humorist in the country. The Girards performed their feats successfully, as usual.

Brisk Trade.

The clothiers and milliners are enjoying a good Spring trade. Fay & Shedd, C. E. Myers & Co., Wm. P. Walker, J. Maisbenden, and J. E. Ham & Co. advertise elsewhere full lines of clothing goods, and all report their hands full of business, "too much to do to write advertisements; get us up one." The millinery business opens well with the approach of summer, and C. N. Shaw & Co., J. M. Tebbetts, Henderson & Co., and Rand & Co. are "busy as bees" with the ladies' orders for the new styles. The coming Reunion has also stimulated every family in the city to putting their residences in order for the forthcoming reception, and Buzzell & Son and J. H. Foster advertise large stocks of room papers, which the ladies will wish to inspect speedily.

S. J. Court

At Exeter, Tuesday, resolutions of respect to the late Chief Justice Bellows and Hon. William C. Patten were passed. Judge Foster paid a feeling tribute to their memory.

In the suit brought by William S. Hadley of Portsmouth, for the recovery of insurance on the T. H. Philbrick house at Rye, J. S. H. Frink, Esq., is engaged for plaintiff and Hon. Gilman Marston, Hon. James F. Briggs, Hon. Samuel N. Bell, and Henry H. Huse, Esq., for the defence. It is an interesting case, the decision hinging on the question whether the building burned was a private dwelling house or a hotel.

Laconics.

Among the appointments of the Methodist conference are the following:—Portsmouth, A. C. Hardy; Greenland, H. Montgomery; Hampton, E. Scott; Amesbury, C. M. Dinsmore; Londonderry, F. D. Chandler; Manchester, (St. Paul's,) James Pike; Nashua, (Chestnut street,) H. L. Kelsey.

The first company of Continentals, having been recruited to forty-two members, organized on Wednesday by the choice of Justin D. French for Captain, Daniel S. Broderick 1st Lieut., Elvin Newton, Jr., 2d. Lieut.

Mr. E. A. Joy, at No 23 Market street, has a variety of sewing machines, nearly new, received in exchange for the "Domestic," which he will sell at half the usual retail prices. Some of these machines have not been a week in use, and are warranted as good as new. Unless they are sold immediately they will be sent to New York to be sold at auction.

The Reunion.

The weekly meetings of the Fourth of July committee grow more interesting, and the members are gradually settling down to business. Schemes and plans proposed are considered, referred and decided upon, and each meeting clears up some unfinished business. The ladies show great interest by their attendance, but some of them do wonder not a little what their masculine friends mean by motions, resignations, re-considerations, estimates re-estimates and discussions. The ladies, you know, would go directly at work; no talk for them, you understand—but action. If it is not believed, witness their action of Tuesday evening. Not desirous of interrupting the eloquent flow of words, they listen and wait, and finally their opportunity comes. A member explains that a great necessity has been developed; large numbers of ladies, Daughters of Portsmouth, resident elsewhere, have indicated their desire to return to the city of their birth on the Fourth of July. They have no friends or relatives with whom they can lodge, and desire to secure accommodations for that occasion, for which they propose to pay. Most gallantly does the hero of many Virginia battle-fields plead for the absent daughters, and most feelingly do the ladies present respond. The subject is referred to them for action and the men go on with their business, surprised to find when adjournment comes that the ladies have acted promptly, each one present agreeing to canvass one street and report at the next meeting. Citizens! it is your duty to aid the ladies in this good work. Portsmouth must greet the coming daughters with open arms and open houses. Have you a spare room that will accommodate two? Respond willingly to the question, "will you find room for two or more?" The committee of ladies are already on duty; be prepared for them.

That was a jolly meeting, of Tuesday evening. Thomas S. Nowell, Esq., presided, the ladies sitting at the Council board as if to the man-ner born. The committee on tents, W. S. Boardman, Esq., chairman, reported communications from P. T. Barnum, R. M. Yale, James M. Martin & Co., and A. Erickson. Barnum could not let his big tent, but the others made offers of tents somewhat smaller at reasonable rates. The committee were granted further time to report.

Mr. John Stokell, chairman of the committee on estimates, reported that the amount needed was $9447, and he would recommend that $10,000 be raised. Alderman Sise reported that the Finance committee of the city government had unanimously recommended an appropriation of $7500, and on his motion, the Finance committee of citizens were requested to raise $2000 immediately by subscription. In the committee's estimate there was no mention of arching Market street, but it is proposed to raise $1000 by the merchants, there being a general desire that this feature of the 1853 reunion be repeated.

In accordance with the report made at a previous meeting for the appointment of a committee to authorize expenditures and audit bills, the following persons were appointed a prudential committee, viz:—George W. Marston, J. C. Carr, Augustus W. Odiorne.

A proposition being presented from two Sons of Portsmouth resident in Boston, offering to furnish a programme for the Fourth, neatly printed, of 35,000 copies to be distributed gratuitously, a vote was passed authorizing Joseph N. Odiorne and William Preston to issue the programme, no other parties to be authorized by the committee to issue them Dr. John W. Parsons, Mr. William M. Thayer, Mr. Frank W. Miller and others deemed it necessary that the programme should be tasty and worthy of preservation by each one returning, and a committee on printing was appointed, whose duties are to confer with Messrs. Odiorne and Preston and sanction the proposed programme if satisfactory, or disprove if not. The committee consist of William M. Thayer, Samuel Dodge and Lewis W. Brewster. Other committees were appointed as follows:—On fireworks, Alfred Stavers, Gardner M. Goodrich and Geo. W. Marston; on reception of members of the press, Frank W. Miller, J. Horace Kent, Charles W. Gardner; on regatta, James H. Dow, Plomer D. Norton and John H. Locke. The committee voted to leave the organization and management of the industrial procession to Mr. Edward D. Coffin. Adjourned to next Tuesday evening.

More Somnambulism.

Alfred Fitts, who chopped John Emerson almost to death at Candia, has been sleeping at Exeter jail in a room with John Brown of Eliot and Theodore Frost and Alexis Yeaton of Newcastle, at their request. On Sunday night, he awoke Frost and Yeaton by trying to cut their throats. He had dressed himself while asleep and was in a violent state, busting into tears when awakened and told of his murderous act.

—In Memphis, Tenn., last week three men died whose ages were 102, 103, and 106. One of them was a native of Virginia, another of Massachusetts, and a third of England. The misfortune of living so long in Memphis can only be appreciated by those who have been there.

SPRING TIME.

Sonoma Wine Bitters

are the BEST to use to counteract the debilitating effects of SPRING and early SUMMER. They are MILD AND PLEASANT IN THEIR EFFECTS, and no change in diet is needed.

EVERYBODY CAN TAKE THEM:

Man, Woman or Child!

They are made with PURE, SOFT, MILD WINE, and choice Plants and Roots, are Delicious to the Taste and Delightful in Aroma, while the strong, fiery spirit, so prominent in most other Bitters, is lacking.

SONOMA WINE BITTERS

have been used for years, not only in the United States but in the British Provinces, West Coast of South America, Sandwich Islands, the East and West Indias, and Austria, and are recognized as the Most Palatable, Healthy and Appetizing Bitters in the market.

Sonoma Wine Bitters

are Medicinal and Invigorating, cleansing the blood, and giving a healthy tone to the entire system. Ladies and Children will find therein a most agreeable Tonic. Try them, and you will use no other.

Purchasers will find it to their advantage to call and examine this machine that has stood the test for years and has constantly outstripped all its competitors, before buying the machines which are crowded into their houses. 1,000,000 Machines.

Morning Chronicle.

—There is a boy in one of our schools who wears a green velvet suit which is broken out with bell buttons. There is a great change in the boy since he commenced to go to school, several months ago. He was then but a trifle better than an untutored savage, although we frankly confess that we don't know what an untutored savage is. His first experience in the school was a spelling lesson. While the class was going through the exercise he sat on the platform near the teacher, and locked hands across his knees, and watched the class very intently. The first word was Ransom. "By gracious," said he, drawing his breath hard. The teacher gave him a reproving look and went on. Multiply. "Thunder and lightning! what a word," he cried in a storm of delight. Again the teacher nailed him with a look, and proceeded. Osculation. At this he just raised himself up to his feet, and shrieked out in a perfect frenzy of ecstacy: "By godeys, gentlemen, just shove your teeth into that." This broke up the lesson.—Danbury News.

—A rich old fellow who owns more houses than any one man in Toledo was waited upon by a committee for a subscription to rebuild the fence about the cemetery. His reply was characteristic as well as humorous. "Gentlemen, I have always made it a rule in my business never to make any repairs until the tenants began to complain."

—"One loud yell" is to be punished in Baltimore by a fine of five dollars; but one can utter two loud yells for seven dollars. The liberal discount will make double yells the most popular.

—The local editor of a Natchez paper fell asleep while crossing the river in a ferry-boat, the other day, and when he awoke he owed the company $13.70 at 10 cents a trip.

—A Troy dentist, while repairing a front tooth for a pretty woman, kissed her. She told her husband and he went the next day, and borrowed $500 of the dentist on long time.

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested, and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ill," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

DISEASED HORSE — CRIBBING OR WIND-SUCKING.—Editors Country Gentleman:—In answer to A. W., p. 335, Oct. 28, I do not think any one knows for certain the cause of cribbing or wind-sucking. A. W.'s mare is doubtless a "wind-sucker," just the same as if she put her teeth to a manger, rail or stump. Some suppose the animal suffers from neuralgia or tooth-ache but my idea of the case is different, for the tooth-ache could not be borne for twenty years. I think it is nothing more or less than a habit acquired through idleness, like bad habits of almost any kind; there may be some other cause, but if so, one would imagine some groom or attendant on horses would have discovered it ere this.

Some children have singular habits which cannot be accounted for and which are very difficult to be broken, and men are to be met with who continually wink their eyes, twist their mouths, fidget with their hands, &c., but perhaps the habit of chewing tobacco will come the nearest to wind-sucking in the other species. Through idleness or bad example, a man acquires the habit of chewing tobacco, and having the juice in his mouth, teeth and throat, he becomes so addicted to this habit that he is not happy without the filthy stuff always in his system. The horse commences to draw the air through the mouth in the peculiar way, perhaps accidentally the first time, in playing with the manger; it may happen that at that particular moment the animal's mouth may be slightly feverish, and the air drawn thus sharply through may be gratifying.

Thus the action is repeated till it is a settled habit, and who knows but the mare in question may have been somewhat feverish from confinement, and with her head up at an open window or other opening, may have drawn a sharp breath through her mouth which gave a very pleasing sensation to the palate, tongue and lips? It does not follow that she has the slightest ailment now to cause a continuance of the habit; it is acquired like tobacco chewing, but the dumb animal when in the field has the advantage of the other creature, for fresh air drawn through the mouth is much more cleanly than the "delicious" fluid which is ejected about as often as the horse passes air. Of course the air does not remain in the stomach, or there would be an explosion.

I recollect a case somewhat similar, which was cured by the horse being put to very slow and easy work, and kept at it many hours; and I believe nothing but some laudanum was given, which was for the purpose of causing so much drowsiness after the walking was over that there would be no inclination to suck the wind, but this was long ago and the particulars have become indistinct in my memory. I do not believe in any bleeding or operation in the mouth or physicing, if the animal is well otherwise.

The only remedy is to break the habit; and if the wind-sucking is only done by throwing the head up above the level of the body, and only when out of harness or not being mounted, for weeks I would keep her walking about by day and tied at night so that she could not throw her head up, by which time, if it has not been of too long continuance, she may forget it forever, especially if she has not again idleness and confinement enough to tempt or bring back the former accidental commencement. The contrivances adopted for stopping cribbing are such as interfere with the peculiar movement and action attending the gulping of the air, and therefore any means taken which will prevent the mare throwing her head into the position which accompanies her compression of lips, &c., may cure the habit.

I do not attach any importance to her liking her lips rubbed, as many horses are very pleased to be handled about the head. If convenient for A. W. to do so, he might use the mare himself under the saddle as much as possible, and take every precaution against her having an opportunity of putting her head in the attitude alluded to.—Country Gentleman.

—The Country Gentleman suggests a way to prevent hens from eating their eggs. It is to fill an egg with a solution of pepper, and put the egg back in the nest. A Danbury man has tried this and says it works like a charm. He put a pretty good dose of pepper in the egg and placed it in the nest of the criminal. Pretty soon the hen came around and took hold. It was a brindle animal, with long legs, and somewhat conceited. It dipped in its bill and inhaled the delicacy. Then it came out doors. It didn't gallop out, we don't mean, but it came out—came out to look at the scenery, and see if it was going to rain. Its mouth was wide open, and the feathers on the top of its head stood straight up. Then it commenced to go around the yard like a circus horse. Once in a while it would stop and push out one leg in a tone of astonishment, and then holler "fire," and start on again. The other hens came out to look on. Soon the hens from the neighbors came over the fence, and took up a position of observation. It was quite evident the performance was something entirely new and unique to them. There is a great deal of human nature in hens. When they saw this hen dance around and have all the fun to itself, and heard it shout "fire," and couldn't see the conflagration themselves, they filled up with wrath, and of one accord sprang upon it, and before the Danbury men could interfere, the bundle hen with the long legs was among the things that were. He says the recipe is effectual.—Danbury News.

State News.

Henry C. Gurley, who was returned as a Representative from the town of Willington, was beguiled into holding the ballot-box awhile, on the day of election, and, as his name was on the ticket, all the votes cast for him are void, under the statue of 1858. No candidate can hold a ballot-box in connecticut at an election where he is a candidate, and so Mr. Gurley will remain at home during the May session.

Northwood purposes to celebrate its one hundredth anniversary on the 6th of September next. Rev. E. C. Cogswell will deliver the historical address. Northwood was formerly a part of Nottingham.

A passenger rode from Great Falls to Rollinsford on Monday last, refusing to pay his fare, ten cents. On Tuesday he paid the court nineteen dollars.

The great railroad trestle work bridge, spanning the Kennebec river, at Kendall's Mills, caught fire Wednesday afternoon from sparks from the locomotive of a freight train and was almost wholly destroyed. The loss is estimated at $100,000. Although the bridge was probably perfectly safe, it was yet a terror to passengers on account of its great height and length. The interruption to travel will be serious, as it is impossible to run a ferry at that point.

Mrs. Malvina S. Shaw of Effingham, a lady thirty years of age, fainted while dressing, in February, and fell so near an open fire that she was frightfully burned. She died, recently, after nearly ten weeks of suffering.

Wednesday morning a fire was discovered on the premises of Calvin D. Carpenter, at Manchester. A barn and the L of the dwelling-house were consumed. The members of the family report that while extinguishing the flames in another part of the buildings a broke out in the loft of the barn, where considerable hay was stored. It is thought that $3000 will cover the loss; insured $2000.

Frank Emerson, 14 years old, committed suicide by hanging at Exeter, Wednesday night.

Three children narrowly escaped burning to death in Exeter on Wednesday. Their mother, Mrs. John White, locked them in the house while she went out to work. They set a bed on fire with matches and the neighbors rescued them.

The San Francisco Alta is responsible for the story that a Nevada lawyer had as a client a man accused of murder, and that the principal witness in his favor being his wife, who was incapacitated from giving testimony by reason of her relation to him, he got the murder trial postponed, brought suit for divorce in her behalf and secured it, and then triumphantly placed her on the stand to secure the acquittal of her husband.

Boston Correspondence.

BOSTON, April 23.

Dear Chronicle:—Last week I sent you a conundrum, to be "answered next week." I think this will "answer." At any rate it will answer for me. Living in close proximity to Mrs. Barry, I have taken interest in the late unfortunate dissensions between herself and husband, as reported by the public press. Presuming on my innocence, a young lady a day or two since asked me "Have you ever heard Mrs. Barry?" "Yes," was my answer. "Don't you consider she has a masculine voice?" was the next query. "I can hardly judge, as I've not heard her for so long." "But you know her voice must be a Barry-tone" said my persecutor, and I wilted.

Under the fostering care of our old city forester, the Common and other public squares are being rapidly Galvanized; the former especially shows a delightful green in its higher parts.

The storm of last Saturday week "beat time" with a vengeance, your correspondent having noticed six or seven public clocks stopped in a walk of less than two miles.

I notice prominent advertisements in leading city papers of "Human hair for one-half the original cost." Who shall count the original cost, unless it be a Modoc or a kindred spirit?

A leading topic of interest here is the supposed periodical spasmodic raid of the intemperate temperance men, which is looked for on the 1st prox. Everything but cider is prohibited, and no one but the country members can tell why that should be exempt. The "sturdy yeoman" whines that he has two barrels [made from windfall and rotten apples] which he must sell, but votes to debar the man who has employed scores of horses, hundreds of men and tens of thousands of capital the year through from selling his beer. I am in favor of the enforcement of the law to its uttermost letter, if only this sneaking evasion of cider could be avoided. One of the sturdiest "Washingtonians" who ever lived, one whose record goes far down into the forties; one who worked long in, who sacrificed much for, and who held high office in the "W. T. A. Society," has often told me that in his experience of more than three-score years he had never found any liquor to be more inflamatory or so productive of rheumatism as cider. If the Parker House can be debarred from selling liquors to guests, if S. S. Peirce can be precluded from sending bottled liquors to his wealthy customers with their groceries, if Williams or Richards may not send by rail or express the spiritous supplies needed by clubs and families throughout the State, if the druggist may not dispense a glass of alcoholic relief to him who shall deem it best for his immediate suffering, unless he has a physician's prescription, and is a Town Agent for dispensing R. G., then I will be resigned to see Mary Mahoney et. als. brought up and punished for the deadly offence of having in possession with intent to sell a quart of whiskey, a pint of gin and a gallon of ale.

The matter is really one of moment and one not to be trifled with. Thousands on thousands of our native and adopted citizens use their ale and their lager in the same way as other thousands do their tea or coffee. A law prohibiting these latter would be met with a protest of every old woman in the land; yet it is as much justice to say a man shall not drink coffee as to say he shall not drink ale. [They both make me bilious.] The immense number of persons earning a livelihood through the manufacture and sale of the light beverages—ale and lager beer (cider is too little to be of account,) can best be told by the farmers who raise barley and hops, the brewer's men who malt and brew and barrel, the teamsters who drive the ponderous teams through streets of city and town, the expressmen and freight agents who convey the myriad casks to waiting patrons at distant points, and the retailers who furnish thirsty customers the agreeable tonic from day to day.

Even to Portsmouth this new crusade is of importance. Jones' ale has fast increased in favor in Boston, its purity and excellence winning way against even imported ales. The sales through the Boston office are from 400 to 600 barrels a week, requiring a vast deal of work in the various lines of manufacture, packing, cartage, freight, &c., from the time of the purchase of the grain until the delivery of the ale to the consumer. If the country desires to destroy their market for grain suitable for malt, if the country desires to keep their cider for vinegar, if the country desires to be done by as it has been doing by others, by all means let us have a liquor law that allows no loophole and let it be enforced. For one, I will give it my support, in action as well as now. M.

CULTIVATION OF INDIAN CORN.—The present and prospective high price of corn makes it one of our most profitable farm crops, when all of the conditions favorable to its growth are present in the soil. The cost of growing corn is variously estimated. One farmer in Concord states that on his loamy, diluvial soil, his crop costs less than twenty cents a bushel. Another in the same town, who keeps accurate account of the cost of growing it, taking a series of years together, puts it at fifty cents a bushel. This is grown on the interval bordering the Merrimack river. The expense of cultivation is largely enhanced by the presence of witch-grass in his cornfields.

Others, on the harder, rocky upland soils, state the cost of cultivation at one dollar a bushel. But even on the hill farms under good management, at the average price which corn has been selling during several years past, it is a paying crop, if we take into consideration the succeeding grain and grass crop that follows the well-manured corn-field. The cost of growing our tillage crops is very much less than it was when I was young, owing to the introduction of improved plows, cultivators and hoes. Then nearly all the hoeing was performed with the heavy, clumsy hoes made on common blacksmith anvils, the wielding of which required a great amount of what was then termed "elbow-grease."

Some few farmers in those days used, on smooth land, the horse-plow, between the corn rows. This much lessened the use of the hoe; but the great bulk of the "weeding, hill-hilling and hilling corn," as written down in the journal of the late Rev. Timothy Walker, of Concord, one hundred years ago, was performed with the hoe alone, requiring from four to six days to go over one acre. With the improved agricultural implements of our days, the labor of tilling an acre of corn is of course much reduced. But I am not certain that the running of a horse-plow or even of a cultivator, two or three times between the rows during the season, adds either to the yield or to the profit of the crop, over the run of the hoe, even as high as is the price of labor at the present time.

I know from repeated observation that the cultivator cuts off many of the main roots of the corn the first time, and vastly more the second and third time it is used. Every new rootlet put out from any plant is an additional mouth for obtaining food for it. And every rootlet severed from the plant lessens its ability to feed itself. Notwithstanding these self-evident facts, I suppose more than nine tenths of the farmers will use the cultivator among their corn as often as they hoe it.

In connection with this I will give some published statements made by John Brown, of Long Island, Lake Winnipiseogee, one of the most successful growers of corn in the State of New Hampshire. He says:

A majority of our farmers content themselves with raising twenty-five or thirty bushels of corn to the acre, and are hard to believe that any more can be produced. They go on in the old way, planting the rows four feet apart and the hills three feet asunder, putting from four to six kernels in the hill, and after the blades get a firm start and the roots spread in all directions, instead of going to work, as they should, with a hoe and giving it a light brushing to stir the ground and keep the weeds down, they take a horse and a cultivator or plow, and cut off half the roots, and by making a mound or hill, give the corn a check from which it never recovers.

Managing in this way, no farmer should expect a large crop of corn, even from ground well manured. When I went to farming in 1817, I was hoeing my corn about the 18th of July and making a hill, as all farmers then did. The ground was not weedy, but I found that I was cutting a great many rootlets. It struck me that I was hurting the corn by making the hill; and from that instant I left off making hills around my corn and since that time have left the ground as smooth as possible.

After making several experiments as to the distance the hills should be planted apart, I made one in the year 1856, which I have taken as a guide, ever since, and believe to be the best. The experiment was to plant the rows three feet apart, and the hills in the row two feet from each other, and not have more than three plants growing in a hill, thinning them out at the first hoeing.

By the above described course, this New Hampshire farmer, with the land well manured, grew crops of corn for years in succession, ranging in yield from 100 to 156 bushels of shelled corn to an acre. How far Mr. B's method of corn-growing may be better than the different methods of our farmers, could be easily tested on every farm, by accurate experiments. It is to be hoped that large numbers of our farmers will attempt them, if only on a small scale. Let them test the profit or loss in using the cultivator or hoe alone on a few rods of land, and after harvest, report the results through the columns of the papers. LEVI BARTLETT.

—The Washington Star says, "The President never draws his salary himself, but receives it through the First National Bank, to which he has given a power of attorney, and the money is always drawn from the treasury by the cashier of that bank, and placed to the credit of the President in the bank. The warrants for the salary of the President and Vice-President are made out at the treasury every month, the former under the new law receiving $4166.66 per month, and the latter $833 33. Members of the cabinet are paid from the rolls of their respective departments, and receipt therefor the same as all other employes. The President and Vice-President do not sign any pay roll."

A GENIUS.—A twelve-year-old boy in Louisville, who has genius in him, built a steam fire-engine a little while ago. His family were naturally very proud of the achievement. When the engine was completed and ready to set going, the proud parents invited all the relations they could muster to see it work. Ah! but it was a proud day for that boy, surrounded as he was by aunts and uncles, and cousins, and smiling grandmothers. They said his name would yet shine alongside of Watt and Stephenson. He built a nice fire under the boiler, "jist as nat'ral," an old aunt remarked, "as any steam-injun I ever seed." Then the pistons began to move and the water spirt, and the whistle shrieked, and then—and then there was a loud noise, and a ripping of partitions, a smashing of furniture, a breaking of glass, a great dust and shrieks of alarm. The boy who had genius in him was blown out of the window, knocking down several neighbors who were peeping in. An aunt went through the floor into the cellar, and a sprightly grandmother was blown clean up the chimney. Cousins and other relations got badly mixed up with wheels and piston-rods and wrecks of boiler plate. They won't encourage boys making steam-fire engines in that family any more.

The Hancock Relic.

In the GAZETTE of April 17 is a notice of an ancient book, The Geographical Grammar, now in the possession of Mr. L. M. Laighton of Portsmouth, bearing the name of George Perkins as the owner; also the well known, unique, autograph signature of John Hancock, President of the first Continental Congress, Governor of Massachusetts and chief of the patriots of "The times that tried men's souls," who, as is stated, "owned and studied in it at school." The notice suggests the inquiry, who was George Perkins, and how came this book in his possession? The statement of a few historical facts may throw sufficient light on this matter. After the decease of the father of John Hancock, who was pastor of the Congregational church in Quincy, Mass., his widow married with Rev. Daniel Perkins, for 50 years pastor of the first church in Bridgewater, Mass.* His son by a former wife, Dr. Richard Perkins, married his step-mother's daughter, a sister of Gov. Hancock. Of their family of ten children, among the younger members, was George Perkins.

When at an advanced age Gov. Hancock was suddenly taken ill and a person employed to write his last will and testament, the instrument was completed, all but the signing by the testator, which was deferred till the following day; but when, early the next morning, the writer called, he was surprised to find the hand which would have sanctioned it, motionless in death. He instantly stepped to the fire and cast into the flames, without divulging its contents to any one. But tradition avers, with plausibility, that liberal bequests were designated therein for several public institutions. Hence the whole of that noble estate, said to be, at that time, the largest in Boston, reverted to the heirs-at-law.

Commissioners being appointed to make a due apportionment for each and having discharged that office, a little child was called, who drew the several lots designating the portion of each of the heirs. That of George Perkins and family indicated the sum of $100,000. From what has been stated it is confidently presumed that the aforesaid choice relic of former days, "The Geographical Grammar," now in the possession of Mr. L. M. Laighton, was, as testified on the first page, "George Perkins' Book," that he inherited it in right of a portion of the estate of his honored uncle, and that "This book was owned and studied in at school by John Hancock."

Mr. L. is correct in supposing, if Mr. Perkins were now alive, he must be over 80 years of age, as he graduated at Providence College 72 years ago, the present year. Could this book be deposited in the archives of the Historical Society of New Hampshire, it would gratify its members and many others who have an antiquarian taste. A.

P. S.—It may be added that the writer of this has a copy of this antique work in his library in Massachusetts. It was used as as a text book of Geography by his father, who resided in the vicinity of the birthplace of John Hancock and was contemporary with him, though younger, and by whom he was twice commissioned as a Military Officer. NEWCASTLE, APRIL 22, 1873.

Takes The Back Track.

There has been somewhat of a contest of late between the navy department and some of the older officers of the service over the question of re-examination for promotion as required by the law of the last Congress. A number of officers have objected to obeying the orders directing them to appear personally for examination, holding that the law would be complied with by examining the record of each officer as found in the files of the department. Few, however, have disobeyed the orders, and now one who held out the longest has surrendered his position, and sends word that he will make his appearance. Captain Fairfax had taken legal advice and declined to appear, but as the board went on with the examination, and actually promoted two officers over his head, his opposition was brought to an end.

Don't Do So, "Wink!"

A State Street merchant is afflicted with a neighbor of friendly instincts, who arises on Wednesday mornings at five o'clock, sallies into the street and cuts up all the ice he findeth lingering in the lap of Spring, in front of his and adjoining residences. The annoyed individual wants sleep at that hour in the morning, and suggests that if the early bird seeketh worms in so untimely a manner hereafter, it may be necessary to fill the ice-cutter's ears with ice-cream.

Laconics.

Mr. John E. Owens and his comedy company had a fair audience as to numbers at the Temple on Wednesday evening, to see "Everybody's Friend" and "Solon Shingle;" but there was considerable room to spare after all were seated, the price (one dollar) charged for reserved seats being sufficient to keep away many who would willingly have paid 75 cents. Mr. Owens, as "Major DeBoots" and "Solon Shingle," bore out the high reputation with which he came here, and furnished an amount of fun well worth the price of a ticket. He was well supported by the company, Miss M. E. Gordon's acting as "Mrs. Swandown" being especially worthy of mention. Harlow's orchestra performed some pleasing selections with their usual accuracy and taste, and the audience on leaving were satisfied that they had had a first class evening's amusement, and that the absentees had missed a good thing.

Sheridan & Mack's Variety Troupe of eighteen performers appear again at the Temple this (Friday) evening, for the last time; and any person who chooses to invest 35 cts. in an admission ticket or 50 cts. in a reserved seat, may thereby secure a capital evening's amusement. The audience last evening was much larger than that which attended Mr. Owens's higher priced entertainment, and the various features of the performance (including "Bad Whiskey") were well received and created much jollity. All who enjoy "variety" entertainments—and there are lots of such in Portsmouth—should give Sheridan & Mack a call tonight.

The keys of the new lock-boxes at the post-office are now being delivered, the rent of the boxes being but $2 per annum, the same price as the old ones. Two prominent citizens were the happy recipients of keys on Wednesday and hung about the post-office nearly all day, opening the handsome boxes every five minutes to see if they had a letter. They seemed as pleased with the new game as the Traveller correspondent is when a new horror is developed.

Bright as ever, and crammed full of illustrations, the Nursery for May comes from the press. "No child should be without it," and we know some families where they have to take two copies to keep peace in the nursery.

The guns, seventy-five in number, procured from the Adjutant-General of Massachusetts by the city government for the independent military company, arrived on Thursday and were properly arranged in stands at the State street ward room. The guns are of the Springfield pattern of 1864, and are accompanied by all the regulation accoutrements.

The editor of one of the Portsmouth local papers locates Freeman's Point, Noble's island and Railroad wharf at the "West End!"

Chief Engineer W. C. Offutt, of the Topographical Survey of the State, having taken the field with his first party, will make this city the headquarters for his engineering detachments while in this section of the State, having opened an office here for that purpose.

Change of Trains.

A telegram from Superintendent Prescott of the Eastern Railroad states that the summer arrangement goes into effect on Monday next. Trains will leave Portsmouth for Boston at 3:40, 7:05, 8:23, and 11:28, A. M., and 3:15, 5:38, and 8:38, P. M. The changes are from 9:13 to 8:28, 12:20 to 11:23, 5:32, 5:38 and 9 to 8:38.

Maggie Mitchell is nearly 50 years of age, says the Boston Post, and worth $500,000. Good enough! Thus sayeth the New York Era; but that paper is mistaken as to the age of Maggie—she is not over 40 years of age. We hope she is worth the amount of money stated, but that is also doubtful.

A Louisville newspaper notes the fact that since the Indiana Sunday liquor law went into operation the larger share of the male population of New Albany attend morning service on the Kentucky side of the river.

Bonner is worth more than $1,000,000, and he has expended more than half that sum in advertising. He has paid $3000 for a single advertisement and $40,000 for a week's advertising.

Morning Chronicle.

The May number of Harper's Magazine closes the Forty-sixth Volume. The volume contains four hundred engravings. In the May Number, Lyman Abbott gives a very entertaining description of the various forms of "Life under the Ocean Wave," both vegetable and animal, with thirty accurate and beautiful engravings. Wirt Sikes contributes a sketch of Antoine Wiertz, the eccentric artist of Brussels, his paper being illustrated by engravings from this painter's most characteristic pictures. Moncure D. Conway gives, in his best style, the notable features of the coming Exposition, and of Viennese amusements, art-galleries, musical entertainments, shops, markets, and superstitions. A picturesque description of a summer cruise, in the yacht Rambler, among the Azores and Canary Islands, with characteristic illustrations, will prove very attractive to many readers. There are also timely and valuable contributions from E. H. House, on "The Present and Future of Japan," and from Eugene Lawrence on "Geneva and its Bishop." Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford contributes a short story, "The Beautiful Miss Vavasour," a tale of Washington Society; and D. R. Castleton gives us another of her characteristic stories, entitled "Lost." The serial stories by Charles Reade, Wilkie Collins, and Miss Thackeray are continued. The poetry of the Number is by John G. Saxe, Ellis Gray, Kate Hillard, and Miss H. R. Hadson, the latter contributing a poem of great pathos, "The Newsboy's Debt," beautifully illustrated. An interesting paper by Dr. Samuel Osgood, on the "Æsthetics of Social Life," constitutes the Editor's Easy Chair for May, Mr. Curtis being unable, on account of illness, to supply that department. The Editor's Scientific Record furnishes an admirable resume of the progress of science since the beginning of the year, occupying four pages, and also gives a variety of important matter in shorter articles. The Editor's Historical Record is this month confined to the summary of political events, including an exhaustive analysis of the New York Constitutional Commission. The Editor's Drawer is unusually interesting, including another installment of "Our London Scrap-book," treating of the Artists' Quarter, with four illustrations

—A young lady wishing for a situation, was recently interested in an advertisement for some one to do "light house keeping." So she wrote to the advertiser asking where the lighthouse was, and if there was any way in getting ashore on Sundays.

—A youth who was taking an airing in the country tried to amuse himself by quizzing an old farmer about his bald head, but was extinguished by the old man, who solemnly remarked, "Young man, when my head gets as soft as yours, I can raise hair to sell."

—Sam. Cox is a dutiful son. He voted against the $5,000 grab, but he will take the money, since the majority forced it upon him so much against his will, and appropriate it to the support of his parents. He says they are both orphans.

IRON in the BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY, HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes the Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested, and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills" simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for Disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

"I have no hesitation in recommending to parties that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases AT AT very reasonable charges. Lost in a Cave.

Some days ago, says the Hannibal (Mo.) Courier, we mentioned the fact that the mouth of an extensive cave had been unearthed in a stone quarry in South Hannibal. Since its discovery it has been a favorite resort for boys, who have daily made explorations of the vast subterranean labyrinth. Yesterday, however, an expedition was organized to explore the cave, the adventures of which are destined to give the newly-discovered cavern a local fame and history that will not soon be forgotten. The lads composing the party were five in number, from twelve to thirteen years old.

The boys entered the cave about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, each provided with a small bit of candle two or three inches long, all burning at once, and the little torchlight procession marched through the silent depths very gaily and happily, looking for curiosities and searching for strange scenes. Our heroes had determined on a thorough exploration of the unknown cavern, and went on, and on, through the widening rifts and fissures of the rocks until their candles had nearly burned out, and when they attempted to return they found themselves in the condition of the five foolish virgins, and were left in total darkness to grope and crawl amid mud and dirt, sharp stones and jagged rocks.

None of the parents of the boys missed them until late in the evening, and upon inquiry of some of their playmates it was ascertained that they had gone into the cave at the hour named, since which time they had not been heard of or seen. About seven o'clock last evening the alarm was given that five boys were lost in the cave, and in a short time a large crowd, estimated at 500 to 600 persons, was gathered about its mouth, among them the fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, relations and friends of the lost children, all in terrible suspense, and shedding many bitter tears, and their feelings during the long and painful hours of search can be better imagined than here described. Searching parties were organized to explore the cavern, and as they would return with no tidings of the lost ones, many a parent's heart was filled with anguish, and all manner of horrid deaths were conjured up as having befallen the little fellows who were thus buried alive. Small persons were in demand to enter the cave and look for the lost ones, as, owing to the formation of the rifts, it is impossible for a large person to squeeze through in many places, and money was freely offered for volunteers to prosecute the search, as well as a reward for the one who should bring out the boys.

Several parties returned from the cavern without gaining any trace of the boys, and the hours of suspense seemed like days—midnight was approaching, and still a large and anxious crowd stood around the dread opening, and among those present were many ladies. Candles were furnished in abundance, while balls of twine were provided and led in through the windings of the cave to afford a guide for those who entered to return. Charles McDaniel also took in with him, in his first exploration, a paint pot and brush, with which he marked arrows on the rocks pointing toward the mouth of the cave. These precautions enabled those who entered to readily find the way out.

Shortly after eleven o'clock last night a party of five was organized for the next effort. They entered and followed up the twine, six balls of which had been used in tracing the windings of the cave. Here they discovered the tracks of the lost boys, who had crawled through a very small crevice. Charles McDaniel here took the lead, and after crawling some distance through a rift just large enough to admit his body, he called out, when from the dark unknown depths beyond he heard a faint response, which he says sounded like the squeak of a mouse. He crawled on still further and called again, when a nearer and louder response greeted him; again he crawled forward, lighting up the darkness beyond him with a bull's-eye light which he carried in his hand, when he heard a voice exclaim: "O, I see a light!" Soon he caught sight of the little fellows all huddled together in an opening between two vast rocks, one under them and one above with barely room for them to lie stretched out, but too low for them to even stand on their hands and knees, while in width in most places it was barely sufficient to admit of the passage of one at a time. As he came near them, and the boys caught sight of his face, Dana McDaniel exclaimed, "O, thank God, there is my brother;" and the little fellows shed tears of joy at their deliverance from their long and painful immurement. They were completely exhausted, and when the welcome voice came to their ears through the awful darkness, the little fellows were looking for an open space where they could lie down together and sleep. Charley provided them with candles, and finding a place sufficiently large, allowed them to pass him, he bringing up the rear, and encouraging the lads to work their way out, as the joy of their deliverance seemed to quite overcome them and caused them to feel like sinking down in their tracks. It was five minutes past midnight, when they were discovered, and at 12:20 o'clock Lafayette Robinson emerged from the cave leading the way, and announcing that the boys had been found, were all safe and sound and on their way out. The whole party soon emerged from the cave, and the shouts of joy that greeted the rescuers and the rescued were so hearty and loud that it was heard in nearly all parts of the city, and rang out on the midnight air as though a great victory had been won.

The Daily Chronicle,

SATURDAY, APRIL 26, 1873.

Iron vs. Wood.

Hon. Aaron H. Cragin, in an able and exhaustive speech delivered in the U. S. Senate in support of a bill "to establish iron ship building on the waters falling into the Atlantic, and an iron shipbuilding yard on the Mississippi, or one of its tributaries, and to afford facilities to the navy," gave statistics, showing conclusively that the war of the rebellion is responsible for but a small portion of the decrease in tonnage of American shipping and the almost total suspension of American ship building. The statistics given showed that while the registered and enrolled tonnage of the United States in July, 1865, when the war was ended, was but 443,032 tons less than in July, 1861, at the commencement of the war, the reduction from 1865 to 1870 was 850,274 tons.—England's tonnage, having increased, in the same period, more than twice as much as ours had decreased.

Mr. Cragin stated "that our loss of the carrying trade was not caused wholly by our domestic war, but that it was the result of a war of economy waged by subsidized iron screw steamships in the control of foreign interest, against our unaided side-wheel wooden steamers and sailing ships." In support of this statement he showed that up to 1861 England's ocean steamers were mostly built of wood, and that the total tonnage of that country was only about 300,000 tons in excess of ours. He then says: "About this time the following facts became evident to the English government:

1. That wood was not the best material for steamships; the heat of steam caused decay, weakness of structure ensued, with leakage and damage to cargo.

2. That frequent inspection in dry-dock and repair must be observed, or that loss of ship, cargo, and life must be of frequent occurrence.

3. That this system of repair, followed by replacement of new ships to sustain the lines, would be so exhaustive of wood that if wood continued to be the material its cost to England would be beyond the remunerative return upon nearly every ocean route.

4. That the experience already gained by constructing the commercial steamers Great Britian, Himalaya, and some others, as also in the four sixteen-gun iron war steamers Erebus, Thunder, Terror, and Thunderbolt, the four last built in 1856, had satisfactorily established iron as a fit material for steamships."

He then shows how earnestly England set to work to introduce iron in place of wood for building ships, expending ten million dollars of government money annually, for ten years, for that purpose; and how well England succeeded in winning the carrying trade of the world, by her success in introducing iron as a substitute for wood in ship building, is shown by the fact that at the present time her tonnage is about 3,500,000 tons in excess of ours.

So far as Mr. Cragin has gone we fully agree with him, as to the cause of the decline of our ship building and commerce on the ocean, though he has overlooked one powerful auxiliary employed by England in securing the substitution of iron for wood, viz., the unjust discrimination against wooden ships, in classification and rating them. But with his belief that the ship of the future is to be built of iron, and that our only hope of regaining the respectable position we once held as a maritime nation lies in our following the lead of England and turning our wooden-ship yards into iron-ship yards we do not coincide.

The British iron ship, under exceptionally favorable circumstances, well-nigh succeeded in driving the typical wooden ship of America from the ocean, but neither acts of Parliament nor the extravagantly favorable rating of the Lloyds has sufficent to maintain the iron ship's fictitious value, and "wooden walls" are once more coming into fashion. The partial revival of wooden ship building this season we believe is but a precursor of the good time coming when all our ship yards will be fully employed, and when American wooden ships will again be ranked at the head of the list. The following, which we clip from the Boston Commonwealth, conveys our idea of the present aspect of the conflict between iron (British) and wooden (American) ships, exactly:

It is gratifying to read in our commercial papers that the uncertainty as to the ultimate fate of iron ship building is acting as a direct means in enhancing the value of American shipping interests. For the first time within ten years wooden ships constructed in this country can be sold in London or Liverpool at their full price. The tide has turned; it is now setting in our favor; and there is every reason to think that within a few years American vessels will command higher rates in the markets of the world than those of any other nation.

Readables.

The foreign files state that the manufactoring city of Jechimsthol, in the mountains of Bohemia, was destroyed by fire on the 21st of March. Out of 586 houses in the city, 450 were completely burned, and 5000 persons were rendered houseless.

Sunstrokes, already, in Savannah.

The last count of the Connecticut election returns gives the total vote for governor as 89,880, and Ingersoll's majority 3238 and his plurality 5814. The democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor has a majority over the republican candidate of only 1402.

The Boston police numbers 575.

The decision in the Stokes case will not be given before May 6. Mr. Tremaine, in closing his argument, said he did not think Stokes would be hanged, and good lawyers who have listened to the arguments say they think his prospects are good for obtaining a new trial.

MURDER IN PORTLAND.—In the almshouse at Portland, Friday morning, two workmen employed by the authorities had a quarrel in the yard, in which the younger, named John Warren, aged about forty-five years, struck the elder, who was named Michael Sullivan, and aged sixty-five years, a backhanded blow that laid him dead at his feet.

DEATH FROM A SINGULAR CAUSE.—Henry J. Chase, a son of Mr. James H. Chase of this city, died last night in Boston of congestion of the brain. He had been employed there during the past six months in a foundry supply store on Kelby street. As he was running along the street about three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, a fruit can fell from a window above, striking his hat brim and then his foot, and caused him to start and throw his head back suddenly, giving him a violent nervous shock.

In the evening at the supper table, some of his friends rallied him upon his fright, when he threw his head back again and screamed out with pain. On the Sunday following he dined with an uncle, and while there was taken ill, complaining of a numbness in the arms and was seized with a fit of vomiting. He returned to his boarding house in the evening, and throughout the night was very ill, and at times delirious. On Monday no hopes were entertained of his recovery, but on Tuesday he rallied somewhat, and on Wednesday was considered better. He grew worse again, however, and died on Wednesday night.

Young Chase was between eighteen and nineteen years of age, and was of steady, industrious habits, and had endeared himself to his many friends.—Concord Patriot, 17th.

The May Galaxy is one of the best numbers it has ever been our pleasure to notice. It embraces all the features which should characterize a good monthly, and is singularly free from unreadable matter. "Life on the Plains" (an extract of which we have already given in our columns) is a collection of military reminiscences among the Indians in Kansas in 1868, by General Custer. "The Capture and Release of Mason and Slidell" is valuable in the light of a historic contribution, and clearly defines the unwarranted action of Great Britain in the matter without being blindly partizan. Of a similar nature is a paper entitled "Our first Centennial and how it was celebrated." "Gossip Among Actors, old and new," is notable for a well written critique on Miss Neilson's impersonation of "Juliet" which it contains. J. W. DeForest's serial, "The Wetherel Affair," is continued through four chapters: Thurlow Weed contributes a review of the evidence as to the authorship of the letters of Junius; and "Rapport on the rails" is of a lighter class of literature. The scientific miscellany is unusually full and fresh this month.

The Modoc Business.

Messrs. Editors:—As the Modoc war question is at the present time agitating our country and the prevailing cry, even among Christians is for extermination through the instruments of powder and shot, would it not be far better than sacrificing so many of our noble boys in blue, to say nothing of the red skins, to convene our churches together and with united prayer advise God to convert the Modocs, thereby saving life and a large amount of money which is being spent on ammunition, etc? Many denominations often assemble to pray for the conversion of the world, and this Modoc region is on so small a part of our continent that it ought to be successful.

A BELIEVER IN PRAYER.

We doubt not that our correspondent is humane and has a heart full of sympathy, but his plan of redemption hasn't any precedent in the way of success that we know of. Were his query not apparently so sincere we should answer it as if written in a vein of sarcasm. Extermination of white and red men by powder and shot (looking at the matter in a philosophic view) is only helping out the destiny of the human race. It is forcordained that all shall die, and the Indian's belief that when he shuffles of this mortal coil he will immediately enter the happy hunting grounds, is so far an improvement on the "Christian" idea that he who dies is in danger of a worse fate hereafter than in the present life, that we think the powder and shot business a blessing in disguise for Schonchin, Scar Faced Charlie et id omne genus.

The assembling of churches to pray to God for the conversion of the Modocs wouldn't have half the effect on the savages that presents of horses and ammunition, blankets and gew-gaws might. To be sure "many denominations often assemble to pray for the conversion of the world," but the experiment isn't a success evidently, as the world stoutly refuses to be converted. Passion and prejudice, lust and avarice, and all manner of evil will exist in this world just as long as the Creator allows it, and He seems the only one powerful enough to prevent it. If there were no sin in the world, virtue would not need encouragement, and the race could not progress, for it would be perfect. Our correspondent asks if it wouldn't be better "to advise God to convert the Modocs" by prayer. Our idea is that it would be but a waste of time. The Modocs are as much a part of God's creation as are the mosquito and the gad-fly. No one cares to know what either is useful for, and as far as we can learn among 10,000 personal acquaintances, we do not remember one who feels competent to take charge of the universe and improve on God's laws. Advising God may appear sensible to a few, but the idea is so ridiculous to our mind that we are tempted to inquire, "Who is running this world, anyway?"

SOUTHERN SENTIMENT.—The Athens Northeast Georgian heads the news of the Modoc massacre with the following pleasant lines:

AN INDIAN MASSACRE.

VIRUS IN THE AIR. We know that a peculiar poison is evolved from marshy ground and from the decomposing filth of cities by the sunshine of spring, and that this element which is too subtle to be detected by scientific analysis produces epidemic and endemic fevers, aggravates dyspepsia and all bilious disorders, disturbs the bowels, relaxes the nerves and debilitates the general system. Luckily an antidote to this atmospheric virus and a specific for the diseases it generates, has been provided. For a period of more than twenty years Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine in which the finest vegetable tonics and alteratives are combined with a perfectly pure stimulant, has taken precedence of every other preparation, as a specific for the ailments most prevalent at this season of the year. It is agreeable as well as effectual, and eminently safe and wholesome.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

City Councils.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, it was voted to sell hand-engine Gov. Langdon and hose.

The committee on 2d reading recommended the passage of the bill for the reorganization of the Fire Department with amendments providing that it go into effect April 1st, fixing the pay of fire extinguisher company members at $80 instead of $40, and the pay of steam engineers at $100 instead of $85; under this bill the pay of the department would be $5640 against $3110 under the previous law. Before the extinguishers were purchased the expense was $4050. Under this bill the department will consist of 127 men. The amendments were adopted and the bill passed.

Voted for Assistant Marshal, policeman and constable:—

William H. Jellison had	4
Chas. W. Shannon	4

and the Mayor cast his vote for Mr. Shannon, electing him.

Stephen Marden was appointed special policeman without pay in the vicinity of the Plains.

A joint resolution from the Common Council appropriating $7500 for the reception of the Sons on the Fourth of July, to be paid to the citizens' general committee, was read and postponed to next Thursday evening, by a vote of 5 to 3, Aldermen Garrett, Davis, Spinney, Wilson and Trefethen voting yea; Ald. Sise, Hayes and Lefavour, nay.

In Common Council, all present, a bill fixing the salary of the City Messenger at $700 per annum, commencing on the 1st of January, 1873, was reported back from committee, with amendments fixing the salary at $600, to commence in April,—and as amended, the bill passed.

A joint resolution appropriating $100 towards defraying the expenses of Memorial Day was referred to committee on Bills on 2d Reading.

A joint resolution requesting the Finance Committee to insert the sum of $7500 in the annual appropriation bill for the reception of the Sons was passed and sent up for concurrence. (The sum of $500 for furnishing uniforms for independent battalion was stricken out and that amount added to the item of incidental expenses.)

The appropriation is for the following specific objects:—

Collation $1500; Tents $500; Lumber $500; Caterer and Labor $500; Crockery, &c., $350; Cloth for tables $60; Ice house and gas $190; Music $800; Decoration of tents $300; Printing $500; Fireworks $500; Regatta $150; Industrial procession and incidentals $1650.

The above amounts to be paid by the City Treasurer when the various bills and vouchers shall be approved by a special joint committee of the City Councils, to the citizens' general committee.

A message was received from the Board of Aldermen giving notice that they had passed the Bill entitled "An Ordinance relating to the Fire Department" with amendments.

The amendments were concurred in by the Council.

Laconics.

Abdominal inflammation caused a Newington horse to sit down between the shafts of an insurance agent's wagon in front of the CHRONICLE office, Friday. Urged to arise, the accommodating animal did so, and then with bended knees sadly returned to his place of repose, moaning no moan and speaking not a word to the curious crowd of spectators. How true it is that the least said the soonest mended! That equine had no pain killer chucked down his throat and was not allowed to remain on the cold, cold ground, but was led away to a comfortable stable with straw, hay and oat attachments, and smiled as he knowingly winked his ears and remarked, "A still tongue maketh a wise head."

Sheriff Eastman, of Carroll county, brought to this city from Ossipee, on Friday, Henry L. Campbell, who is under sentence of ten years in the State prison for robbing the Wolfeboro' bank. He was brought here to prevent a rescue from a party of roughs who declared he should not be taken to Concord. The Sheriff took him to Concord on the evening train. Campbell is an Englishman and has been serving out a sentence of two years and six months in the Rhode Island State prison since he robbed the bank at Wolfeboro', three years ago.

An elderly lady at the West end is mourning the loss of a set of lower teeth which she left on a table and afterwards carefully gathered up with apple-parings and deposited in a stove. At dawn of day, bicuspid and molar were as a whited sepulchre, and the base metal in which the masticators had been planted was divorced without cost to either party.

An esteemed friend took us to task on Friday on a charge of publishing erroneous reports of a recent Episcopal church meeting. As we have published no account of the proceedings of that meeting, we listened to the few words of censure very considerately, and the friend departed fully resolved not to believe the mis-statements of designing persons maliciously circulated. We take no interest in this much talked of church business, deeming it no particular concern of ours, but when we do make public anything of the kind, we shrink from no responsibility attending it. It is the duty of publishers, while giving the news, to give it correctly, and the meanest of all persons are those who from petty spite spread reports for the injury of others, which they know are untrue. We hear from them occasionally, as in this instance.

By the election of Mr. Charles W. Shannon the city gains an efficient Assistant Marshal. We regret that Mr. Jellison is not to remain on the police force, where men faithful to the city's interest should be retained. Mr. Shannon succeeds Mr. Barsantee, who has removed from this city.

We regret to hear of the death of Miss Maggie Bailey, youngest daughter of Rear Admiral Theodorus Bailey, at Rome. Miss Bailey had a large circle of friends in this vicinity to whom the news brings sorrow and sadness.

The Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, of which James P. Bartlett, Esq., is agent, has paid the following losses to Portsmouth people:—

	Amount Policy.	Additions.	Total.
Nathaniel G. Weeks	5000		5000.00
Samuel Lord	4000	4420.92	8420.92
Sampson L. Russell	639		639.00

Some interesting local matter from the Journal will be found on the fourth page.

Charles Tibbotts, 14 years of age, tried to jump upon a train of cars in motion, at the Eastern depot on Thursday, and fell off; the car wheels crushed one of his hands so badly that it was short of the regulation number of fingers by two when the surgeon got through with it.

Fire at Kittery Point.

The large building at Kittery Point known as "Gunnison's Hall," owned by Mr. Jerry Gunnison and containing a dwelling (on the lower floor) and cooper shop, with a hall in the second storey, was destroyed by fire at an early hour on Friday morning, with its contents. The hall was occupied by a lodge of Good Templars, who held a meeting on Thursday evening, and also by the Freewill Baptist society of the Point, who had a short time previously moved their Sunday school library into the building and were to temporarily worship there, their church having been recently pulled down. The loss on the building is estimated at about $2000; the church people lost their library, organ, etc., and the lodge of Good Templars had property valued at $400 destroyed. The amount of insurance (if there is any) is not stated.

Morning Chronicle.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

—Thirty-five or forty years ago, the ship Solon of Portsmouth, brought a cargo from Liverpool into New York, and a firm in the latter city found themselves unable to pay their freight charges in full, so a portion of the amount was received, the balance charged to profit and loss, the account closed, and nothing more thought of the matter, which was but a small one, and the loss to the owners hardly thought of, then or afterwards. Those owners are now all dead, but their descendants still live here, and that New York firm is yet doing business; and recently, a merchant of this city, and son of one of the Solon's owners, being in New York on business connected with ships, the old firm referred to surprised him by forwarding a check for the full amount of that freight deficit, more than a generation ago, with compound interest up to this time, amounting in all to about thirty-six hundred dollars. This sum, distributed among the heirs of the original owners of the old ship, comes in good time, as several of them are women of small incomes; and the incident is of interest, as showing not only a strict sense of mercantile honor, but also the almost exactness in the mode of doing business. How many firms can show records of transactions after a lapse of thirty years? The record stories of a Western merchant sending $600 here to settle an old account, have grown out of the above true relation.—Portsmouth Cor. Globe.

—Lovers of the beautiful and elevating will welcome with eager anticipations the second announcement made by the Young People's Union of another series of exquisite still scenes, pantomines, etc, similar to those given at the Temple some months since under the direction of Mr. G. B. Bartlett, of Boston, whose services have been fortunately secured for this May night festival. This gentleman has just concluded a successful engagement in New York city, and again comes among us by earnest solicitations, with the intention of presenting an entire change of scenes, and those who were fortunate enough to gain admission at the first representation will need no urging to partake of a second feast of that loveliness which as Thomson said,

"Needs not the foreign aid of ornament,
But is when unadorned, adorned the most."

Harlow's band will during the intervals give selections of some of their choicest music. Go early to secure seats.

A long case occupying several days, in a "bounty" suit on a note for $1150 given by the selectmen of the town of Effingham for volunteers furnished for the U. S. army under the call of President Lincoln, July 19, 1864. The volunteers were furnished by Peyser, Drake & Co., substitute brokers, and the note given him by the selectmen was transferred to Micah Sampson of Portland, who brings the suit against the town in this court, he being a resident without the State. The town contends that the selectmen were guilty of fraud, and had no authority to give the note. Hon. William B. Small is of the counsel for the plaintiff, and Gen. Gilman Marston for the defence.

—Charles E. Mendum, Esq., has wonderfully transformed the venerable Fleet Street Vestry into an elegant and convenient, snug and cosy home for somebody. It contains three good sized and handsomely furnished rooms on the first floor, four good chambers and a somewhat capacious attic, and has the conveniences of a furnace in the cellar, gas fixtures throughout and yard room in the rear. The painting and graining by Mr. James M. Locke is handsomely done, and the design of Mr. Mendum has been to make it a first rate house for a moderate sized family.

—The New York "Sons" will doubtless compliment our citizens with a concert by Downing's famous band on the morning of Saturday, the 5th, on the lawn in front of the Rockingham House. We hear incidentally that some of the sons abroad are negotiating for the services of the Providence Brass Band—a "crack" organization, whose music on our streets some months ago attracted large crowds.

—Many earnest hopes are expressed that the scholars belonging to the several schools of our city will as a body be assigned a conspicuous place in the procession on the coming Fourth to aid in welcoming the guests. Such a representation would ever remain a bright spot in the lives of our rising generation. Will not the committee on programme give the subject their favorable consideration?

—From the City Marshal's report for the quarter ending March 31st, we glean the following: Whole number of arrests, —172, persons given lodgings at the station-house, 311. Amount of fines imposed $98, costs $182.26. $58.96 was paid for warrants and witnesses, leaving a balance of $221.57 paid into the treasury.

—We find in a recent San Francisco exchange, a long and flattering notice of a Portsmouth boy—Mr. Allen Freeman (senior of the firm of Freeman & Loomis,) —and his establishment in the city of a palatial oyster and dining hall, fitted up at an expensive of ten thousand dollars.

—On Monday last Hon. Frank Jones, President of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad, secured the deed of nearly all of Noble's Island. It will doubtless soon contain a net-work of tracks, and with its deep water front is very valuable property.

—The Lighthouse Board has ordered the furnishing of all lighthouses with callbells to be connected with magnetic wires. One bell will be placed in the watch-room and one at the bedside of the keeper.

—Geo. W. Thompson, Esq., formerly of this city, is Secretary of the St. Louis "Daily Chronicle," Association, —a spicy sheet, published daily at one cent per copy, now in its third volume.

—The case of Jeff. C. Rowe vs. Eastern Railroad, for injuries received at the Revere disaster, is now assigned for trial in thisterm at the October term of Court.

—Twenty-eight barrels and four half barrels of Portsmouth cream ale were emptied into the sewer under the station house Saturday at Portland.

—Thursday next, May Day, will be the advent of Postal Cards—a one cent proceeding. It will also be a moving day—in New York it nowhere else.

The Concord Railroad pays 3 per cent. dividend in May.

A TEMPERANCE DISCOURSE.—An exchange has the following, which leads me to make some remarks on temperance:

"A man in Jamaica, Long Island, after drinking too much cider, insisted on smoking on a load of hay. He came home that night without any whiskers or eyebrows, and the iron work of his wagon in a potato sack."

This terrible incident preaches a sermon on temperance. It behooves us all, in these times of car-hooks and Third avenue car robberies, tempered with assassinations, to keep our heads spiritually level.

If you drink wine you will walk in winding ways. If you drink brandy punches, you will get handy punches, and if you carry too much beer, the bier will soon carry you.

Whiskey made Foster strike Putnam, whiskey set the Scannels fighting in Donohue's saloon, and finally put John Scannel in the tombs. Whisky shattered McFarland, hung Jack Reynolds, and made two-thirds of the murderers in our city prison.

Still my Uncle Consider startled me the other day by saying, "brandy, Eli, has saved the live of thousands and thousands of people."

"How saved their lives, uncle?" I asked.

"Why, Eli, by-by their n-n-o-t drinkin' it."

"Yes," said my uncle, thoughtfully, "that fust glass of wine has ruined many a young man. The other nite," he continued, wiping his eyes, "I drempt I saw my fav'rite son a drinken from the floin'bole. My hart yarned for 'im an' I strode fo'rds 'im. As he raised in the wineglass in the air I was seezed it tragick-like and sez I 'O Rufus the serpent larks in that floin' wine. Give'—O giv' it to your father!' and when he past it toerds me I quaffed it, serpents an' all, to keep it from my tender sun. I waz saved from the tempter and turnin' with tears in my eyes I remark 'O my hopeful boy, do anything — shoop burgs, nests, stun French glass winders, match sents, play with kar books, take snuf, take beozine, take Mrs. Hopkins, take photographs, anything, but don't take that first glass of wine."

"Fear not, father," answered mi' noble boy. "That first glass o' wine be blowed. Us boys is all a-slingin' in ol' crow whisky and a-punishin' gin slings and brandy smashers—if we ain't YEU kan bounce me for a snoozer—you kan?"

"Mi noble boi!" and then Uncle Consider lighted a 40 cent Partaga and proceeded to ask James what he had purchased for the week's supply from the market.

"I bought two gallons of sherry, sir, four dozen Burgundy, some of the old rum we had before, some cheese, two boxes of cigars, and two loaves of bread, an' it's all here in the larder."

"All right, James," said my Uncle, lookin' over his glasses, "but was there any need of spendin' so much money for bread?"

And then Uncle Consider went on cutting off his coupons.—Eli Perkins.

PIOUS WAITERS.—Jones dines at the Kirkwood, and if the Kirkwood had sense and had enterprise enough to advertise with us, we would praise that dinner. As it is, we cannot. We have a conscience, you know. Well, Jones dines at the Kirkwood, and during the rush that set in upon the 4th of March, he found a strange waiter at his elbow. He found, moreover, an obstacle in his way when he called for a gin cocktail. The waiter groaned, and looking around he saw a melancholy face with sympathetic eyes bent upon him. "What's the matter," demanded Jones; "have you the colic?" "No sah," was the solemn response, "but I is worried to see you ask for dat liquid damnation." "Why, who the thunder are you?" "Me, sah? I'm a theological student of de Wayland Theological Seminary." "And what are you doing here?" A-waitin', sah. Thirty ob us volunteered in in dese crowded times to make a little money to continue our theological studies, sah." "Well, my reverend friend," said Jones, "you go and fetch a first-class gin cocktail and I'll add twenty-five cents to your theological funds." It was done.—Washington Capital.

—The Danbury horse has a reputation above all other animals of the field. The chief claim of the Danbury horse to public favor and notice is the facility with which he will run away. He is always ready to run away. He will get up in the night from a refreshing sleep to run away. He will leave a meal of cream cakes and quail on toast to run away. He will sacrifice home, happiness, honor and other people's property to run away. And when he gets started nobody ever thinks of getting in front of him. Once in a while a stranger attempts it, but there is a fund to furnish ice to pack his body with until his friends can come on, so there is no harm done. A Danbury horse is neither a respecter of occasions. He will run away from a post, or an agricultural debate, or a funeral, and, in a tight pinch, would run away from a position in the New York custom house.

A London dispatch to the New York World says the gravest apprehensions are felt in the highest circles in Paris of immediate civil war. The monarchists are determined to oust President Thiers at any cost.

Twenty cases of sporadic cholera were taken to the Vienna hospital on Thursday, five of which proved fatal. An effort is being made to conceal the fact of the appearance of the disease in the city. This will be pleasant news for the army of Commissioners on their way to the Exposition.

A private letter received in Baltimore from a Baltimore gentleman at Pernambuco, Brazil, states that a bitter controversy is going on between the archbishop of Pernambuco and the masonic fraternity. The press had taken sides with the masons, and it was thought that the difficulty would culminate in the expulsion of the Jesuits.

In the Massachusetts supreme court at Springfield, Friday, Albert M. Smith was convicted of murder in the first degree, in the shooting of Charles D. Sackett at Westfield, November 20, 1872. The circumstances of the crime are that Smith became infatuated with Miss Jennie Bates of Westfield, and meeting her returning from a theatre in company with Sackett, to whom she was betrothed, shot him fatally. The defence was that the murder was committed under monomania.

John O'Hare, employed at the Berkeley House, Boston, while drunk on Thursday night, quarrelled with a waiter named August Hogg. During a scuffle which ensued between the men, O'Hare drew a revolver and fired, the ball passing close to Hogg's head. The sound of the discharge aroused the inmates of the house, several of whom succeeded in securing O'Hare with the pistol in his hand, as he was about to renew the attack. O'Hare was taken into custody.

The first robin of the season appeared in Danbury, on Sunday and was escorted through town by nineteen bows and arrows, sixty-two shot guns, four muskets and eleven rifles.

"The crisis has come," cried a boy, as he rushed into the house, panting with excitement from seeing the circus enter town, "and I want a quarter."

The Boston and New York line, on which sleeping-cars were an experiment only a few years ago, carried in March last 10,000 passengers who took sleeping-cars.

H. L. Powers, proprietor of the Grand Central Hotel, New York, was put in Ludlow street jail for contempt of court in refusing to deliver a piano which he had seized to secure the payment of a bill by a delinquent boarder.

It is presumed that Black Jim, of the Modocs, is a happy man. His mother-in-law has been captured by the soldiers.

A divorced wife has heaped coals of fire on a Detroit husband's head by inheriting $500,000. Pts just his luck.

Among the drowned sailors of the steamer Atlantic was a woman, whose sex was discovered upon recovery of the body from the water. She went by the name of Bill, and had made three voyages. She was excessively fond of tobacco, but was a favorite, and free from many of the vices of the common sailor. She was an American, but her history was buried with her, for who she was or where she came from, or why she adopted man's attire and man's pursuit, will never be known.

The Boston Advertiser's Portland correspondent, speaking of a man who was recently stabbed in a notorious den in that city says:—"Dr. Ring reports that McCallum, the man stabbed yesterday, is doing well. This is the first time in his life he has ever been recorded as doing well."

The evening Post has a letter from Newfoundland which states that the charter of the New York, Newfoundland and London Telegraph Company, in a clause which has passed almost unnoticed, provides that at the end of the first twenty years the government of Newfoundland has the right of purchasing the line at a valuation. The first twenty years terminates in 1875. The company recently applied to the government to have this clause rescinded, and their possession be thus continued for the next thirty years, but the government, under the most eminent legal advice in London that they have a right to purchase the line at the cost of the plant, has refused. The receipt of this intelligence in London caused the stock of the company to fall from twenty to fourteen pounds, but after the panic abated somewhat it rose to seventeen pounds.

Captain Duncan, United States shipping commissioner at New York, has inaugurated an extensive crusade on the keepers of sailors' boarding houses, and warrants were issued for the arrest of 127 proprietors on a charge of conspiring to prevent the execution of the shipping commission laws. The boarding-house keepers some time ago formed an association for the purpose of defeating the operation of the United States law, and have lately been shipping seamen in open violation of the statute, thereby seriously reducing Commissioner Duncan's fees.

We notice that Major F. E. Shaw of the Oxford Democrat, was nearly unanimously chosen the Grand Worthy Chief of the order of Good Templars of Maine, at the annual session in Augusta. This a deserved tribute to one of the truest friends of temperance and most able and successful editors in Maine. We regard the Oxford Democrat as one of the best country newspapers in the State, and no Oxford man, at least, can afford to be without it.—Lewiston Journal.

A New Orleans despatch says Governor Kellogg sent the State militia to Tangipahoa parish, installed the officers of that parish, scattered a mob which had collected, and restored order. He has purchased a steamboat, armed it with a 12-pound howitzer, and organized a battalion of cavalry, intended in the case of necessity to run up the rivers and bayous, which at this stage of water will enable them to penetrate almost every parish of the State. He has directed the attorney-general to prosecute McEnery and others under the usurpation act, and also for treason. He has offered a large reward for evidence that will lead to a conviction of those who were engaged in the recent massacre at Grant parish.

Two idealistic youths, immersed in sentimental thoughts and sicklied o'er with the pale cast of poetry, were walking past a house, the other day, and espied a young lady acquaintance in a bay window, taking draughts of balmy April air. "You look," said the gloomiest of the poetical twain, "like Mariana in the moated grange." "And I am like her," she replied, "for I am looking athwart the gloomy flats." They only said their lives were weary, &c., and passed sadly along.

A man whom Dr. Chalmers engaged to manage a disorderly Sunday school, kept his eyes wide open during praying, and when one boy thrust a pin into another he marched up the aisle, still praying, and cuffed that boy's ears, and went back again, praying all the way. After that he was master of the situation, for the boys thought that a man who could watch and pray like that was not to be put down.

On the completion of the Boston post-office it is proposed by the government to run the postal cars from the New York and New England and the Boston and Albany railroads, over tracks to be laid in Federal street, directly into the post-office basement through the entrance on Milk street, opposite Federal. A great saving of time and trouble will thus be made.

One of the boys at Camp Noble, Indiana, was put on guard, and reported to his captain in the morning that he was abused by a fellow because he would not allow him to pass.

"Well," said the captain, "what did you do?"

"Do? Why, I remonstrated with him."

"And to what effect?"

"Well, I don't know to what effect, but the barrel of my gun is bent."

The foreign files state that the manufacturing city of Jochimsthal, in the mountains of Bohemia, was destroyed by fire on the 21st of March. Out of 586 houses in the city, 450 were completely burned, and 4000 persons were rendered houseless.

—People who love to gaze upon the stars will find in the heavens just now, at night, a beautiful sight,—a brilliant starry triangle, formed by the planets Jupiter and Venus, and the star Sirius. Venus will be seen in the west, Jupiter near the zenith, in the east, and Sirius in the south. These stars may be recognized by their superior brilliancy. Venus is golden in color, Jupiter somewhat orange tinted, and Sirius a softened white. Venus is a small planet between our earth and the sun. Jupiter is also of the planetary system, and of great magnitude. Sirius is a glorious sun, exceeding many times in size the sun of our system.—Lawrence American.

—A robin redbreast sat upon a pole in Detroit one day last week, and a boy named Clybammer brought out his father's revolver, levelled it at the bird and pulled the trigger. The ball missed the robin by about ten feet, went through the window of a house and brought up in a pile of crockery. Some excitement was occasioned, and the boy was taken home and made to chase the bootjack around his mother.

Hats Off.

Some ladies present at the Maggie Mitchell entertainment on Wednesday evening, removed their hats—managed—during the play. Such an act of politeness, although nothing more than is due from ladies, was appreciated by those behind them. If this system succeeds in gaining a footing it may, as it ought to, become popular, and a reform be worked which is much needed, and which would have the effect of doing away with much profanity.—Lawrence American.

Cheers for those ladies, and loud cries for others to follow their example.

—The brass band connected with the St. James Combination came out upon the street Monday followed by twenty-five boys, each boy carrying a banner, upon which was inscribed a single letter; and when the banners were in their proper order, the letters read, St. James Combination to-Night. As the procession was passing the depot, a train unfortunately came along and broke up the order, so that the boys were puzzled to know their position. The band crossed the tracks in safety, and marched ahead, blowing their horns, while the boys scampered along as soon as the train had passed in the following order: No Gin to Stomach Bitten James.—Lawrence American.

—It is very convenient for clergymen to exchange pulpits at times, but when such is done ministers should be careful in using old sermons having local allusions to revise or strike out the same. Some time ago a Somerville clergyman exchanged with another at Andover, and in the course of the sermon had reason to allude to the Insane Asylum at Somerville, and forgetting that he was in Andover, said; "Sooner than a child of mine should be subjected to such influences I would be willing to have him confined in yonder institution." That institution was the theological seminary.—Lawrence American.

—Oregon youth are sorely afflicted with the base-ball fever, and, in consequence about half of them gaze at the beauties of nature with one eye, while the rest waddle about on crutches, or are waiting for some new fingers to grow.

WANTED.

A SMART, ACTIVE YOUNG WOMAN to learn the Dry Goods Business.
C. H. MENDUM & CO.
Portsmouth, N. H., April 23, 1873.

A MODEL WIFE.—I have recently met a lovely Kentucky lady, Mrs. General Paul. She is from Newport. General Paul had both of his eyes shot out in battle. He bears his affliction with the resignation of a Christian martyr. At the Cook ball the General was in full uniform, and would playfully repeat the exclamations he heard about the beautiful flowers. His charming wife is the staff upon which he leans, and she so tenderly watches and guides his steps that she is eyes and everything to him. In the carriage he made some gallant speech to her, and she said, "O! husband, I have changed so that I don't believe you would know me if you saw me, it is so long since you have seen me." Such rare devotion as theirs gives eyes to the soul and the loss of the outward ones is not recognized.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

—Rev. Andrew Jackson Harney is a pleasant preacher to have round. He walked into Somerset, Ohio, and mounting a box in the street, he told the crowd which had collected that he had walked 162,000 miles, simply to show them the road to righteousness. They reviled the Rev. A. J. H., but when he told them that he "could lick his weight in wildcats" they listened to his peaceful preachings. Shortly after, this dispenser of the Gospel met a church trustee, and requested the privilege of preaching in church. Upon being refused, he knocked the trustee down, and after thrashing him well, went on his way rejoicing. He was perfectly sober all the time.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis.

Messrs. Editors:—It having fallen to my lot to observe in all its stages the affection now appproaching us, viz: cerebro-spinal meningitis, spotted fever or, cerebro-spinal fever, a scourge to the region selected for its ravages and compared with which small-pox in point of fatality is innocent, I wish to lay before your readers a brief sketch of its history, &c.

Cerebro-spinal meningitis, or spotted fever, is not, strictly speaking, a modern disease, although it has excited considerable attention recently, and particularly on this continent, the people of New Hampshire having received a passing notice from its blighting hand as early as 1806.

Historians speak of this disease as far back as 1310 and again in 1480. Passing over parts of Europe we can again trace it, although obscurely described, between 1503 and 1570. It raged with fearful mortality at Rome and Madrid in 1580, at Trent in 1590, and in other places from 1616 to 1624, in Italy from 1661 to 1693, and in Prussia in 1704. It occurred at Geneva in 1805, in the Prussian army from 1806 to 1808, and in various places from 1816 to 1829, leaving its fatal impress upon many fair spots between Scotland and Gibraltar until 1850. It occurred again in Germany and Russia in 1863 to 1865, and in Ireland in 1866 to 1867. Its first appearance in this country was in Massachusetts in 1806, spreading gradually over New England, New York and Canada, since which time it has been observed with various degrees of malignancy in many of the States. On account of the soreness of the throat occasionally attending this strange disease it has been believed by many to be scarlet fever of a malignant type; by others regarded as modified typhus fever, but whether it be a distinct affection, or merely a variety of typhus, is still an unsettled question.

I pass briefly notice some of the characteristic symptoms. The attack is nearly always sudden, rarely gradual; chilliness or a well-pronounced chill, terrible pain in the head extending to the nape of the neck, nausea and vomiting, delirium or stupor and extraordinary exhaustion. Convulsions may occur early in the young. When the complaint has fairly set in the headache is intense, the face has a fixed expression and the head is thrown back and fixed. The skin is dry and on the second day purplish spots appear on the surface. The tongue may be moist or dry. Great thirst is manifested. Constipation is the rule, and the urine high colored. If the disease does not progress to a fatal close, convalescence is tedious. The duration of the disease in fatal cases is brief, some dying in 3 or 4 hours, many within 12 hours. The danger diminishes after the 4th day, convulsions, deafness, blindness and palsies are prominent phenomena if it pursue a chronic course.

There is no epidemic so destructive to life as cerebro-spinal meningitis. All observers concur in the belief that it is not contagious. The existence of a special cause is probable, from its epidemic character, in producing this disease, and the local co-operating causes are not yet fully ascertained. Occuring as it does under much the same circumstances as typhus fever, local or atmospheric contamination is suggested, and that it depends in part upon a peculiar morbid poison "generated by a slow change in human or animal emanations" is probable Treatment should be commenced early, the urgency of the case and all the symptoms guiding the practitioner as to the special remedies to be introduced. It needs but a little reflection to see the immense practical importance of the question "can this epidemic be prevented?" At the present time neither the affirmative nor the negative answer can be sustained by an appeal to facts. There is reason to believe, however, that sanitary measures which remove the ordinary causes of disease will prove effectual in preventing the epidemic. Whatever may be the nature and source of the special cause, auxiliary causes seem to be hardly less essential for the production of the disease.

The propriety, then, of disinfecting—and certain substances, such as charcoal, quicklime, sulphate of iron, and chloride of lime come within the reach of all—and arresting fermentative processes, is apparent.

Deficient sewerage, cesspools, accumulating of filth of every description and unventilated houses are prolific causes of diseases affecting public health, which, in some way co-operating with the special cause, lead to the rise and spread of this, as well as other, epidemics.

These causes may, to a great extent, be removed by sanitary measures, and the scourge now threatening us may in this way be either warded off or its prevalence greatly curtailed.

The Cat Trade.

The Boston Advertiser says "Portsmouth papers are inclined to be happy over the newly-established trade in kittens between that city and England. They derived their information on the subject from a Boston paper, which stated that three Maltese kittens had lately been sent from Portsmouth to England, where they were very rare. They are now anxious to learn whether a special line of steamships will be started to carry on this branch of commerce." Our Boston contemporary need not be alarmed. The cat trade has not yet been developed fully, but being in charge of an East Boston boy, a veritable son of Malta, business interests of the city may yet be benefitted if the returning Sons will each bring home a Maltese kitten under his arms. The spacious minerets on the tabernacle, formerly called Jefferson Market, have been engaged for cat accommodation!

Laconics.

Mr. Louis Shaw, a noted billiard player of the West and champion of Iowa, is in this city and will shortly give an exhibition of his skill at the Rockingham House. In a recent match game at Chicago Mr. Shaw made an average of 69, including runs of 240, 219, 207, 168 and 114.

The Spring arrangement of the Eastern and P. S. & P. Railroads goes into operation to-day.

The change in the departure of the trains for Boston necessitates a corresponding change in the closing of the mails. The mails for Boston and West will close at 8:05 and 11:10 A. M., instead of 9 A. M. and 12 M.—as heretofore.

Portsmouth people deem it eminently fitting that while ex-Governor Goodwin is chairman of the preparations and committee for the Sons' reception at home, his own and only son, Frank Goodwin of Boston, is also chairman of the Boston Lodge of Sons of Strawberry Bank. The ex-governor has long been counted their first citizen by his townsmen generally — though an adopted one; and it is doubtful if any other has ever been held in higher esteem, in all the honored history of the old town.—Boston Transcript.

State News.

A freight car at the Concord depot, in Nashua, was entered and a box of articles broken open, Tuesday evening, by some thieves whose operations were cut short by the arrival of a switchman on the spot.

The Governor and Council will meet at Concord Tuesday, at 11 A. M., when it is expected the returns of the votes cast for members of Congress at the March election will be sorted and counted.

Dollie Bidwell played "Jack Sheppard" in Manchester, Saturday evening.

The whole number of divorces granted in this State for the year 1872, was 203.

James T. Fields will give three lectures on English literature, at Dartmouth college, the first week in June.

—The Prince of Wales is a very enthusiastic Freemason, and has recently shocked a good many serious people by assisting at a grand ceremonial of Knights Templar. The ceremony was carried out on a grand scale, all the Knights wearing mantles, swords and other decorations. The room was hung with scarlet and gorgeous banners, and brilliantly lighted, and in the midst was placed the sepulchre, with the figure of the Savior on the Cross. The Prince marched into the hall, also in full costume, and was attended by chief dignitaries of the order, with trumpets blowing and the Knights saluting with their swords. As the performance took place during Passion week, the High Church folks are especially outraged, and are giving vent to their indignation in no measured terms. But the Prince has a habit of doing as he pleases.

—A Galveston lady recently requested her husband to go to the dressmaker, and tell her that she (his wife) had changed her mind, and would have the watered silk made up instead of the poplin, and that "if she thinks it would look better with bias flounces without puffing, and box pleated below the equator, which should be gathered in hemstitched gudgeons up and down the seams, with a gusset stitch between, she can make it up that way, instead of fluting the bobinet insertion, and piecing out with point applique, as I suggested yesterday." The man is now a raving maniac.

—A live rattlesnake was found last week in the aduequat at Rochester, Mass., and several citizens now understand that certain optical delusions were caused by mixing water with their whiskey.

Morning Chronicle.

HEARTY SUPPERS.—It requires about five hours for the stomach to work on an ordinary meal and pass it out of himself, when it falls into a stage of repose. Hence, if a man eats three times a day his stomach must work fifteen hours out of the twenty-four. But the multitude of mechanics who are wildly clamorous for "only eight hours a day," are the very ones who, while they are angered at being required by others to work more than eight hours a day, do not hesitate to impose upon their stomachs fifteen hours' work—nearly double.

After a night's sleep we wake up with a certain amount of bodily vigor, which is faithfully proportioned out to every set of muscles, to each its rightful share; the stomach among others. When the external body gets weary after a long day's work, the stomach bears its share of fatigue, but if, when the body is weary with a day's toil, we put it to bed, giving the stomach meanwhile a five hour's task which must be performed we impose upon the very best friend we have; the one that gives us the largest amount of earthly enjoyments; and if this overtaxing is continued it must wear out as certainly prematurely as the body itself will, if it is overworked every day.

And if persons eat between meals, then the stomach has no rest from the breakfast in the morning until one, two, three or four o'clock next day; hence it is that so many persons have dyspepsia; the stomach is worked so much and so constantly, that it becomes too weak to work at all. It is to be hoped that every intelligent parent will press these things on the attention of their children as a matter of conscience, because dyspepsia, like consumption, has its foundations laid in a majority of cases, during the "teens" of life.—Journal of Health.

—The Cincinnati Commercial desperately says: "If O'Kelly doesn't culminate pretty soon we shall order the printers to distribute his obituary."

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an alimental, as easily digested, and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills" simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women: and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

PLANTING POTATOES.—The potatoes the past year were a failure in quality on account of the great heat. Many tubers were so scorched that they became watery and rank; and some very near the surface or partially exposed, assumed the green color, were unfit to feed even to stock, on account of the poisonous property engendered by the rays of the sun. The remedy is, plant deep from six to seven inches. This for various reason: It will permit very early planting—an advantage—securing thus the seed against the frost, or if reached by it, it will permit it gradually to draw out, which will save it; it will favor it in a drought, and prevent the setting of tubers too near the surface, so that the sun cannot injure them; hilling can also be dispensed with, and only the cultivator used to make mellow and keep out the grass, with no danger of hurting the roots or the tubers.

Late sorts should receive the same treatment as early. They will then, by being put out early, get the whole season's growth, and will ripen in time for dry gathering. A potato wants to be grown rather slowly, but continuously, and well ripened. It will then be sound and solid, fine-grained, of better flavor, also more mellow. Rank growth will give a rank taste, and a watery condition a less concentration of substance.

Experience has demonstrated that it is better to manure in the hill than to apply broadcast. Better a poor soil with some rich fertilizer in the hill, than rich land; and the best fertilizers are ashes, guano, reduced bone, plaster, &c. Ashes are a special manure for this plant.

By putting out early, with the first mellow soil, the potato will sprout and grow on, unimpeded in the ground instead of the cellar, and get the benefit of the Winter's moisture, which in an early drouth, is of importance. Particularly should the Early Rose be put out early. The experience here is, decided and unvarying, that you cannot get it out too early in case you have mellow ground for it. It will grow in the worst of weather, snow and frost excepted, and seems to delight in it, while at the same time other sorts are at a standstill, thus making this emphatically what it is, an early potato. Plant close rather than wide apart, say 12 to 15 inches in the row, as this sort keeps its tubers close together, a nest of them, and easily gathered. They will then also be of a medium rather than a large size, which is favorable to quality; and by putting but one or two eyes in a hill, there will be few small potatoes. Thus a crop of Early Rose can be ripened very early, and of a superior quality and yield. But the ground must be dry and well drained; and to prevent rot, there should be more sand than clay in the soil.

Will our farmers who are not in the secret of early planting, try it this year? Try it on a small scale if no other. Put out with very first mellow soil, but be sure and plant deep, never less than six, and better seven inches. When I say better seven, I mean it particularly with the Early Rose. But do it with all sorts. Do not fear the frost with the seed so deep in the ground. Put a good quantity of unleached wood ashes and hen dung in the hill if the ground is not rich. The ashes and dung should be applied and covered at once, as soon as mixed, as else the strength by the union escapes and that rapidly. Keep out the grass, and keep the ground mellow.—Country Gentleman.

BETTER THAN GOUGH.—A week or two since a little incident occurred at Cape Girardeau, an account of which, it is hoped, Mr. Gough will incorporate in his lectures; it will point a discourse and add effect to the moral. A character, noted somewhat for loafing around bar-rooms, was sitting in his usual place of resort, with several compatriots, about a card table, killing time with the pasteboards. Suddenly his wife entered the room, bearing a large covered dish, which she deposited on the table with the remark, "Presuming, husband, that you were too busy to come home to dinner, I have brought yours to you," and then departed. The husband invited his companions to share his meal and removed the lid from the dish, revealing no smoking roast, but instead a slip of paper, only this and nothing more, on which was written, "I hope you will enjoy your dinner; it is of the same kind you family has at home."—Jackson Cashbook.

A GRAPHIC DOMESTIC PICTURE.—Did you ever see a man fish around in the bottom of a tub of water for a piece of soap? At the first he simply reaches down upon it to pick it right up, and is very much surprised to find that he hasn't got it. Then he approaches it more cautiously, puts his hand over it, and then comes down noiselessly, till he gets every finger about it, and then squeezes it tight, and—misses it. He looks at it for a moment before making another effort, and fills up the interval with a few remarks. The third attempt is a sort of semi-circle described with a great deal of sagacity, but is a failure. Other remarks follow. Then he makes a succession of dives and slops the water over his clothes, and drenches the carpet, and catches hold of the soap several times, and lets go of it again, and screams at the top of his voice, and finally, in perfect despair, sits down on the floor and actually howls.—Danbury News.

The Daily Chronicle,

Portsmouth, N. H.

TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1873.

State News.

A few weeks ago, citizens of Northwood held an enthusiastic meeting, formed an association, raised $4,000, and chose a committee of six to put down the rum traffic in town. Geo. C. Peavey of Strafford was employed by the committee as counsel, and four persons were arrested upon eighteen complaints and warrants. Three of them plead guilty to one complaint each and paid a fine of fifty dollars and costs on the complaints against them, pledging their word and honor not to sell any more spirit. The other defendant plead not guilty, and the witnesses were carried before the Grand Jury, who found two indictments against him. The committee are determined to clean out intoxicating liquor from the town and keep it out, if law and money can do it.

Benjamin Coe, Esq., who died in South Newmarket, April 8, at the age of 72 years, was a descendant of the Martyr Roger "Coe" of Milford, Suffolkshire, England, who was burned at the stake by order of Queen Mary, September, 1555 at Wexford in that shire, and the youngest child of Rev. Curtis Coe, formerly an Orthodox Congregationalist minister in Durham and late of South Newmarket, deceased.

The News Letter says that the death of Mr. John Wood, April 20, in Newmarket, at the age of seventy-five years and eight months, was remarkable from the fact that Mr. Wood was married about the same hour on Sunday, April 20, 1823, just fifty years ago. This is the only death that ever took place in the house where he had resided forty-seven years.

The temperance men of Northwood have formed an association, raised a fund of $4000, and appointed a committee to put down the illegal sale of liquor. Eighteen complaints have been made, and three of the arrested parties have paid a fine of $50 each and costs, and agreed to sin no more.

Pansies and daisies are reported to have bloomed, in Lancaster, under the snow.

Seventeen divorces were decreed by the Supreme Court for Hillsborough county, which closed April 19th.

Last evening a bulletin board was received in the post-office, from Washington, with instructions to have posted, each day, for the benefit of the public, weather probabilities, which would be sent on daily by mail. This morning, some irreverent person contributed the first, which was written with a lead pencil, as follows: "Stormy weather may be expected, as my mother-in-law has arrived."—Concord Patriot.

Warren F. Putnam of Lowell has been elected cashier of the National Granite State Bank, at Exeter, to succeed N. Appleton Shute, absconded.

AROUND THE HEARTH.—When the head feels swollen, the nose obstructed, the forehead hot, and the eyes watery, snuff a few drops of tincture of camphor up the nose, every hour or two, and take internally five or six drops on a lump of sugar. Ordinary cold, and even influenza, if treated in this manner in the very beginning of the attack, is generally controlled at once.

Every family should have a preparation of flaxseed oil, chalk and vinegar, about the consistency of thick paint, constantly on hand for burns and scalds. A noted physician states that he has employed the mixture extensively forty years, and believes that no application can compare with it, as regards relief of pain and curative results.

CAIN'S GUILT.—The lengths to which the doctrine of emotional insanity had gone already threatened our whole judicial system, and now all hopes of reform seem ruined by the current Scribner's plea of insanity for Cain. If a man can go back of the record in that way, and hunt up an old case that has been settled for some time, we may as well abolish the punishment of murder altogether. There is no question but Cain killed Abel with malice aforethought, and with a deadly weapon. The motive, the deliberation, and the artful concealment show a thorough appreciation of the crime, and responsibility therefor, and the coroner's jury never mentioned insanity, that any one heard of. The plea is not sufficiently sound for a new trial, and, besides, the courts haven't any jurisdiction.—Cin. Chron.

The Connecticut "egg laid by a hen which measures eight inches around endways," suggests the thoughtful Albany was a "city of queer little houses containing twenty thousand inhabitants built with their gable ends toward the street."—Cin. Chron.

Col. Yerger, a relic of secessionism and notorious for shooting Col. Crane, Sheriff of Jackson County, Miss., a few years ago, went into a Baltimore saloon recently with a view of repeating the little dramatic episode between Hayes, Col. Blood and Judge Fenn, in Missouri. A New Englander, who was present, called for a drink, and when about to lubricate his throat, Yerger, desiring to make an example of the Yankee, stepped up and grinded both glass and bottle. To the surprise of everybody the New Englander covered his man first, and, without exhibiting his bowie-knife capacity, Yerger beat a hasty retreat.

Ben. B., he of the slant eye, has, by strict attention to his interests, and an unparalleled economy of principle in his practices saved enough to purchase a little garden patch and cottage in the country, by making a cash payment of only $300,000.

At Trenton, O., a boy of six assumed the role of Modoc Chief, just for fun, and assassinated his Cousin Tommy with that appropriate toy for children, the revolver. Tommy's role was Gen. Canby.

Next to the boyish delight of surreptitiously sucking the mouth of a molasses jug, says a philosophic correspondent, is the pleasure of breaking an engagement with the dentist.

A Danbury young man out of employment and health, desires to act as substitute for some pensioner of the war of 1812. No objection to going into the country.

The election in Paris, to fill a vacancy in the National Assembly resulted in the choice of M. Barodet, radical who received 166,000 votes to 127,000 for Baron Stoeffel, and 25,000 for Count deRemusat, the Thiers' candidates. Elections were held also at Marseilles and Bordeaux, in which the radical candidates were successful.

Says the New York Commercial:—"Friend Hoag, of the Indian Bureau, requests the Governor of Texas to release those red cut-throats Santanta and Big Tree, who General Sherman asserts have committed in all about fifty murders. Verily, thee hast plenty of 'cheek,' friend Hoag. Go, prefer thy request in person, and if the Governor of Texas does not stuff the basement of thy breeches with shoe leather, he is not the man we take him to be." So shall it be done.

A citizen of Wooster, O., put a quietus on a lawsuit. On being subpoened as a witness to attend the suit in Orrville, he paid out of his own purse the amount involved in the case—$3.75—rather than sacrifice his business to visit that village.

Kate Field denies that she is threatened with deafness, and wants to know who started that ear story.

A German friend whose wife takes in washing for their subsistence, claims that he earns his living by the sweat of his vrow.

The railroad station house at the crossing of the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago and Lake Shore Railroads was burned on Saturday night, and a man, aged 70, named Klees, his daughter and five children, living in the station house, perished in the flames.

This motto stands at the editorial head of the Albany (Ga.) News:—

But the get-up-and-get that makes men great."

—A well-dressed but wild-eyed gentleman called at the office of the mayor of Indianapolis, recently, and said he wanted something done with his wife. "What's the matter?" inquired his honor. "She keeps giving me pills," was the reply. "I wouldn't take 'em." "I can't help it," said the injured husband; "She gives 'em to me when I'm asleep. "I'd wear a muzzle," said his honor. The injured husband started. He hadn't thought of that.

—There is a little railroad at Bayou Sara, La., that runs to Woodville on a very inaccurate scale. A stranger came in one day inquired how often the steam-car made trips to the country. The party interrogeda said: "Triweekly." "What do you mean by triweekly?" The answer was: "It goes up one week and tries to come down the next."

—Those people who live to a healthy old age are those who take care of themselves. There is one in Danbury who guards against the frequent sudden changes of weather, by wearing at the same time a linen duster, and an overcoat. On a cool day he puts the overcoat over the duster, and when a sultry spell comes on he puts the duster outside the overcoat.

THE HEATHEN CHINEE.—One more of the curious doings of him whose smile is chillblain and bland—his latest performance—took place in San Francisco, where, observing a gentleman examining the heavens every night with a telescope, he thought he would vary the monotony by giving him something to look at. Full of this idea, he manufactured an illuminated kite of peculiar shape, and when it was about time for the amateur astronomer to take his night view of the sidereal sky, raised it on high, and managed to give it a zigzag motion, which ignited some combustible within. The result was a loud explosion, and a detailed account of a brilliant meteor in the next day's journals, from the happy astronomers. The heathen who can go to work in cold blood and exercise his ingenuity in this manner for no other purpose than to make his boastful master look ridiculous, is worth something more than the contempt that is bestowed upon him. The only trouble in this case was that he was not content to let well alone, but tried the trick on a second time, was discovered, won a thrashing and lost his pigtail. He was ingenious but not shrewd.

—This is the way to catch a flea: Don't be in a hurry and get frantic. Watch your chances. Take a two-foot rule and measure the distance from your hand to the flea. Take your pencil and calculate the time it will take to pass your hand that distance so you may be sure. Take a long breath. Aim to grab his hind leg. Nerve yourself up, take a drink, make a ferocious grab, and, if the flea strays off, continue the chase around the room until you tumble over the baby; then flee!

Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient.

Constitutional Tendencies.—The way in which different individuals are affected by the same causes of disease depends upon constitution and temperament. Some persons, for instance, are prone to fevers, some to bilious attacks, and others to nervous affections. In all cases where a peculiar susceptibility to any variety of disease exists, the toning, regulating and purifying operation of will be found the surest safeguard against an attack. Individuals of a bilious and constipated habit, or subject to dyspepsia, or whose nerves are easily excited, should frequently resort to this refreshing saline corrective, especially in warm weather. LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Appointments.

Mr. Jesse N. Wilson has been appointed Master Caulker at the Navy Yard vice Mr. Charles N. Osgood. The appointment is an excellent one. Mr. Wilson has been employed as quarterman at the Yard and should have been promoted years ago.

Mr. Gardner M. Goodrich has been appointed Writer in the Construction department, deserving better recognition from the powers that be.

Mr. Mark F. Plaisted is appointed Quarterman in charge of coopers.

Mr. John Moore is to be quarterman in the tin, copper, plumbing and galvanizing shop.

Mr. Ashela F. Thurston is appointed superintendent of engines.

Laconics.

The stone crusher in its new quarters in the suburbs of the city is busily devouring the mammoth rock near which it is located, and its insatiate jaws grind out valuable material for the foundations of our streets. This ledge or rock which is being so nicely utilized has been known as "bread and cheese" rock, deriving its title, doubtless, from the innumerable parties of boys or girls, or both, who have partaken of the homely but substantial fare of bread and cheese seated upon the summit of this mass of granite, which was flat at the top and capable of accommodating a number of persons.

Dr. Strong is still busy at his humanitarian work of expelling humors from the human body by means of his invaluable sulphur baths. We know of no more simple or effectual remedy for the derangement of the humors of the body than these baths. They are also efficacious in the case of colds. A friend of ours a few days since was shivering with a violent cold, and was threatened with fever. Heeding our advice, he left his work, took a bath, resumed his task again, and the next day was as well as ever. This is no purchased testimonial, but a simple fact related for the benefit of our readers. Dr. Strong's office is located at the corner of State and Pleasant streets, where he may be found at all hours of the day.

Messrs. Cook & Rymes of Charlestown lately finished a set of new boilers for the dry dock at the Navy Yard. They stood a test of 147 lbs. to the square inch.

A worthy and dignified church member who took a walk in the suburbs of the city, between the forenoon and afternoon services, last Sunday, passed the home of a mechanic who works in another town all the week, returning Saturday night; and seeing him walking about his yard, remarked, "Well, Mr. ——, we can't find much much fault with such weather as this, for April." "Well, I don't know but what the weather's good enough," responded the workingman, "but it brings out such a confounded lot of Sabbath-breakers that I can't get a chance to shingle my wood-shed!"

Rev. S. A. Hutchinson of the Christian church in Kittery has purchased the residence of Mr. Stephen F. Shaw for the sum of $2500. Mr. Shaw this week takes up his residence in Rochester, where he will carry on the business of a druggist and apothecary; and as he served his time at that business, had brains to start on, and is strictly temperate in his habits, the citizens of Rochester will find him a trustworthy compounder of all sorts of doctors' messes, as well as an energetic and public-spirited citizen.

On account of the School Committee meeting at the Council room this evening, the meeting of the Fourth of July committee will be postponed until Wednesday evening.

The Portsmouth, Great Falls and Conway Railroad Company will apply to the next legislature, in June, for leave to construct a railroad from its present line of railroad at or near Great Falls to the city of Dover, to connect with the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad. The distance over the present line to South Berwick is 17 miles; over the contemplated one only 13 1-2 miles and a much pleasanter one for the White Mountain tourists and travellers generally.

The May Festival, Thursday evening, at the Temple, will consist of pantomimes, acted ballads, statuary and music. By request, the representation of Cleopatra will be repeated and new charades, &c., be presented. Harlow's band will furnish music.

The Directors of the P. S. P. C. A., at their last meeting, voted to hold the regular monthly meetings of the society on the first Monday evening of each month. The members number about eighty, and the treasury is in good condition. The society proposes to put a stop, if possible, to the cruel practice of robbing birds' nests of eggs and young, which has been so prevalent in this vicinity for a year or two past. All detected will be punished to the full extent of the law.

Messrs. Joseph R. Curtis and J. Henry Morrill will on Thursday, May 1st, open a grocery and provision store in the building on Pleasant street formerly occupied by the fire engine Gov. Langdon. See advertisement.

The Mechanics' Association have voted to sell thirteen feet of their front on Congress street as a passage-way to Mr. R. H. Beacham. So the entrance to the stable will be kept open.

By an advertisement in another column it will be seen that Dollie Bidwell is to appear at the Temple on Friday and Saturday evenings next. She has recently been playing in Manchester, to crowded houses.

Mr. George W. Swett, formerly clerk at Boar's Head Hotel at Hampton Beach, has been appointed conductor on the Pullman cars on the Eastern railway.

HUMILITY AND MANLINESS.—In the course of his lecture on religious revivals before the theological students of Yale College, at New Haven, Wednesday, Rev. Mr. Beecher astonished his hearers with some original observations on the necessity of humbling one's self before the Almighty:

I beseech you to avoid that kind of crawling, that prostration that takes the manhood out of a man. I don't think that God wants to have a man crawl before him like a worm. I don't think he is any more pleased to see that than you would be to see your children act so. I have a little dog at the farm that when I come home is so exceedingly glad that he lies down and squirms and rolls over on his back, so that I want to kick him. That same dog, although he is so affectionate, will steal chickens. Now a dog don't know any better, but a man does, and it seems to me as if men think that if they humble themselves before God and say all manner of scrouching things, that will fit them for the work. There is no manliness in this. No doubt they have enough to confess, but God wants men to come to him as though they were his sons.

PUT HIM OUT.—The New York Independent and the Church Journal have been having a little passage of arms about the Athanasian Creed. The former says:—

The editor of the Church Journal is a muscular Christian. In (dis)cussing those "ill-conditioned, troublesome, intermeddling, uncultured, purse-proud nuisances who undertake to make tools of their rectors and lord it over a parish," he suggests that the right thing to do with them is to snppress them. "When a rector finds such a one let him first, we say, try to convert him. If he cannot be converted, then trample on him, heavily and steadily, and keep it up till he is quiet. It will be healthy exercise for the rector, and especially healthy for the man trampled." In order that the discipline thus suggested may be doubtly salutary, we would advise that the rector intone, while he tramples, the damnatory clauses of the Athanasian Creed.

HOW GAS WAS FIRST INTRODUCED.—It is now sixty-six years since Pall Mall, London, was lighted with gas—the first street of any city so illuminated. The idea of using carburetted hydrogen gas for purposes of illumination first occurred to William Murdock, Ayrshire, Scotland.

He made his first experiments in 1792, and six years later he succeeded in lighting up the engineering works of Watts & Boulton, at Birmingham. Murdock was a sagacious man, worthy to associate with Watt. The merit of bringing gas light to London, however, belongs to a German named Winsor. He was an enthusiast and employed all the arts of quackery and fanaticism to convince the benighted Londoners of the merits of his scheme.

Sir Walter Scott did not believe in this German genius, and actually called him a madman; and even the liberal mind of Sir Humphrey Davy failed to take in the idea that gas was applicable to purposes of lighting houses and streets. Winsor, however, stuck to his business; he won supporters; and one night a long line of streets blazed out in a burst of gas lamps, much to the astonishment and admiration of the citizens. After such a demonstration, the promoters were no longer considered idiots. It is calculated that $100,000,000 are now invested in gas manufactures in Great Britain.

—Charles Tripp, an armless young man from Illinois, is one of Barnum,s attractions. He had been teaming this winter, and on one trip he had to dismount and take his boots off three times to fix the harness, working with his toes. He writes a very good "foot," and his correspondence with Barnum was conducted with his toes.

Morning Chronicle.

USEFUL ADVICE TO BOYS.—To throw stones—Fold each one carefully in a feather bed, and give good notice to all in the neighborhood when you are going to pitch.

To carry gunpowder in the pocket—Soak it well in cold water, then wrap it up in a yard of oiled silk.

To tease a cat—Hold her close to your open eyes.

To slide down the banisters—Let a surgeon sit upon the lowest stair. Also carry a pailful of poultice in each of your hands, as you may need it.

To poke the fire properly—See that a few red-hot coals are firmly secured to the handle end of the poker.

To get rid of studying your lessons—Eat a hot mince pie every night, for one week, before going to bed.

To keep the face clean—Hold your head under water until you grow up.

To cure creaky boots—Wear them always in going to the snake pantry.

To be polite to sisters—Get their big brother to introduce you to them.—Hearth and Home.

"STRUGGLES AND TRIUMPHS; or forty years recollections," is the title of P. T. Barnum's autobiography. Mr. Barnum has earned the right to be called the great American showman, and the story of his diversified career is not without its useful lesson and incentive of ambition to the young. The book is made up of the more interesting phases of a showman's life. It gives facts, figures, failures, and is written in a light tone, is profusely illustrated and made doubly interesting by readable anecdotes of persons who have been before the public in the show business, for more than forty years. The book can be obtained of the publishers, Warren, Johnson & Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and also of an agent that will accompany Mr. Barnum's Great World's Fair that is to be exhibited in this city during the season.

GUILD'S SIGNAL.

BY BRET HARTE.

Two low whistles, quaint and clear,
That was the signal the engineer—
That was the signal that Guild, 'tis said—
Gave to his wife at Providence,
As through the sleeping town, and thence,
Out in the night,
On to the light,
Down past the farms lying white he sped!

As a husband's greeting, scant and doubt,
Yet to the woman looking out,
Watching and waiting, no serenade,
Love-song or midnight roundelay
Said what that whistle seemed to say:
"To my trust true
So love to you!
Working or waiting, Good night!" it said.

Brisk young bagmen, tourists fine,
Old commuters along the line,
Brakemen and porters placed ahead,
Smiled as the signal, sharp, intense,
Pierced through the shadows of Providence—
"Nothing amiss.
Nothing—it is Only Guild calling his wife," they said.

Summer and winter, the old refrain
Rang o'er the billows of ripening grain,
Pierced through the building boughs o'erhead,
Flew down the track when the red leaves burned
Like living coals from the engine spurned;
Sang as it flew:
"To our trust true,
First of all Duty—Good night," it said.

And then, one night, it was heard no more,
From Stonington over Rhode Island shore,
And the folk in Providence smiled and said,
As they turned in their beds, "The engineer
Has once forgotten his midnight cheer."
One only knew
To his trust true
Guild lay under his engine dead.

N. Y. T tribune.

HEALTH OF FARMERS.—Agriculture should be the most ennobling of all vocations. It would be if farmers cultivated the earth as teachers develop the head and preachers educate the heart. Teachers and preachers aim to train the thoughts and feelings to truth and happiness. Farmers should train the earth to produce such crops and fruits, and such only, as are conducive to the best health and highest welfare of human beings. Then would their calling be transformed from one of degrading drudgery and interminable toil to one of refinement and luxury. The germinating seeds, the waving grains, the luscious fruits, so suggestive of the source of all life and all blessing, and the harvest season, so typical of a resurrection and immortality, ought to make the life of an agriculturist a continual pastime. And this would be the farmer's life, if farming was managed as it should be.

Farmers have unequalled natural advantages for health, strength and longevity. The statistics of disease and the tables of mortality, however, are against them. This is not due to their vocation, but to their misuses of it. No class, as a whole, is probably so utterly reckless of health conditions. So far as our acquaintance with the habits of farmers is concerned—and it has been extensive—it compels the conclusion that, as a rule, the dietetic habits of farmers are worse than those of any other class, who have the means of choosing for themselves. Fried dishes several times a day, with several fried articles at each of the three meals, is one of their common dietetic abominations; dried beef, old cheese and pickles are among the common relishes, while lard and saleratus make their richer dainties infectious and caustic. We have seen on a farmer's table fried pork, fried eggs, fried potatoes, and fried griddle cakes for breakfast; fried ham, fried hominy, and fried parsnips for dinner, and fried sausages and fried doughnuts for supper—all the frying done in lard. No class is so troubled with canker, erysipelas, tumors, cancers, and humors, as farmers; and the excessive use of pork, lard, fine flour, rich cakes and greasy pastry, are enough to account for it. In dietetic habits, our farmers are sadly misled by the agricultural journals, nearly all of which pander to their prejudices, and flatter their morbid appetites by recommending and commending swine breeding and pork eating, while they fill their kitchen column with receipts for making "rich and palatable" puddings, pies, cakes, and other complicated dishes, which no stomach ever carried inside of a human body could long tolerate without death or dyspepsia.

The essential need of our farmers is plain, wholesome food, properly cooked. This would give them much more available strength for work, relieve them of many of the distresses and expenses of sickness, add many years to their life, and render old age "green" and nominal, instead of dry and decrepid, as it is in most cases under existing habits.—Science of Health.

—A cruel carrier-pigeon "amateur" condemned one of his pets to convey to his country seat the following laconic passage: "Send basket of early green peas by express train; pack the bearer of this in with them, as he is a plump bird, and I intend to eat him with them!"

The Modoc War.

Another battle has been fought with the Modocs, in which nineteen of our men were killed, including Captain Thomas, Lieut. Howe of the 4th Artillery and Lieut. Wright of the 12th Infantry. Twenty-three are wounded, including Lieut. Harris of the 4th Artillery, and others are missing.

Gen. Sherman fears a general outbreak among the Indians. It is reported that an army of 50,000 men will be put into the field in 30 days to fight them.

State News.

Nashua has two fire steamers, and the city supply of water will run them about five minutes.

Woodward & Wellington, Keene attorneys, recently brought suit against Levi Britton of Surrey to recover $100 counsel fees. Mr. Britton conducted his own case, reading to the jury from the New Testament, the only law book he was familiar with, and bringing in, as offset, a bill for beef at $1 a pound. The jury reduced the attorneys' bill to $34.

Eight cases of divorce were granted at Exeter at the recent term.

Johnny Emerson, the boy who was so badly injured at Candia, by the Fitts boy, is much better, although in considerable pain. His recovery now is considered certain, and it is very probable that early next week the investigation in the case will take place, and the future care of the Fitts boy be settled. That he isirresponsible there is no doubt.

Readables.

General James R. McCormick, ex-Congress-man from the fourth Missouri district, has presented his back pay to Arcadia College, in that State. The secret of this generosity is thus given by the St. Louis Democrat: "The joke of the whole thing is that by 'donating' $5,000 to the college, the worthy ex-Congressman collected a debt which the institution owed him, and which it is probable he could not have obtained in any other way."

Mrs. Wharton, who was charged with poisoning Van Ness, has been discharged, at Baltimore.

People are getting to be a little shy of juries. At the late session of the Supreme Court, in Rockingham County, New Hampshire, not a civil suit was given to the jurors. The parties preferred a reference rather than trial.

On killing and cutting open a dog at Faribault, Minn., a live and healthy snake thirteen inches in length darted out and scampered off.

Fifteen hundred singing birds of different varieties, imported from Germany by the society organized for that purpose, were turned loose in the Cincinnati suburbs, Saturday, the object being to domesticate them to this country.

A Lyon man has invented a substitute for sole leather, which, he claims, is cheaper in price and superior in durability to that article.

S. T. Taylor of Bloomington, Ind., lost his hotel by fire, and people generally suspected him of incendiarism. The matter so preyed on his mind that he committed suicide, leaving a note protesting the incorrectness of public suspicions.

The official Connecticut canvass shows that the republicans, in the vote cast for congressmen, have a majority of 171 over all, though there were 1,614 scattering votes polled. The republicans have also a majority of 91 on the vote cast for senators.

Strict Sabbatarians in Boston are shocked by the report that a florist of that city sells 10,000 rosebuds every Sunday, and asks if that can be called a Christian community wherein such buddist practices are tolerated.

A Missouri gentleman says President Grant is certain to be one of the richest men in that State, owing to the extraordinary rise in his real estate in St. Louis.

Four little Chicago boys had a hanging matinee in a stable. Each was suspended in turn and was to yell when he got enough; but one little fellow, ambitious to excel his companions, deferred yelling till it was no longer practicable, and there were but three of those little boys.

The Maryland oyster beds have been scraped so clean that a tight market is expected next year.

John Hoppin, of Danvers, Mass., 70 years old, killed a man named George Crawford, 25 years old, on Sunday, while Crawford and others were endeavoring to force their way into Hoppin's house.

Brigham Young thinks he is not understood now, but the time is coming when he will be. He leaves his fame to posterity. This is all very well, but there are few men who will leave so little fame to so large a posterity.—Cin. Chron.

William White, the publisher of the Banner of Light, dropped dead in a Highland Railway car on Temple place, Boston, Monday afternoon.

"Curiously enough," says the Enquirer, "the great poet died on the day of his birth, the 23d of April, 1616." It is curious. Very little is known of Mr. Shakespeare, to be sure, but we didn't suppose the youngster ever lived who could have got through with a birth and funeral in one day—the 23d of April, 1616—and written all those plays in the meantime. William, thy name is precocity.—Cin. Chron.

The doctors have come to the conclusion that chloroform killed Napoleon, and that if they had let him alone he would have lived on.

The Mormons have got a hymn, "We are not ashamed to own our Lord." Very good; but the question is whether the Lord isn't ashamed to own them.—San Francisco Chronicle.

CRISPIN TROUBLES IN CINCINNATI.—Members of the Crispin order and other trades' unions are prone to speak of the tyranny of capital; but the tyranny of labor, or of the domineering, turbulent, ignorant portion of it, is as much worse than that of capital as the merciless rule of the uprising hordes of Paris in Revolution at the close of the eighteenth century was more terrible than the despotism it overthrew for a time. A striking illustration of this fact is furnished by events transpiring in Cincinnati, where, at present writing, the Crispins seem to be carrying things with a high hand.

It appears that the employing shoemakers have become tired of the blind rule of the Crispin organization, and have taken measures to form an association of manufacturers. Immediately upon this becoming known, a manufacturer who employs a large number of hands was waited upon by a committee of Crispins, and asked if he belonged to the new organization, to which he replied that he did not. Unsatisfied with this, however, the committee required him to sign a pledge that he would not join it at any time in the future! To this unreasonable demand he of course refused to accede, saying that he should reserve to himself the liberty of doing as he should see fit, and whatsoever he might think proper, on any future occasion. Upon this refusal, word was passed around, and every hand stopped work, and left the shop.

Another case was of a Crispin who had a large family to support who was at work in a "recognized" shop at ten dollars a week, but, having a chance to make sixteen in a "scab" shop, did so, as the Crispins did not propose to pay him the extra six dollars he could make by the change. For this the Crispin "brothers" assaulted and killed him.

Still another case may be mentioned. A young lady cutter was employed in ruffling dollars a week; but her employer finding her efficient, her wages were increased to fifteen. A Crispin, becoming displeased at this, exercised his manly prerogative of "going on a spree," for which he was discharged, whereupon a committee of Crispins waited upon the employer, and demanded the discharge of the woman, and the restoration of the drunken man who was discharged, which demand was of course indignantly scouted, and the chivalrous Crispins "struck."

If workingmen think such contemptible actions as these will benefit their cause, and redound to the ennobling of labor, they have yet a vast deal to learn regarding others' rights, as well as an equal amount to unlearn as to their fancied wrongs.—Commercial Bulletin.

A BOSTON ROMANCE.—The Springfield Union publishes the following story as told by its Boston correspondent:

A young English girl took a sea voyage to America for her health, and would have returned home by the same vessel, but that the captain and wife made such a drudge of her that she rebelled, and refused to return with them. She found her way to Boston, where she fell into kind hands. One day she was sent to deposit a letter in one of the street boxes, and passing along Washington street she dropped it. As she rose from picking it up, she came into collision with a little German man with a furious shock of hair and beard and shaggy fur trimmings on his coat, which seemed only a continuance of his leonine locks. The apparition was so sudden and comical, that the girl, though well bred, could not refrain from laughing in his face. She passed on and he followed her, and at the door of Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s store he spoke to her kindly, asking her address, but as he spoke only German and she English, they came to no understanding. At length, by some means or other, he obtained her address, and the next day called, with Mr. Koppitz, the music director at the Globe Theatre, for an interpreter. The shaggy little German proved to be one of the celebrated Thomas orchestra, and his credentials appearing satisfactory, he was allowed to pursue the acquaintance of the girl, though always through the medium of Mr. Koppitz. He was in the city but a few days, but during that time he had determined to make the young girl his wife. He engaged a German instructor for her, and with the tenderest of partings in the most guttural language, left for a Southern tour. Returning to New York, he obtained a boarding place for her in that city, and contin-

[The remainder of this interesting story is not continued in the New York Ledger or anywhere else. The above portion of it was set up by a young donkey named Andy Turner, who on being discharged from this office, Monday morning, for "gouging," stole the rest of the copy. We will give a counterfeit quarter for the return of the remainder of the intensely agitating tale!]

LOCOMOTIVES FOR WOODEN TRACKS. Geo. E. Fifield of South Newmarket has been building for a few years past a novel class of locomotives for the wooden track railways in the lumber regions of Georgia. They are only six tons in weight, and have very large cylinders for so light machines. The framework is exceedingly light, though from the method of construction it is very strong. The driving wheels are only 28 inches in diameter, but are very wide on the face, so as to cover a rail timber nine inches in width. The capacity for carrying water and fuel is very great, the whole forming a very unique and serviceable machine, one of them being able to do the work of thirty mules easily, effecting a great saving. The rapid denudation of the timber lands along the rivers and lines of railroads all through the South is driving the lumbermen deeper into the forests to supply the demand for a material almost indispensible for heavy bridges, cars and floors throughout the country, and which, when exhausted, will never be reproduced. No yellow pine tree ever grows where one is cut, a soft, sappy, worthless scrub pine of another kind taking its place.

MIXED SWINDLING.—California has this drama: One Whitney, having a sum of money in bank, and owing an equal sum, consulted one Dixon as to the best means of avoiding payment. Dixon promptly counselled that Whitney should withdraw the money and lodge it secretly in his hands, so that it could not be attached by legal process. This was done; but when Whitney desired to withdraw the sum from his ingenious and guileless friend the latter denied all knowledge of the transaction. Thereupon the despoiled Whitney craves the interposition of the law, and makes a clean breast of it. The legal myrmidons overhaul Dixon, and it is at last discovered that he has made over the cash to an evil woman named Richardson, with the understanding that both are to fly, rejoining each other in a distant city, where they can diffuse the booty in peace. Searching and urgent investigation of this person disclosed the fact that she had just perfected her arrangements to throw overboard her fellow felon and run away with another man; a man of the Hoodlum color, with a taking eye and a correct taste in hair oil. Search for this young man brought to light the amusing fact that he had spent quite a portion of the money in purchasing a fugitive outfit for another young woman, who, as soon as she had got the articles did literally and actually fly with still another young man about whom nothing is known, except that he seems to be the only one in this strange succession of criminals who has reaped any of the fruits of the original crime. Considering the extreme complication and embarrassment of everybody concerned, and the small likelihood that he will ever get any of his money back, it is possible that Whitney may now almost wish that, instead of mobilizing his capital in that secret fashion, he had quietly paid his debts with it.

—We never heard of such a thing before, but a poor wretch named DeWolf was before the Police Court of New Haven last week for stealing an umbrella. "If our courts have got down to this," asks a New Haven newspaper, "who is safe?" We had supposed that in all communities having a respectable jurisprudence, umbrellas were regarded somewhat in the light of terra nature, and as lacking in the elements of personal property. They are chattel foundlings, so to speak, and whoever has owned one may say, "'T was mine, 't is his, and may be slave to thousands." We advise the man who has been found guilty of stealing an umbrella in New Haven to take the case to the Supreme Court of the United States.

—Thus complains a German florist. "I have so much trouble with the ladies when dey comes to buy mine rose; dey want him double, dey wants him fragrand, dey wants him nice gouler, dey wants him eberydings in one rose. I hopes I am not what you calls one uncallant man, but I have some times to say to dat ladies, 'Madam, I never often sees dat ladies dat was beautiful, dat was rich, dat was good temper, dat was younge, dat was clever, dat was perfection in one ladies. I sees her much not.'" —An Evansville (Ind.) cat, according to the solemn asseveration of the local editor, has produced a litter comprising four ordinary kittens and one puppy, and zoologists are trying to guess what could have been nature's purp-puss in evolving such a monstrosity.

—An Omaha paper warns the ladies that the side walks are full of holes the size of a lady's foot, and then goes on to tell how a six-year-old boy fell into one of them.

—Eugenie's mother has become blind.

EARLY CHICKENS.—It is now time for those who want to have early chickens, and particularly those who are raising any of the pure breeds and expect to send their chickens to the fall shows, to make up their breeding stock for the coming season. It is a mistake commonly made at this season of the year, to put too many eggs under a hen. Seven or nine are enough for the largest hen; for if she is so fortunate as to cover them all, and not allow the outer ones to get chilled, she will not be able to cover her chicks well during the long cold nights of spring. It is particularly essential at this season of the year that both food and water and a dust-bath be placed where sitting hens can have a convenient access to them, for a short exposure at this season chills the eggs—Live Stock Journal.

PERSONAL.—We understand that Mr. H. E. Chamberlain, Superintendent of the Concord Railroad, has been offered a salary of $5,000 a year to take charge of an important railroad in New England. It is doubtful, however, if the directors of the Concord road will consent to part with his services, as the reputation of this road is among the foremost in New England for promptness and efficiency.—Nashua Telegraph.

THE ATMOSPHERE OF LOVE is a pure, sweet breath. This desideratum is one of the results of using Sozodont, which not only invigorates and preserves the teeth, but renders the mouth as fragrant as a rose.

BOOTS AND SHOES have such influence on the understanding, that no intelligent person desires other than the best. T. E. Moseley & Co., 293 Washington street, Boston, offer to ladies, gentlemen, or children, the finest assortment of goods for foot-wear ever shown in New England.

FOR BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, OR REFRESHMENT after a late evening, Walter Baker & Co's Cocoa requires but one trial to establish it as the most desirable beverage. Since 17 80, their headquarters have been in Boston, but their popular goods may be had of any grocer in the land.

WHAT IS VITALITY?—Science has not yet answered this conundrum. The principle of life, in spite of the researches of physicists, doctors and metaphysicians, remains unknown. We know, however, that when the blood is impure, the stomach inert, the bowels irregular, the liver disordered, or the nerves relaxed, this life sustaining principle, whatever it may be, is shorn of its active power and that the body it animates languishes. We know, too, such of us as are capable of deriving knowledge from authenticated facts, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters correct impurities of the blood, invigorate the stomach, regulate the bowels, tone the liver and brace the nerves, thereby combatting and subduing the leading morbid conditions which tend to shorten life. The average time of human existence might unquestionably be greatly lengthened by judicious stimulation, especially in the decline of life, and this famous preparation is undoubtedly the most wholesome stimulant at present known.

—The great difficulty in the manufacture of gun cotton has been the impossibility of exploding it wet, and the extreme danger of drying it, on account of its great sensitiveness. These drawbacks have been removed by the discovery of a means of exploding it wet, by electricity. Discs taken wet from the hydraulic press, and containing from 15 to 20 per cent of water, were placed upon a slab of iron, one inch thick, without any tamping or covering. On placing the electric detonator within them, and firing the mass, the plate of iron was deeply indented in the centre. A slight tamping of sand, however, placed over the discs, so far increased the explosive agency that a slab of iron was shivered to fragments on detonating the cotton.

—It is not likely that this generation of Americans can ever know how good and how great a man they have lost in General Canby. He was one of those symmetrically great men whom Jeremy Taylor would have described as "choicely good"; in whom no power nor passion is inordinate; who have a sort of genius for seeing always what is exactly right, and a steady propensity for doing it; and who, being fastidious, reticent and perfectly poised, never push themselves into the knowledge of anybody, and who are most commonly appreciated only by their friends and by history.—Christian Union.

—The latest joke at Brigham Young's expense is perpetrated by a Pennsylvania paper, which says, "Some chap thought he would play a joke on Brigham Young, so he gained access to his list of wives, and added twenty-seven names thereto — Mary Jane Young, Josephine Ann Young, etc. The next time Brigham called the roll, twenty-seven didn't answer to their names, so he concluded that they had died since last roll call, and putting a few more inches of crape on his hat, he looked as sad as possible, but has not yet detected the joke."

—A man laid down to pleasant dreams on a vacant lot in Galveston, recently, to sleep off a drunk. He was astonished upon awaking and finding a two-story house built over him. That's the way they are building up in Texas.

—The roof of Westminister Abbey, in London, long supposed to be of oak, when recently examined as to its soundness and found to be perfect, was at the same time discovered to be chesnut. It has stood for eight centuries already.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Laconics.

Mrs. Betsey Brooks, living at Eliot Neck, Me., fell down cellar, Monday night, and was probably fatally hurt. Her age is about seventy-five years.

William Keefe sold Joseph Delaney, 13 years old, two glasses of whiskey, Monday. The boy became beastly drunk and City Marshal Johnson had Keefe arrested. Judge Bufford held Keefe in the sum of $300. The Marshal says "it's bad enough to sell liquor to men," and that he will prosecute all who sell to minors.

Don't forget the entertainment for the benefit of the Y. P. C. U. at the Temple, to-morrow evening.

There is a staging erected around the glorified City Building, (a fact of which a number of our citizens are aware,) for the convenience of the masticators, and every person travelling along the sidewalk in front of the building passes beneath a number of cross-pieces some seven feet or more from the pavement. We stood near the place for a few minutes, Tuesday afternoon, to study human nature, and observed that eleven persons, of twelve who passed beneath the staging, involuntary stooped as they did so. Short men with tall hats made the most decided reduction in their heights, and the only person who made no stoop at all was a lady of unusual latitude naturally, whose height was still further increased by the addition of a mansard roof.

Daniel M. Foss, of Rye, on Monday morning last shot an eagle measuring seven feet four inches across its extended wings.

A friend of ours whose business sometime keeps him out late o'nights, —especially Sunday nights,—informs us that there is a young lady in this city whose keenness of vision is almost miraculous. He says that as he was returning home last Sunday morning he passed her residence just as some young person was taking his leave, and heard her remark: "Good night, Tom. Oh, stop; you haven't shaved for two days!" Our informant thinks it a remarkable feat for her to detect that two days' beard, as the night was so dark he could scarcely distinguish the outlines of the beard's owner.

Mr. Andrew McKenny, a sober and industrious teamster, fell from a job wagon in a faint fit, Tuesday, breaking his collar bone and inflicting other serious injuries.

J. Horace Kent, Esq., addressed a temperance reform meeting at Concord, Sunday evening.

Religious.

Messrs. Editors:—It is reported that the Adventists at their meeting last Sunday, attacked spiritualism in the most violent and virulent manner, applying the most opprobrious epithets to its believers, and calling them credulous fools. Now if the failure to substantiate and prove true any theory or doctrine, be accepted as evidence of intellectual imbecility in its advocates, then surely the Adventists may claim the highest rank in the graduation of imbeciles, for how many times has the nonfulfilment of Christ's second advent at their appointed time, shown the utter baselessness of their visionary scheme of getting to heaven by a bodily ascension "en masse?" But spiritualists are daily giving ocular demonstration of the great fact of a positive and intelligent intercourse between the material and spiritual spheres, and this glorious doctrine forms the basis of their common belief, and is the leading idea which they seek to inculcate. To this labor they devote themselvs, and do so, without a fear that the doctrine will disturb their preconceived opinions, however long and warmly cherished.

CYPO.

Marietta Ravel.

This charming young pantomimic actress, supported by her splendid New York Company, will appear in the Temple, on Monday and Tuesday evening of next week. SINGER

SEWING MACHINE

Still Triumphant.

SOLD IN 1872

219,758.

These celebrated Machines are sold by

J. J. FESSENDEN,

No. 12 VAUGHAN ST.

The only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity.

Purchasers will find it to their advantage to call and examine this machine that has stood the best for years and has constantly outstripped all its competitors, before buying the machines which are crowded into their houses. By so doing they can understand the reason why the Singer Co., have sold over 1,000,000 Machines.

Morning Chronicle.

CONGRESSIONAL HAIR BRUSHES.—A writer to the Washington Capitol says: "The House of Representatives, between December 5, 1871, and June 30, 1872, had a hundred and seventy-three hair brushes at a cost of $216.50. Now why the House should need such a quantity of hair brushes and combs bothers the will and confounds the understanding. Looking down from the Reporter's Gallery upon the assembled beetles, one is struck with the number of heads that, rising above the timber belt, exhibit bald knobs upon which a comb and brush would not only be useless but agonizing. Then why such a tremendous demand for combs and brushes? And about this amount appears in every report of contingent expenses. Every session calls for a fresh supply of combs and brushes? No comb can be constructed that will last through two sessions of the same Congress. Nor can a brush be made that will stand the wear and tear of a bald-headed Solon over ninety days. Does this come of a frantic effort to get the little hair at the base trained up over the bald place above? Who knows? Jones says these barbaric implements are distributed through the committee-rooms, that the members never touch them, and at the end of each session the clerks of the committees carry them off. Jones was a clerk himself once, and he ought to know. If this is so Bassett, Shepherd, Painter, and other old fellows must be running variety stores or holding stock in barber shops."

—A clumsily drawn ordinance makes any man who shaves himself in Des Moines on Sunday liable to a fine of five dollars.

—The Graphic asks, "What's in a name?" and answers that Bar-Jonah never owned a barge in his life.

The Chronicle.

Hygienic Notes.

On Tuesday week, at the New England Hospital, Dr. Zakrzewska gave the last lecture of the course—to nurses; and said that in their own department they must practise self-control; that however nervous and unreasonable a patient may be it is the business of the nurse to bear everything; to walk easily; avoid creaking shoes; to be careful of slamming doors, to keep the room tidy without raising dust to annoy a patient, and also to be careful to speak in a low voice.

On the subject of digestion very few people pay any regard to the combination of food. The Jews are very careful to keep separate the articles which form a meat-diet from those of milk-diet. An entirely different process goes on in the stomach when milk is eaten from that which takes place when one eats meat. But when taken together the milk curdles and digestion is very difficult.

The speaker said she had seen doctors eat beef-steak and then drink a goblet of milk, and she thought she should like to shoot them—so as to dissect the stomach and see the operation of digestion. The great exertion of the stomach in digestion exhausts one so that he would be better nourished on half the quantity of food. We want a constant change of food, so as to give a relish. For breakfast it is well to have bread and butter, coffee and milk, or an egg. For dinner, meat and vegetables, with pudding and pie for dessert. It is better to eat eight ounces of meat and two ounces of pie. For supper, cold meat, bread, stewed fruit. Eat everything, but do not mix everything up.

The time of eating depends upon the peculiarity of the individual. The young and growing need four meals per day. No food should be taken between meals, no apples, candy or crackers, as even a mouthful will hinder digestion. If you crave candy, eat it freely at your meals. Constant nibbling produces a sallow complexion. If you have to work all night you will need a luncheon at eleven and three o'clock.

On respiration, the speaker said people often take cold by the mouth. They go out and the cold drives the blood to the internal organs, then they go into a hot room or stand over a furnace and inhale hot air, and in a few hours they find they have congestion of the lungs, or bronchitis. It is better to sit awhile in a cool room. Children should not go out to play in damp weather directly after eating, particularly if subject to croup; as the food and dampness combined produces congestion.

In relation to bathing, a certain amount of cleanliness is absolutely necessary. Some people are strengthened while others are weakened by a bath. No one should ever bathe except on an empty stomach. One lady could take a shower-bath every day and find it beneficial, while another would be thrown into a dropsy on account of the violent action of the water upon the skin.

In speaking of the treatment of infants the speaker said that if food was given to very young infants, except that which nature has provided in the breast of the mother, the digestive organs were injured for life. It is like nipping off the crown of a young tree; no after-cure will produce a perfect tree. The reproductive system is of the utmost importance, and on the care or neglect of that system depends much of the happiness or misery of life.

In making poultices, remember moisture and warmth are what is desired. In making a mustard poultice, have a hot plate, spread a thin cloth over the plate, put the mustard in the rag, wet it, and fold the edges of the cloth over the mustard so that it will not ooze out, and it is ready. Flaxseed, slippery-elm, onions and charcoal are all good.

In a case of ivy poisoning use sweet-oil and lime-water. In a case of poisoning with chloroform, bring the person into the open air. In case of children eating matches, give water and spirits of turpentine. A woman who had been a nurse fourteen years came to the lecturer recently. She had a sore on her neck from ear to ear. Dr. Dix did not know what it was. She said she thought perhaps it was caused by the green strings of her bonnet, and applied to a chemist, who said they were died with a preparation of arsenic.

In speaking of seasoning food, she said that sometimes a pinch of salt would be better to put into a child's milk than sugar. If people would eat more vegetable food they would need less medicine. She scraped and sliced a carrot, and said most vegetables should be cooked in a porcelain-lined kettle with a small quantity of water, and seasoned with broth or a little salt and butter.—Commonwealth.

—A young woman in Campbellville, Ky., was engaged to an old man, and tried to elope with a young one. She got away safely, but went back to get her wedding dress, and was compelled to marry No. 1.

The Daily Chronicle,

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1873.

The Modoc War.

The second battle with the Modocs has ended disastrously. On the morning of the 26th ult., a reconnoitering party composed of batteries K and A of the 4th artillery, and company E of the 12th infantry, proceeded in the direction known to lead to the present stronghold of the Modocs, Captain Thomas in command. A dozen or so Warm Spring Indians were expected to cooperate on Thomas' left, the troops having formed a line. The skirmishers advanced without molestation until they arrived at the foot of a bluff south of the lava beds, having mean, while signalled to the camp that no Indians were to be found. On reaching the bluff the Modocs opened a severe fire, causing the the troops to seek such shelter as they could find in the crevices, chasms, etc. As usual, the foe was unseen. The first position soon became untenable, owing to the fact that the Indians were able to deliver an enfilading fire.

Reinforcements were sent forward under command of Col. Green, and found a large percentage of the reconnoitering party killed or wounded, forty-nine in all. In many instances it would be difficult to recognize the dead but for some article or dress known to have belonged to them. Indian barbarity has defaced the lineaments of the killed.

Most of the dead and wounded were brought back to camp.

Sixty Modocs are armed with Spencer carbines and breech-loading muskets. In more than one instance a Modoc has been known to have two or more Spencer rifles, enabling him to keep up a rapid fire from his natural or artificial breastwork of rock. The surface of the ground in many places is torn up by volcanic action, which forms crevices, and these are adaptable to purposes of either hiding or points of defence. In several instances the soldiers, knowing nothing of the topography, have come unawares on such fissures, and before they could escape were confronted by a wily Indian, with rifle leveled and finger on the trigger. Death, or at least a dangerous wound is the result. Too often the redskins escape by hidden paths known only to themselves. As a sample of their treachery, a portion of batteries A and K, 4th artillery, and company E, 12th infantry, finding themselves in danger of being outflanked, took shelter in a hallow spot affording a partibl cover. No sooner had they done so than the Indians, who knew and commanded every egress from the cavity at that point, numbering 21 warriors, detached seven of the number on one side, fourteen remaining on the other, and then opened a cross fire on the poor fellows, who could not show a head or hand without certainly being struck. Very few escaped injury, and the rest were killed or wounded. It is impossible to ascertain the number of Modocs killed and wounded. Captain McKay reported that his Warm Spring Indians had taken four scalps. This may be the whole or it may be only a portion of the killed, the Modocs begin very careful to destroy as far as possible all traces of their casualties, carrying their wounded into the caves and burning the dead bodies. The wounded are supposed to be hidden in caves, but few of them having been seen so far. When Captain Thomas found himself and men surrounded by his vindictive foe, true to his nature as a soldier, he sought to cheer the soldiers on to a bitter end and obtain if possible life for life, and to sell their lives dearly, saying, "Men, we are surrounded. We must fight and die like men and soldiers." In his noble efforts to sustain the courage of his small command he was ably seconded by Lieutenant Howe and Lieutenant Wright. After receiving a mortal wound he buried his gold watch and chain among the rocks and emptied his revolver amongst the enemy before dying.

The news has created a great sensation at the War and Interior departments. The fear is that the success of the Indians will have a bad effect upon neighboring bands and tribes and lead to general hostilities in that section. All available troops on the Pacific coast will be hurried to the threatened region.

The Springfield Republican wants Charles Sumner to send back his "back pay."

The republicans of Milwaukee, Wis., are very joyous over their success in electing their candidate for Mayor.

There are said to be under consideration important changes in the Maine Central Railroad looking to a change in the line between Augusta and Kendall's Mills, obviating the necessity of two of the three bridges across the Kennebec. There is also a scheme to build a road on the east side of the river from Winslow to Kendall's Mill which would obviate the necessity of a bridge at the latter point. At all events the burning of the Kendall's Mills bridge seems certain to result in the abolishment of the system which requires three crossings of a broad river within twenty-one miles.

Congressman Frye, of Maine, has written a letter, indorsed by all his colleagues, declaring that the consumption of liquor in that state is not one-fourth so great as twenty years ago, and that the remarkable temperance reform is the legitimate child of the prohibitory law, which has created a public sentiment to which opposition is powerless.

The impression seems to be gaining ground that more lives were lost at the Richmond Switch disaster than were reported, as fully a dozen persons have been reported missing who were expected to pass over the road about that time.

The New York Mail suggests, for the benefit of young ladies who are bored with a superfluity of evening callers, that they should "keep on hand a supply of tickets for fancy fairs and charitable concerts, and offer a few to every man who comes to see them." The result would doubtless be that the superfluous ones would soon discover that they have a "call" in another direction.

There is war between the press and pulpit in Portland. Rev. E. P. Thwing, an Orthodox clergyman of that city, stated in a Fast day prayer meeting that the editorial comments of the Daily Press could be purchased at so much a line. Whereupon the Press retorts by calling him a "clerical bummer," who gets his railroad passes, hotel fares and groceries under false pretenses, claiming to be a journalist, when in fact he only makes journalism a secondary consideration for mercenary purposes. Whereupon the parson feels aggrieved, and threatens a suit for libel.

Mr. Joseph H. Haven, who died recently at Lancaster, opened the first foot-path on the east side of the summit of Mount Washington, and acted as guide for several years to all ascending the mountains at that time on that side. He, with Daniel Pinkham, his wife's father, and another man, on the 4th of July, 1823, carried a flag-pole from the woods below to the summit and spread to the breeze the first flag ever floating from that place.

Mr. Perley Davis, of Plaistow, was taken with the cerebro-spinal meningitis on the 15th ult., and died on the 16th. A fatal case occurred on the Sunday before, the victim being a daughter, seven years old, of Mr. Butler. She was taken sick in the morning and died at 7 o'clock P. M. the same day.

The dwelling house of Daniel Shea of Nashua was burned Monday night. Mrs. Shea was putting her children to bed in an unfinished chamber, when she turned around suddenly and broke a kerosene lamp against the chimney, thus causing the fire. A small quantity of furniture only was saved. Loss $800; insurance $300.

The store and tin shop of W. E. Cogswell of Henniker burned Monday night. Loss $3500; insurance $1600.

The house and out-buildings of Joseph Harvey at Pittsfield were burned on Wednesday. Loss $2000; insured.

The shoe manufactory of Lawrence, Boardman & Co., at Exeter, was burned Tuesday night. Loss $10,000; insurance $9000.

MINCED SALT FISH.—Pick out all the bones and bits of skin after the fish is soaked—it is most easily done by changing the water from cold to warm. Chop up fine, and use potatoes left at dinner, as they are better than those just boiled. Lay three or four pieces of salt pork into a spider, and fry till they are crisped, take out, and put the chopped fish and potatoes into the middle, and press it out equally, so that the fat will be at the sides. Cover it close, in five minutes put into the centre a gill of milk, and cover it again. In a few minutes more stir it, but so carefully as not to disturb the side and bottom, else a brown crust will not form. Add more milk if it is too dry. When thoroughly heated through, stir in a small piece of butter, loosen the crust from the sides with a knife, and turn it out upon a hot dish. If it is done right, it will come out whole, and nicely browned.

THE SECOND CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT.—The canvass of votes as returned, by the Governor and Council gives Pike, Republican, seven plurality. Parties were heard on the question of correcting the election returns, errors in favor of Hon. S. N. Bell having occurred as declared in Ward 5 in Manchester and in Hopkinton, the correction of which, would give Mr. Bell it is said, a plurality of thirteen. Messrs. Barnard of Franklin, Stevens of Nashua and Briggs of Manchester appeared for Mr. Pike, and Messrs. George Y. Sawyer of Nashua and S. B. Page of Concord for Mr. Bell. The power of the governor and council to go behind the records of the votes in the several towns in the district was discussed at great length. There were no precedents to quote that bore directly on the case, therefore the controversy depended almost exclusively as a question of the propriety of opening a subject which might have no possible point of termination, and might not be confined to the errors specifically alleged. The council arose without deciding on the question of granting a certificate to either contestant, and it is pretty well understood here that the question of executive authority to permit corrections of the returns will be submitted to the judiciary of the State for decision.

THE QUESTION OF INCREMATION. The English Medical Press says: The attention of our readers may be advantageously directed to the subject of incremation of the dead broached by Prof. Polli. He repeats some of the arguments that have been used against the process, but nowadays, when sanitary science has made such advance, when every inch of ground almost has become of value—in a country such as Great Britain, where the population is out of proportion to the area of soil, and where the infection of water by the percolation of decaying animals, situated, it may be, even at a considerable distance, has been proved to occur frequently, and to give rise to sickness in an intense degree, it really becomes a question of consideration as to how far burial in the earth is hygenically correct or convenient. Habit and the association of ideas have inured us to the practice of earth burial, so that it seems alarming even to discuss the possibility of such a method being displaced, yet the incremation process, could it be carried out so as not to hurt the sensibility of our nature when bidding adieu to the last vestiges of our fellow-creatures, offers certain advantages. By the present procedure we lay the body in the earth to resolve itself into its original elements, by the slow and (could we witness it) the revolting process of decomposition. We preserve no traces of the material once so loved and precious in our eyes; we rear monumental slabs, and commemorate the intensity of our feeling by inscriptions. Would it not be more reasonable to decompose the body by incineration, and retain in monumental urns, if so desired, the ashes of our friends and relatives? The question is one of increasing importance viewed from a hygienic and social point of view.

TOO MUCH SCIENCE.—Young Simpson, just beginning the study of natural philosophy, became fond of applying technical names to common objects to impress hearers with a sense of his profound knowledge, and tried the game with his father one evening. When he mentioned to him that he had swallowed some marine acephalous mollusk, the old man was much alarmed, and he suddenly seized Simpson and threw him on the floor, and held him and screamed for help. And when Mrs. Simpson came with some warm water and the hired man rushed in with a garden pump, they forced half a gallon of water down Sampson's throat, and then held him by the heels over the edge of the porch and shook him, while the old man said: "If you don't get them things out of William he will be pizoned." And when they were out, and William explained that the articles alluded to were only oysters, then his father fondled him for half an hour with a trunk strap for scaring the family. Subsequently Simpson framed his language in more familiar phrase.—Danbury News.

REGENERATE CARDS.—We were shocked beyond measure last evening on going into the reading room of the Young Men's Christian Association, to see a company of immortal beings, ranging in age from sixteen to thirty-five, play in a game of cards! Yes, they were genuine pasteboards. But our surprise grew intense as we saw in place of the jack—that little devil—and the queen, and his piebald majesty the king, such prosaic creatures as John the Baptist, John G. Whittier, Miles Standish and others. It pained us to see John the Baptist—whose raiment was of camels' hair and whose meat was locusts and wild honey—ministering to youthful dissipation. Ah! we sigh for the past, when we used to retire from the too close observation of our fond parents too enjoy a good game of High-Low-Jack, in the haymow. Out upon such calls over the table as "Tale of Two Cities," "The Last of the Mohicans," etc.! Give us the sweet old sounds, "I beg," "I pass," "Make it?" But the boys did seem to enjoy themselves over those regenerate cards, last evening.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Fire.

An alarm of fire brought out the entire fire department, Wednesday afternoon. Clark's foundry was the scene of the conflagration, but like foundries in general, wouldn't burn worth a cent. Our friend Beacham drove a handsome four-in-hand, walking off steamer Dearborn in a rather lively manner. A bolt was pulled, however, in this regular break-down machine. Kearsarge engine lacked horses and was uselessly late. An appropriation for the purchase of horses is lying unused as yet. Sagamore steamer was promptly on hand and at work; and one of the fire extinguishers had a stream on in 30 seconds after its arrival. The hook and ladder men were as lively as crickets—but nobody seemed to have anything to do. The fire was not a success.

Laconics.

The Universalist society have given a call to Rev. R. A. Green, of Northfield, Vermont, to become their pastor at a salary of $1500.

The second of the social temperance meetings at the Sons of Temperance Hall on the corner of Ladd and Market street will take place this evening; all are cordially invited to attend.

Mr. T. B. Aldrich has written another story which he pronounces better than "Marjorie Daw." "Friiz," in the New York Mail, says, "It is a story of New Hampshire life, and introduces odd characters and forms of speech which Mr. Aldrich may have known when he was the 'bad boy' whose story he afterwards told so charmingly. I think he is ambitious of writing the best short stories in America; and when one recalls 'Marjorie Daw,' 'the Young Desparado,' the 'Rivermouth Romance,' 'Quite So,' and others of his latter stories, it seems not easy to excel them, and his ambition—if he has it— appears altogether reasonable."

The entertainment at the Temple this evening, consisting of statues, living pictures, illustrated ballads, etc., by the ladies and gentlemen who took part in a similar entertainment here some months since, under the direction of Mr. G. B. Bartlett of Boston, who also arranged the former exhibition, will furnish a pleasant evening's amusement and draw a full house. The performance is for the benefit of the Young Peoples' Union, and the animated pictures presented are very beautiful. Harlow's band will furnish music. See advertisement.

Steamer Clara Batemen, Capt. Albert Rand, recommenced work as a tug boat on the river, Wednesday, and as her first essay for the season took three large schooners to sea at one tow. She has been undergoing an extensive overhauling, and her repairs and improvements are not yet completely finished; but the press of work awaiting her was such that Capt. Rand was compelled to make a start some days before the time he had intended to do so. We hope she will get no rest all summer.

Frye's & Co.'s Express will hereafter leave this city for Boston at 8:20 A. M.; returning, will leave Boston at 4 o'clock P. M., daily.

Several men are engaged in working on steamer Appledore, getting her ready for transporting the expected crowds of visitors to the Shoals during the coming season. The steamer will wear a white coat of paint this year, and will be commanded by the gentleman who has so acceptably run her ever since she was built, Capt. E. M. Baker.

The necessity of having the horses for drawing engines to fires somewhere near the engine houses was shown on Wednesday afternoon, when Kearsarge engine did not arrive at Clark's foundry until long after the fire was out, though the hose carriage, drawn by men, was promptly on hand; the horses were probably a mile away when the alarm was given. Sagamore engine, drawn by men, arrived first on the ground and was the only engine that put a stream on the fire.

Wagner has been removed to Alfred jail.

Two men, named George Henderson and Fred Varney, were taken in and cared for by Mr. Benjamin Chase on Saturday, as they were destitute. On Monday morning they left for Boston, on the cars; and on Tuesday evening Mr. Chase found that $215 which he had placed in a trunk, had also left. The two hard-ups are suspected, and not without reason, of having basely robbed the man who had given them shelter and food.

BOSTON AND NEW YORK.—The Hoosac Tunnel at which Massachusetts has been so long laboring, is nearly completed, and very sanguine expectations are cherished as to its results. Plans are forming for making it immediately tributary to new connections between Boston and the remote West. The great railroad lines are to be consolidated, new docks and wharves are to be constructed, vast store houses are to be erected in situations which will bring them in connection with locomotives and trains on one side, and steamers on the other, and a multitude of other facilities are to be called into existence whereby the products of the West can be brought to tide waters in the cheapest and most advantageous manner possible. The Legislature, through its committees, is now consulting with railroad and other corporations and also with enterprising citizens, in order to ascertain how the tunnel, when completed, can be made to contribute the greatest possible advantage to the business interests of the State and its leading cities.

HEROISM OF AN INSULTED INDIAN.—One day last week (says the Virginia City Express) while George Gohn and George Smith were killing beef at their slaughter-house up the gulch, a Bannack Indian, accompanied by three or four squaws, came upon the scene in search of wood and the legitimate plunder of the slaughter-house—the refuse. The lordly child of the forest undignifiedly stretched himself upon the ground, and calmly smiled upon his industrious wives as they gathered the trophies. Happening to pass his way, Smith accidentally or otherwise touched the big Injun's foot with his boot, when big Injun resented the fancied insult by laying hold of a clapboard and swatting George over the back. More pleased than angry, Smith retaliated by squeezing the redman's windpipe, and shoving him one side, supposing this would settle it. Not so, however, for "Lo" had been insulted, and his dignity must be appeased. He accordingly went for Smith, and in a ten-minutes' rough-and-tumble fight came out second best. Now right here is where a sensible white man would have quit, and where the traditional heroism of the red asserted itself. He had been grossly insulted in the presence of his sunburnt loves and then ignominiously thrashed. It was too much; and, with a voice humbled with shame and a bosom bared to the skies, he approached Mr. Gohn, with: "Me licked; me big Ingen, and me no want to live. You shotee me, George—you killum me quick—me no want to live." George remonstrated, but in vain—that buck was disgraced, and wanted to be gathered to his fathers, and insisted on being killed as he stood smiting his brave, brown bosom before the humane slayer of kine. Failing to convince him that many a white man got whipped and then had the audacity to want to live, Gohn had to lead him away. On Smith retoroing to town and cabin in the evening, the noble Bannack again came and insisted on being killed, and finally persuaded Smith to perform the bloody deed with a "little axe." Stoically stood the chief under the shadow of the blade, ready for the sacrifice, and as it descended with a crash, Mr. Indian sprang one side, and you couldn't have seen his heels for the dust as he struck out for his "wakiup." If Cooper had been writing this, that Indian would now have been an honored corpse, but as it is, he remains for us to endure and the Peace Commissioners to take care of.

SETTING OUT STRAWBERRIES.—This is the best time of the whole year to set a strawberry bed. As soon as the ground can be readily worked, the place selected for strawberries should be plowed, and then well and even heavily manured, and then plowed again. We like to manure at the rate of twenty or thirty cords of the best stable manure to the acre. After the manure has been well plowed in we proceed to set the plants on the flat surface in rows five feet apart, with the plants about five or six inches apart in the row. Some prefer to plant on a slight ridge thrown up by the plow. This may do very well on wet land, but we have never had any trouble the other way where the water did not stand. The plants used should be strong and good, and the roots should be spread out and well covered, and the earth about them pressed down with the hand. If the season be favorable, the plants will soon begin to grow, and before fall will completely cover the ground. Some varieties make runners more freely than others Some prefer to keep all the runners off and cultivate in hills. The beds are better for general cultivation. Let none of our readers fail to set a straw berry bed this year.

Morning Chronicle.

A WICKED DARKEY.—But we awfully fear that there are too many calls to preach in these days that would not bear the scrutiny of the old colored slave in the South. His master, a preacher, was packing up to move, when the old man said:

"What you goin', massa?"

"To A— to preach."

"Who's goin' to preach to dese folks?"

"I don't know."

"Didn't you tell me, massa, long time ago, dat de Lor call you here to preach?"

"Yes; but he's called me now to go to A——."

"Massa, how much dem folks goin' to gib you dar?"

"Four hundred dollars a year in money."

"How much dese gib you?"

"Two hundred dollars a year."

Then the negro said:

"God call once, he needn't call any more,
For massa to go from two to four;
But,God might call till all is blue,
He'd neber go from fear to two."

—It is related of a Cambridge don, a mathematician of repute for solid attainments, that sojourning in London during vacation, he had engaged one day to dine with a friend whose address was given to him—in a certain square. The professor did not appear, and the next afternoon his friend called at his lodgings to ask what had happened to keep him away. "Why," said the mathematician, "I did come; but there was some mistake. You told me you lived in a square, and I found myself in a parallelogram; so I went away again."

No. 16 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Invention, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for procuring Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable decision at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

STARTLING SOCIAL REFORM.—It has been a subject of much interesting comment here of late years to decide what shall be done with the surplus female population. When a stranger enters one of our manufacturing cities, he is immediately struck with the preponderance of the gentler sex. They overflow our factories, fill our stores, overrun our streets, and hasten by the score to answer any advertisement for an employee. Once, the energies of a Massachusetts girl were bent on securing a husband; now they are given to getting a living. Once, the young men of the Old Bay State turned their attention to agriculture and trade at home, but nowadays they sell out their farms as soon as the old folks are dead, and go West to build railroads and concoct Credit Mobilier's. They do not so much as take a wife with them, but leave the maidens with whom they went hand in hand to school, to live in single loneliness and earn their own living. Thus, year by year, the roll of unmarried women increases, and the prospect for husbands grow more gloomy. Girls that might become radiant through motherhood, grows selfish and soured in mind, and wither and disappear like the leaves in November. The native population of Massachusetts lags far behind the foreign, and statisticians grow appalled. But the fault is not with the women, but is due to circumstances and perhaps to prejudice.

I use the word prejudice because I understand there is a movement on foot among the women of Lowell to petition the Legislature—or, strictly speaking, to prevent their grievances—on the subject of matrimony. For some days there have been rumors of this matter flying around the community, and I have been at some pains to trace them out. In doing so I have been struck with the fact that men and women speak freely now on topics that were tabooed ten years ago. Even the most refined women will talk interestedly and unreservedly of marriage, love, social good and evil, and all the questions which pertain to the relations of the sexes. There seems to be a fermentation beneath the surface which will break out before long in an open movement towards larger liberty for both man and woman. This is only my surmise; but, that it may not appear to be merely a piece of guesswork, I send you a copy of the document above-mentioned. It is one of the most remarkable papers of the period. It comes, too, at a strange time, when Mormonism seems to be yielding to monogamic pressure from without, and Salt Lake City is preparing to accept the higher civilization of the East. Yet, in this connection, it must not be forgotten that a work on Polygamy was published in Bos on some years ago, and was greeted with words of approval by some of the most eminent men of the sea-board States, including Mr. George William Curtis, of your city. The seed then sown was a small one, but it appears to have taken root, and circumstances have developed it into fruitage very quickly.

The following is a copy of the petition prepared for submission to the State Legislature;

Lowell, April—, 1873.

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts:

The undersigned citizens of the State, respectfully set forth the grievances under which they suffer as women who are not permitted to vote, hold any and all officers, and engage in the occupations opened to men, and are otherwise restricted in the opportunity of earning a living, herewith beg your permission to suggest the remedy for these evils, upon which they pray your honorable body to act.

The law which now governs society says, practically, that women should be married, should engage in work at their own homes, and should look to their husbands for support. On the other hand, the census shows that it is impossible to carry out this unwritten but recognized law, for the reason that there is a large excess of women in the commonwealth, and many of the men of lawful age are idle, vicious, incompetent, or otherwise unfit to be the heads of households. Yet your petitioners hold that the matter is not without remedy. Prejudice and custom have decided in favor of restricting the husband to a single wife, yet without justice and authority, as we believe. In the Book which lies at the foundation of all law recognized in this country, there is no injunction against a plurality of wives, while there are many examples therein recorded in its favor. Men's wives appear to have increased in number in proportion with their flocks and riches. Such a rule even now holds in the land from which the Christian nations received their religion.

Your petitioners have no desire to interfere with the regulations of any existing household, but simply to present their claims to the marriage state for your respectful consideration. They deem it their privilege and their duty to suggest the abolition of the law against the marriage of a man to more than one wife, in cases where the first wife does not object, and where it is made evident that the man is able to support the additional burden laid upon his resources. They are aware that it may take years to remove prejudices, and that those who take a second or third place in the household may be looked upon with disfavor; but, confident that their proposed action will ultimately do away with much of the social evil that afflicts and distresses all communities, they are willing to be the first to engage in the work of this reform. Society, which now insists that woman shall be married and look to her husband for support, will, after mature reflection, commence this effort to carry out its law practically.

It is far from the design of your petitioners to ask legislation in behalf of free love or any loosening of the marriage bond. We ask that the marriage of the second wife be made as binding and permanent as that of the first, and that all the children of the household shall have equal honor. And in asking this, we believe that we have taken a long step toward doing away with foundling asylums, preventing ante-natal murders, and lessening the vagabond child population of our large cities.

For the reasons enumerated, your petitioners respectfully ask the passage of a law permitting plural marriage in the case above enumerated, and under such other conditions as to your judgment shall seem wise and proper.

And your petitioners will ever pray, &c., &c.

This remarkable document at the time it was put into my hands, bore one hundred and sixty-two names. They appeared to me to be genuine signatures. All of them seemed to belong to women of American parentage, and many of the family names have been well known in New England for a century. This, to, I will say for them, the handwriting was far better, generally, than in the petitions presented to the Legislature by men, not a few of the signers being evidently ladies of education and culture. The lady to whom I was indebted for a sight of the document assured me that a large majority of them were educated women, though many of them are earning their own living, and she herself is a leader in society. If these revolutionists have the courage to go forward (and there is no reason to believe that there is any more "fun" in the matter), their petitions will astonish the descendants of the Puritans of Massachusetts Bay, even if it does not enlighten them.

After taking a copy of the petition, I was puzzled to know where to send it, but, happening to take up a copy of the Daily Graphic containing an editorial on the Goodrich murder, which suggested some social reforms, it occurred to me that you might possibly venture to print it. The question presented by the ladies is in advance of the times—and yet not very far in advance, after all. Somebody has got to meet it at some time, but I am glad a reply does not fall to the lot of your correspondent. —Cor. N. Y. Graphic.

A smart, but saucy Springfield girl has a blank book in which she enters a black mark whenever she hears her father swear, and calls him to account.

Lancaster, Penn., has a lamb with an extra mouth under his right ear and the people are vainglorious about him.

The Utica Ledger, referring to the controversy going on between the Lafayette and Terre Haute papers about the size of the feet of the women of the respective cities, advises some girl to put a stop to it by stepping on the editors. There can't be any question but that would settle them.

"Sonambulistic laryngisection" is the name that the Chicago Tribune is good enough to invent for the performance of the Fitts boy in Exeter jail.

At the Colfax butchery, ninety-one colored men were killed outright and only two whites!

Requisitions have been received from postmasters for over twelve million postal cards, so far, and additions to this number are being made every hour.

The negro barbers of Mississippi are in a quandary. If they shave the negroes they lose their white customers; if they do not shave them, they are taken before a negro justice and fined. In his desperation one of them shampooed a negro with carbolic acid, and his stock in trade fell a sacrifice to the consequent wrath of an indignant populace.

An Iowa woman brags that she could have married two men a day for the past two years, if she had had any use for such rubbish. As she has a rich coal mine and a hacking cough, her statement has an air of reliability.

The Utica Herald says it is some consolation to see a bald-headed insurance man. You don't know that justice has been dealt out to him, but you think perhaps it has.

We do not indorse the irreverent remarks of Western papers regarding Rev. Mr. Hammond, who is a great and good man; and it is inexpressibly sad to read in a Western paper—"How unfortunate it was that the Reverend Hammond had not been appointed a special commissioner to the Modocs in place of General Canby. A valuable military officer would have been saved to the nation, and Hammond would have been placed where he would do the most good."

Hon. James Brooks, member of Congress from New York, who was censured by the House of Representatives for his connection with Credit Mobilier operations, died in Washington on the 30th ult. He was one of the leading democrats in Congress.

A few days ago, a lady living in Newport, R. I., discovered that her children, several in number, showed unmistakable signs of having the scarlet fever. Being unable to procure any assistance, she worked, watched, and administered medicines, day and night, to her sick children, until her system gave out and she became insane, in which condition she still remains.

Frank Chandler, 18 years old, committed suicide at Fryeburg, Me., on the 29th ult., with laudanum; disappointed affection; had one wife and wanted another.

Gov. Dix has signed the new city charter for New York, which legislates many Tammanyites out of office.

The reports of an intention to discontinue the river railroad between Augusta and Waterville, Me., and build via Belgrade, which would make the lower through line from eight to twelve miles longer, are without the slightest foundation.

General Canby died a poor man.

Colonel Gillem's despatch gives the loss of the ill-fated reconnoitering party as sixteen killed and six wounded. There are rumors of a massacre of American traders by Sioux at Cypress Hill, on British territory, from Fort Garry.

The reduction of the National debt last month was over two millions.

During the last two days, the ice in Lake Winnipesaukie has broken up and disappeared rapidly, and the steamer Lady Washington will begin making her regular trips from Alton bay to Centre harbor this week.

THE STIGMATA.—The New York Herald in its Sunday issue, contained an extended account of a mysterious phenomenon, which is now attracting considerable attention and comment, in San Francisco, among the ignorant and superstitious. The story is that a young woman named Miss Collins, who is the daughter of the steward of a vessel plying between England and Australia, arrived in San Francisco some three years ago, and owing to infelicities in the family, was placed under the charge of the Sisters of Notre Dame, from whom she received her education.

She had always been in delicate health, and has often been at the point of death, suffering intensely from periodical attacks of heart disease and pulmonary congestion of the lungs. On leaving the convent, she visited the poor, sick and destitute, in company with a young lady companion, relieving their wants and instructing their young children.

In January last, Miss Collins was seized with violent convulsions followed by congestion of the lungs and brain. She grew rapidly worse, and no hope was entertained of her recovery. The preparations for her death were all concluded, and the prayers for the dying had been recited by the attendants. Presently she closed her eyes and drew a long breath, when it was supposed that all was over. The patient soon revived, however, and made signs as though desiring to write. A pencil and paper were handed her, when she requested certain devotions to commence. This was done, the patient joining mentally in the prayers. She then reached out her hands for the crucifix which she kissed with great reverence, and after drinking some water, she rose from the couch completely restored to health.

Weeks passed away, when without any natural cause, she suddenly experienced an intense pain in her temples. This suddenly passed away, but soon returned with equal violence. On the Friday before Good Friday, the stigmata, or marks of the Saviour's passion, became distinctly visible on the back of her hands, and blood oozed from her left side near the heart. This was repeated on Good Friday, the marks appearing on the surface of the hands and the upper surface of her feet. These marks were witnessed by several respectable persons, and they all vouch for the reality of the appearance. A scientific investigation is to be commenced at once. The Herald seems desirous of keeping up its reputation for telling wonderful stories.

Railroad Consolidation.

President Lothrop of the Eastern Railroad made an argument before the Massachusetts legislative railroad committee on the 30th ult. He said that the two railroads start side by side from Boston, cross the river on adjacent bridges, and cross each other at Somerville. He described the route of the two roads and the many points at which they come into direct competition, intersecting and vieing with each other at all points by a competition which has not been exceeded by any competition between rival roads in this part of the country. The relations have always been competitive to the last degree, and the proceedings at the last meetings of the stockholders of the Boston and Maine would indicate that up to that time the feeling on the part of that road was in favor of continuing this competition, votes having been passed favoring the most active hostility to its rival.

Now, if this represented the real opinions of the stockholders, he would not favor such a bill as asked for, but at that meeting but 17,000 shares, or one-third of the capital stock of the company, were represented, and he thought that a majority of the stockholders, after an impartial consideration of the situation, would favor the union of the two roads. He then spoke of the advantages to be derived from consolidation. In Boston both roads are greatly cramped for terminal facilities, and will be as long as they remain separate roads, but if consolidated the union of the termini would give ample facilities for the transaction of the business of both roads.

The same would be true as to Portland and other points where they come into direct competition. So as to the equipment. Unnecessary trains are now run over both roads. Two trains between Boston and Portland are run over the roads at the same time of day where one would be sufficient, and the traveling public has to pay for the increased cost of transportation thus brought about. The competing branches of each road are now operated not so much to accommodate the public as to injure each other. The economy in doing away with two sets of officials and employees was spoken of. He estimated that the total saving would amount to at least one dividend of five per cent. a year.

The Boston and Maine parties charged the Eastern road with wild and reckless expenditures and that the company was bankrupt, while the Eastern road claimed that they had never made such a useless and extravagant expenditure as that of four millions in building the Boston and Maine extension to Portland, not for opening up any new business but to injure a rival road. He feared no disadvantage to the stockholders, for consolidation would largely increase the value of the stock of the united corporation. The only disadvantage to be feared was by the public, which might apprehend that a cessation of competition would cause an increase of rates for freight and passengers. The average rates of fare on the Eastern Railroad were already less than two cents a mile. He spoke of the experiment in cheap transportation on the Saugus branch made by the Eastern Railroad which, on the whole, he thought had proved successful, advantageous to the public and perhaps to the road.

The disadvantages to the public were met by a section in the bill providing that the rates shall not be increased for passengers or freight in the Commonwealth. He would favor simply a permissive bill allowing consolidation only if mutually desired. He would strike out of the bill that part providing for the appointment of commissioners to fix the value of the two roads, for he would not wish either road to be compelled to come together for any pecuniary advantages. He would not give the right to either road to appeal to commissioners to fix upon any terms, but would favor allowing the roads the fullest freedom in fixing the terms.

TRUE AS STRANGE.—A beautiful young girl was married in San Francisco, last week, and at the close of the marriage ceremony she turned to her husband and said: "George, kiss me, I am dying." The husband complied with the request, and at that moment the young bride fell dead to the floor.

—A correspondent of the New York World thus writes of the thinness of the soil upon which the city of San Salvador stood: "The earth rumbles, it is said, hollow under every passing wheel; wells dug to a depth of more than fourteen feet give out asphyxiating gases and sulphurous odors, and Mr. Machado tells me that in boring a well recently in the patio of President Gonzales, the drill fell through and entirely disappeared, to the detriment, perhaps of some innocent old mandarin in China."

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Fourth of July.

At the regular meeting of the citizens' committee, Wednesday evening, Hon. Ichabod Goodwin presiding, the suggestion of the programme committee that the children of the public schools be requested to take part in a floral display, was considered, and the teachers (ladies and gentlemen) of the various schools were appointed a sub-committee on floral display. A vote was also passed requesting the teachers to meet with the general committee, Wednesday evening, May 7th.

A committee on invitations reported that they had abandoned the idea of issuing special invitations, it being their intention to furnish each visiting guest with a souvenir ticket of admission to the collation.

The committee on collations were authorized to contract for a collation for 5000 people for $1500.

The committee on tents and location gave notice through the chairman, William R. Boardman, Esq., that their report would be ready at the next meeting.

A committee on accommodations, consisting of Messrs. Thomas S. Nowell, William R. Preston and John E. Giddings, was appointed to secure halls for the New York and Boston delegations and visiting bands, and to confer with the school committee. A member of the school committee present stated that the matter of giving the scholars a vacation during Fourth of July week was under advisement and is being favorably considered.

Laconics.

May Day opened warm and pleasant—the most genial May Day for many years. Arbutus hunters were well rewarded. A chilly southerly wind prevailed in the afternoon and lifted the dust all over town and country.

Post office hours from from 7 A. M. to 8 P. M.

Dollie Bidwell will be unable to fulfill her engagement here for the present, owing to severe illness.

Crowds at the beaches and multitudes at Appledore and Star islands are expected.

Mr. Edward Balch started out with his street sprinkler on May Day—and a good start it was. Cheers for Balch!

Trawl fishing at the Shoals is to a large extent abandoned, owing to the scarcity of fish. The system of trawl fishing is gradually breaking up the schools of fish which used to visit our waters every Spring, by destroying the mother fish; one firm of fishermen last week set about 12,000 hooks, and got only 12 cwt. of fish. It also has a tendency to lessen the catch of lobsters. So writes a correspondent who is generally well informed in all that pertains to salt water.

The owner of a roll of poetic extracts found at the entrance of the CHRONICLE office can have the property by calling immediately. The editor of the Dover Local Record found it, and brought it up stairs, assisted by the editor of the Haverhill Bulletin.

The Nashua Gazette is of the opinion that the 250th anniversary of the settlement of Dover and Portsmouth is a State matter—said cities being in New Hampshire. "Jes' so!"

The Board of Mayor and Aldermen appropriated $10,000 for the reception of the Sons, at their session, on Thursday evening.

The perusal of the article on the first page on "Social Reform" will remind our readers of the Scriptural prophecy regarding the seven women who shall lay hold of one man.

The laborers on the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad have struck for an advance of twenty-five cents per day, but the contractors refuse to make the advance.

S. J. Court.

On Thursday, at the Supreme Judicial Court, holding a session in Exeter, the jurors were discharged and the Court will be occupied the remainder of the term with the Equity and Sessions Docket. The trial of several important cases which it was believed would be tried at this term are necessarily laid over, among which is that of Hadley v. the N. H. Fire Insurance Co., in which a number of the ablest lawyers in the State have been retained.

—That comet which was recently discovered in the orbit of Biela's comet, is conceded to be a fragment of the latter. It is a month behind time, but is crowding on all steam to get in position for the Vienna Exposition, where it has agreed to meet the Herald's commissioner.

—It is a remarkable fact that human hair grows nearly twice as fast in Europe as it does in America.

THE EPPING RAILROAD.—The Amesbury Journal reads a lecture to the Newburyport and Amesbury people that will be enjoyed and appreciated by the citizens of Portsmouth. It says:

"Delays are always dangerous. It proved so in the projected railroad to Epping. While we were delaying, others were working. Frank Jones, who rode into Portsmouth on a peddler's cart without money enough to pay for a peck of oats to feed the horse that could hardly stand on its legs, while yet a young man, by no accident, but by energy and intellect, had come to own half the town with a fair prospect of owning the other half if he should live to old age. He looked on the map and at one glance comprehended the situation. We must have business to give value to property, he said: and we must have railroads to give business. The all of Portsmouth depends on railroads. With him, to conceive the idea is to determine the fact, and Portsmouth is rich in having such a man. He projected the road from Portsmouth to Dover and is building it. That settled the question with the Eastern Railroad, of which he is a director—of building the Epping from Salisbury; and now, if we want it, we must build it ourself. What do we say—shall it be built or not? Before the farmers make their hay in July, that ought to be settled—either the road should be contracted for or abandoned before that date. It is no use to delay and fool. The towns on the road might be brought to advance one half its cost and it would seem as though the rest could be raised; but it can be done only by taking action and responsibility. When we shall so act as to indicate our own faith, others can be brought to our aid, but till then, little will be done."

CAPITAL JOKE.—An Auckland (New Zealand) newspaper, in its zeal to awaken the colonial authorities to a sense of the defenceless condition of the harbor, recently published a graphic account (a la "Battle of Dorking") of a visit of a Russian ironclad to Auckland, with a demand for £25,000, on non-payment of which the city would be shelled and destroyed. Many of the people believed the story, having "read it in the papers," and great terror ensued; many women fainted, and several premature births and two deaths occurred in consequence.

—There was an elderly gentleman wending his way to the barber shop Saturday afternoon. Coming from an opposite direction was an unshaven man. The shop lay between them. The unshaven man quickened his step; the elderly man struck into a trot. Then the unshaven stopped to look into a window, and the elderly man came back to a walk. Up started the unshaven man again, and the elderly man resumed his trot. The unshaven man once more slackened up; so did the elderly man. Then the unshaven man quickened his gait, and the elderly man once more struck into a trot, and reached the door panting and puffing, as the unshaven man went by. And yet women are dissatisfied with their sphere.—Danbury News.

—A Salem teamster asks the Register this question: "I noticed a few days ago a team turning a street corner near which a stand was placed for the sale of fruit and confectionery, and the team struck the stand and knocked it over, scattering peanuts and candy in wild confusion. I wish to ask whether the teamster is responsible for the damage to the vender, or had the driver the 'right of way' in the public streets?"

—A leading citizen of Louisville stepped into a popular gin mill, the other day, to relieve the asperities of life, and just as he was raising the glass to his lips a loafer cried out, "Snakes!" Not at all disconcerted, the well-bred gentleman finished his glass, and, turning calmly around, said, "You can't skeer me with snakes; I've had 'em."

—To settle a bet a petition was recently presented to a worthy citizen of Detroit, Mich., praying for the abolition of the fire and police departments and his own execution. He glanced at the first few lines and "chalked" down his name.

Morning Chronicle.

Old Time Chronicles No. 75.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

THE FATHER AND UNCLE OF GOV. WEARE.—Gov. Weare's father was Hon. Nathaniel Weare, son of Hon. Nathaniel Weare, of whom an account was given in the preceding article. The father was of a family of eight children, but an account will be given of only two as they held important offices in the province. Nathaniel, the governor's father, was born in Newbury, Mass., Jan. 5, 1658. When about five years of age the family moved to that part of Hampton now Hampton Falls. Educational advantages were not much at that early period, but as his father was much in office in the Province, as Nathaniel grew up he became well versed in the political affairs of the times, and with good powers of mind, possessed of what knowledge could be obtained from books and a knowledge of men, he became capable of filling offices of trust. He was Representative in the Provincial Assembly perhaps more than one year. In 1728 he was a member and was chosen Speaker. But there was a controversy between this branch of the government and the Council, as the Council with the royal Governor was a Court of Appeals, which the Assembly resisted. The Governor negatived Mr. Weare as Speaker and the Assembly was obliged to choose another.

Mr. Weare a while after was a member of the Council, and held this office some time. He had in the meantime a commission as Justice of the Peace.

In 1730 he was appointed Judge of the Supreme Court, and held this office eight years.

Peter Weare, brother of this Nathaniel, was born in Newbury, Mass., Nov. 5, 1660, and came to Hampton three years after. He was Representative in the Assembly, of which he was Speaker, held other offices and appears to have been a business man. He too was Judge of the Supreme Court, having been appointed to that office earlier than his brother was. His wife was Elizabeth Wilson of Exeter. We have not the date of the deaths of these two gentlemen. From what has been given thus far on the Weare family it is seen that Gov. Meshech Weare came of a family, some of whom were much in office, his grand-father, father and uncle especially. Next will be given an account of the Governor himself.

—Jones of Germantown did not believe the devil, but a recent night four of his friends converted him. He went to sleep, and at a concerted signal one of his friends fired a revolver, another poured cold water on his head, a third burned red fire, and a fourth held red pepper to the nose of the victim. Jones took the window away with him when he left the room, and he believes in the devil now.

SPRING TIME.
Sonoma Wine Bitters
are the BEST to use to counteract the debilitating effects of SPRING and early SUMMER. They are MILD AND PLEASANT IN THEIR EFFECTS, and no change in diet is needed.
EVERYBODY CAN TAKE THEM:
Man, Woman or Child!
They are made with PURE, SOFT, MILD WINE, and choice Plants and Roots, are Delicious to the Taste and Delightful in Aroma, while the strong, fiery spirit, so prominent in most other Bitters, is lacking.
SONOMA WINE BITTERS
have been used for years, not only in the United States but in the British Provinces, West Coast of South America, Sandwich Islands, the East and West Indies, and Austria, and are recognized as the Most Palatable, Healthy and Appetizing Bitters in the market.
Sonoma Wine Bitters
are Medicinal and Invigorating, cleansing the blood, and giving a healthy tone to the entire system. Ladies and Children will find them a most agreeable Tonic. Try them, and you will use no other.
Sold everywhere by Druggists and Grocers.
